WALLACE BRUCE AMSBARY

The Creole French Poet to Be Here.

When France ceded her possessions east of the Mississippi to England in 1763, the French settlers retained their manners and customs. Their sovereign might be changed for a consideration, but their tongue never! The language learned in infancy, amid the vine-clad hills of sunny France was theirs, with all its softness and beauty. They clung to their mother tongue, and their native customs they could not change.

When through the heroism of Col. George Rogers Clark, the great Northwest territory was captured from the British and the Stars and Stripes were raised over every fort and in every pioneer hamlet post, it was the third floated over the heads of the loving French settlers. Pioneer of France, then the England, and last the White and Blue," then it was hailed with patriotic fervor by the pioneer French of the West Territory. They Americans, but still their French customs and some of them learned a few of the younger generation, and endeavored to learn the language but it was badly "broken." The native inflections of the voice, the "Frenchy" accents and awkward attempt to speak the "American" language were peculiar. Their habits clung to those pioneers with a constancy that was pathetic.

Those old-time French pioneers with their traditions, reaching beyond the seas, so full of interest to us all, are rapidly passing away. Only on the printed page can they now be seen, yet the memory of them will never die. The historian and the poet, the great thought preservers that link the past with the present, have done their work, and the names, habits, customs, language, and tradition of the dear old Frenchmen will live for ever. One of the most widely celebrated writers who has preserved the memory of that dying race is Mr. Wallace Bruce Amsbary, the poet and Creole French impersonator, who will appear here on our Lyceum course.

E. J. Starkey returned the first of the week from a brief visit in Portland.

WHAT IS A "SMILEAGE BOOK?"

Brigadier General Foltz, commanding officer at Camp Lewis, cordially approves the "smileage book" idea of making life more pleasurable to the boys in the cantonments.

What is a smileage book? A little budget of bound five-cent coupons—20 in the dollar size, 100 in the $5 kind—which generous-hearted men and women will want to purchase and send as a gift to some soldier boy.

These coupons will purchase high-class entertainment at the cantonment theaters. The theaters are built, the attractions secured. For an admission charge of 10, 20 or 30 cents the boys will see two or three dollar shows, a provision made possible by the fact that in many cases famous actors, singers and vaudeville entertainers are donating their talents.

Four distinct lines of entertainment have been engaged. The first week will be given over to famous New York companies direct from Broadway. The second week will bring the highest class vaudeville. The third week will feature Lyceum attractions. The fourth will be "home talent" week. Out of the hosts of men in training a program will be made up at each cantonment, and high-class entertainment is assured by the fact that in all the camps are men drawn from the professional theatrical, musical and lecture world.

The plan is continuous in the foregoing order. It has the approval of the war department, and a pledge is given that only clean and wholesome entertainment will be presented.

Here is patriotic, practical philanthropy of the highest kind. A smileage book will be a gift appreciated by any soldier, and will be particularly welcome to the greater number who have little left out of their $30 a month after they have sent half to dependents, paid for their army insurance and made provision for their Liberty bond subscriptions.

A book can not possibly go amiss. If some favored soldier should get two or three he will treat his less fortunate friends. The plan will present a strong appeal.

Wm. Lowen and wife of Hardman and Frank Frates of Eight Mile were visitors in Heppner Tuesday. Mr. Lowen says they have experienced a remarkable winter in the Hardman section thus far and grass has been plentiful. He has just moved his cattle down to the Frates ranch on Eight Mile. Mr. Frates says grain on his place is growing fast and he looks forward to a big harvest.

Ione Woman Holds County Record For Knitting For Soldiers.

An Ione woman has established a record for war work, if anyone has beat it, we have failed to hear about it. Grandma Hale of that city knits a sock a day for the soldiers and to date has knitted 15 pairs. Grandma Hale, who is the mother of Mrs. Walter Cason of this city, is 76 years old, but her age is not a handicap when it comes to doing her bit. She was visiting at the Cason home in this city Saturday, in company with Mrs. T. E. Grabill of Ione.

Former Heppner Man Doing Well in Portland.

While in Portland recently, the Gazette-Times editor had a pleasant visit with James Hart, formerly a business man of Heppner. Mr. Hart is now steward for the Imperial Hotel Co., and has a good job. He says he is doing well. Mr. Hart was engaged in the grocery business in Heppner for many years, his parents being pioneers of this section. Prior to selling out to his brother, R. M. Hart, Jim was the proprietor of the Palm confectionary here.

Great Crop Prospect.

According to Frank M. Griffin, Fairview farmer who was a business visitor in Heppner last Friday, there is a great prospect for a big crop this year. Mr. Griffin says he has never seen it better and the fall sown crop cannot help but make a big yield. While Mr. Griffin is not actively engaged in farming, his lands now being tilled by his boys, yet he makes his home on the farm and keeps in close touch with the development of that part of Morrow county.

Much Interest in Gun Club.

Heppner shooters have written for a chance to meet the members of the Roundup Gun Club on the new grounds as soon as the shooting starts and will probably be accommodated. The traps and trap house are now in position and a number were out trying their luck at the clay pigeons yesterday. The sport is expected to attract a large number of Pendleton men this year and already there have been numerous new guns down at the traps for a try.—Pendleton Tribune.
