NEWS OF STATE AND NATION

China was to have had a prominent part in the India revolt, as was revealed in the Hindu plot trial now under way in San Francisco. It was the purpose of German intrigue, working hand in hand with paid Indian tools, to effect a treaty between China and Germany whereby China was to smuggle arms and munitions to the revolutionists in India. Letters had been seized in New York uncovering the plot.

The Federal Trade Commission has bared a plot in the Chicago stock yards, which left unmolested would have gained control of the food of the nation with J. Ogden Armour as dictator. Disclosures made public by the commission show that sensational "high finance" between the Chicago packers and the stockyards and the terminal railroads has been and would have been a greater factor in causing the high cost of living.

The report of the President's Labor Commission headed by the Secretary of Labor Wilson, says that the efforts to settle the Oregon City paper mill strike failed because officials of the Crown-Willamette Paper company, with headquarters in San Francisco, refused to arbitrate. The report criticizes the officials and says the strikers offered to agree to a settlement.

Losing Many Sheep.

Anton Vey is losing a large number of sheep this season from lupine poisoning. As many as 15 in one night have died in one band. W. V. Pedro, who has sheep close to the Vey range has not lost any from that cause so far.

Mr. Pedro says he used to be in doubt regarding lupine poisoning, but he satisfied himself by feeding some of the plant. Of four sheep to which lupine was fed in the evening two were dead next morning.—Echo News.

Stanfield Is Visitor.

Robert N. Stanfield, candidate for the republican nomination for United States senator, stopped over in Pendleton last night on his way to Portland for a few days. He says he finds encouragement for his campaign in every section of the state where he has had occasion to visit and that the messages from his friends throughout the state are optimistic.—Pendleton Tribune.

Mad Dog In Echo.

Echo had a mad dog scare yesterday when a big bull dog ran amuck through the town attacking every dog it saw and showing a willingness to fight men as well. The animal was killed at Westlawn by Mrs. Wm. Wilder, who had been notified by phone that the dog was headed that way.

The dog came to town from the Berry place, and was around here all night Wednesday. Many of the dogs of town were bitten and some of them have already been killed by the owners for fear they might develop rabies. Others will be kept tied until it is seen if they show any indications of the disease.

Nelson Taylor had an encounter with the animal. He tried to drive it away from his dog, which had been attacked, and the mad dog went for Taylor himself. He secured a gun and shot the animal twice, but failed the ranch.—Echo News.

Walla Walla Stores Will Adopt Radical Departure.

Walla Walla, Wash., Dec. 22.—Beginning January 1 the merchandise stores of Walla Walla, with the exception of the drug stores, confectionery stores, cigar and pool halls, garage and dairy businesses, will not open until 9 a. m. and will close at 6 p. m.; will extend credit for but thirty days; will make but one delivery per residence per day, and will not endeavor to sell non-essentials in any line of business. In other words the retail business of the Walla Walla district will be placed on a war time basis through the patriotic cooperation of the business men and the buying public will be expected by the government to just as patriotically meet the charges.

Such action was unanimously agreed by a mass meeting of merchants held in the Commercial club rooms last night, following an explanation of the regulations by E. F. Dahm, of the University of Washington, who is chairman of the commercial economy committee of the state council of defense.—Pendleton E. O.

Daughter Is Born.

Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Pruitt are receiving congratulations upon the birth of a seven and a half pound daughter born Wednesday at St. Anthony's hospital. Mrs. Pruitt was formerly Miss Viola Knighten of Hardman.—Pendleton East Oregonian.

Henry Sims, commission merchant of Butte Montana, spent several days in Heppner the past week, buying turkeys for Montana consumption. He made a trip to Condon last week and was accompanied by La Verne Van Marter.

NO RESTRICTION PUT ON USE OF LAMB

Only Time It May Not Be Used Is On Meatless Days, Declares
W. B. Ayer.

There is no restriction on the use of lamb as meat on any except meatless days which are now universally observed, according to representatives of the food administration, in a public statement.

In some manner the impression has gone out that the food administration frowns on the use of lamb as meat. This is not true. Some time ago it was suggested that it would be a conservation of food to prohibit the sale of any except adult beef and mutton. When the matter was fully considered, it was pointed out that the lamb, so-called, is in reality, almost a full grown animal and that other considerations make it imperative, for the sake of the industry, to sell a certain amount of lamb yearly so that there is no objection to the use of lamb as meat.

A telegram from the representative of food administration follows, together with a statement from W. B. Ayer, Oregon food administrator:

"The food administration has placed no restrictions on the use of lamb except on meatless days for the reason that food administration has realized that lamb must be consumed in order to maintain the producers and give them a fair profit. The administration hopes the falling off in consumption will not injure the industry."

"It will be recalled," said Mr. Ayer, "that immediately after my appointment last August, I had a conference with the sheepmen of Eastern Oregon regarding the use of lamb. After the conference I presented the matter to Washington, with the result that Mr. Hoover issued a statement similar to Mr. Cotton's telegram to the president of the Wool Growers association. Mr. Cotton probably wishes to encourage the sheepmen of Eastern Oregon to breed for a full lamb crop next spring."

A new subscriber to the Gazette-Times of the past week is C. Melville, farmer of the Sand Hollow country. Mr. Melville has been farming in this county for the past two years, coming from Eugene and locating on some of the Oregon-Dakota Land Co. holdings. Mr. Melville says he has overlooked a number of good opportunities in the past by not being a subscriber to the county paper so has ordered it to his Echo address for the next fifty-two weeks.

Ed Miller, lone merchant and auctioneer, was a Heppner visitor the first of the week.
