We Invite Your Patronage

Your friends can buy anything you can give them—except your photograph.

Notwithstanding the soaring costs of all commodities during the past three years, prices of photographs have not risen. The necessity of a readjustment of values, however, is self evident.

Beginning November first, prices must be raised from twenty to thirty-five per cent.

Compared with the difference that exists in the prices of practically all staple articles, this increase is small indeed, and will remain permanent only to the extent that other values are stationary.

A CHRISTMAS SUGGESTION.

When you make a present of The Youth's Companion you are giving not merely the means of wholesome pleasure and fascinating information every week. The Companion is all that. But it is something more. Hundreds of letters to The Companion speak of the influence of the paper in binding home ties. The mothers and fathers and the boys and girls in Companion families are very close knit in their affections. They have a common interest in the same duties and recreations, and they all regard The Companion as one of themselves. It has a personality and a character unique among publications, and you cannot introduce a more inspiring influence into any home circle.

It is not a publication merely—it's a friend. The Companion alone is $2.00, but the publishers make an Extraordinary Double Christmas Present Offer—The Youth's Companion and McCall's Magazine together for $2.25.

This two-at-one-price offer includes:
1. The Youth's Companion—52 issues in 1918.
2. All remaining 1917 issues of The Companion free.
3. The Companion Home Calendar for 1918.
4. McCall's Magazine—12 fashion numbers in 1918.

All for only $2.25.

Jack DeVore was able to be up town a couple of times this week by the aid of crutches. He has had a long siege but is gradually improving from the effects of his smash up last Summer.

Jas. Luper was in town the first of the week doing jury duty. He states that he has his farm work well done up for the Fall, and will take a few days of rest and recreation.

The Food Pledge.

Now that we have signed the food conservation pledge, just what are we going to do about keeping it?

This is a question that we should all ask ourselves, and if we are good Americans the answer will be emphatic—we are going to conscientiously comply with the conditions of the pledge every day, and at every meal.

Food saving is the immediate and urgent duty of every man, woman and child in civilian life. It has been asked by our Government, and it is a necessity for the success of this war.

The fact that food conservation in the United States is not compulsory but is merely asked as a volunteer service should be an unflinching appeal to Americanism. If you are behind your Government you will keep your pledge and be glad of the opportunity to eat a little less of the prescribed foods in order that the underfed women and children of our Allies may have more; also that the men fighting our battles at the front may be abundantly supplied with "fighting fuel."

There are many branches of service in Uncle Sam's army. The food conservation service is the only branch open to every man, woman and child in the nation. The enlistment should be 100 per cent, and each enlistment should mean a definite saving of wheat, meat, sugar and fats—the four staples of which there is a world shortage and which must be supplied by the United States to our allies in this war against war.

After signing the Hoover pledge, it is left with you personally to keep it. Your pledge is wholly an affair of honor. There is no one appointed to watch you and see that you keep it, except yourself.
