HEPPNER BOY IS PROBABLY OVER THERE

Mrs. J. L. Yeager Receives Letter From Son Ralph Who is Now in the United States Navy.

The following letter has been received by Mrs. J. L. Yeager from her son Ralph who is now in the Navy. Ralph enlisted several months ago, shortly after the declaration of war. December 26, 1917.

Dear Mother: Well, Christmas has passed and we sure had a great time. For dinner that day we had turkey, mashed spuds, dressing, asparagus, pie, cake, bread and coffee.

In the afternoon the ship's crew received a Red Cross package. In my package I received a box of candy, a knife, stationery and pencil, a bar of soap and a trumpet kazoo, which is a kind of whistle. There was also a pack of post cards. Believe me, all the boys were tickled to get their packages.

For entertainment all kinds of singing, music and dancing, but the best of all, mother, was this: There was a collection taken up among the boys and we raised a little over fifteen hundred dollars. This money was used to buy the poor children clothes and presents. Then we had about two hundred of them come on the ship and we gave them a big turkey dinner, and had all kinds of amusement for them. We had the ship decorated in fine shape.

I would like to tell you more about the people and the country around here but we can't write anything like that while on this side.

We haven't received any mail for sometime but are expecting some most any day.

I haven't received a letter from you for almost two months. Maybe you haven't written. I wish you would send me a big box of home made candy. If you do send anything send it by parcel post and I'll be sure to get it. Goodbye till you hear from me again.

FORMER HEPPNER BOY IS NOW IN FRANCE

Elwyn Shipley is Native Son and is Now "Over There" to Fight the Hun.

From the Parma, Idaho, Review, handed to us by W. W. Smead of this city, we take the following letter by the grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Smead, Elwyn Shipley, who, according to later reports, is now with General Pershing's expeditionary forces in France. The letter was written to his mother, Mrs. Guy Boyd of Parma, before young Shipley had sailed.

Dear Mother: We are going to leave in the next day or so, I believe. All the extra clothes are packed up and shipped to the boat, and we are expecting orders to move at any time.

I haven't gotten any of the boxes you were telling about, and I suppose they are going across. I got the watch and money day before yesterday and also the papers and two letters, and I sure was glad to get them. I needed the money to get a new shaving outfit.

I haven't had time to write because they have been keeping us in hot water about leaving. We have been packing up and unpacking for the last five days. The captain came and notified us at 11 o'clock last night that we were to have our bags packed at six o'clock this morning, and we had to get up at four this morning to get ready.

Thank Guy for the money for me. I told you before that I took out $10,000 insurance just before I went to the hospital, and am going to make an allotment of $15 as soon as I can.

This is a great camp. It has accommodations for about 40,000 men. There are big furnaces and plenty of coal to burn, which is more than the average New Yorker has during this cold spell. It certainly has been cold here. 18 degrees below zero, and a much more penetrating cold than we have out west.

There is only one chance in a thousand of me finding the box which I lost. I have done everything I can to get it, but it can't be found. You see when anything gets lost in a town like New York its worse than looking for a needle in a haystack. Everything I had except what was on my back was lost, including my kodak, razor, toilet articles, clothes, a housewife and everything.

Your son,
ELWYN SHIPLEY.
WOOD AND COAL.
I handle Rock Springs coal, all kinds of cord wood and slab wood.

PURITY LEAGUE BESTED IN "THE CLEAN-UP"

The Purity League, self-appointed censor of Weston's morals, decided that "The Girl and the Garter" was a show unfit for exhibition in that community. Stuart Adams, who hailed from Weston, was advance agent of the show and to make matters more difficult was in love with Hazel Richards, daughter of the leader of the Purity League. Her father had witnessed the performance of "The Girl and the Garter" in New York attending as he declared, to see "just how shocking it was." Added to the necessity of large attendance because the show was doing poor business along its route, Stuart Adams faced a trying situation when he landed in Weston in advance of the company. How the Purity League was baffled, through the connivance of Hazel Richards, added to the skill of Stuart Adams in "starting something," has been assembled in lively episodes and thrilling scenes by Bluebird photoplays in the presentation of "The Clean-Up," announced as the attraction at the Star theatre on Saturday Feb. 2 with Franklin Farnum and Brownie Vernon playing the leading roles. Martha Mattox, Claire McDowell, Mary Talbot, Mark Fenton, Clyde Benson, Albert McQuarrie and William Human will provide supporting characters to sustain the interesting and fast-moving situations that lead to the much desired happy outcome. That it's a Bluebird is assurance, in advance, that worth while entertainment will be provided on "Bluebird Day."

"THE SNARL" STARS BESSIE BARRISCALE

Bessie Barriscale plays twin sisters in a new Triangle play, "The Snarl," produced under the supervision of Thomas H. Ince, which will be shown at the Star theatre Tuesday and Wednesday. For continuous suspense and perfection of the mystifying dual role this play stands out as a screen gem. Miss Barriscale has never created finer character studies than the twin sisters, one of noble, inspirational charm and the other a frivolous creature without soul. The story, which is by Leona Hutson and Lambert Hillyer, concerns Helen Dean, who on the eve of her operatic debut is crippled. Her sister, Marion, a vain, selfish girl, is substituted to act the part, while Helen sings the words from behind the scenes. Intoxicated with praise and the admiration of men, Marion ignores all dictates of conscience and morality and pursues a course that involves the destinies of her sister, a young millionaire and his secretary. Charles Gunn is leading man for the star, and Howard Hickman, Aggie Herring, Thomas Guise and J. Barney Sherry form the supporting company. The production was directed by Raymond B. West, with art supervision by Robert Brunton.

CARMEL MYERS AND ELMO LINCOLN IN "MIGHT AND THE MAN"

Elmo Lincoln, known as the Hercules of the screen, and Carmel Myers, one of the Triangle star beauties, are featured in "Might and the Man," which will be exhibited at the Star theatre February 3-4. The picture combines scenes of riotous comedy, with episodes of mystery and thrill. Lincoln appears as a trainer in Clancy's sanitarium for broken down millionaires. He puts his patients through ridiculous exercises that almost cause them to rebel. Among the victims is a steel manufacturer who is expecting plans of a submarine destroyer from the government. A spy of a foreign power attempts to gain possession of these documents, but the gymnasium trainer frustrates the scheme and because of his athletic physique attracts the daughter of the manufacturer. He fancies himself in love with her until he makes the acquaintance of the cook, a star pie baker. Then he decides he prefers genius to beauty.

TRIANGLE PLAYS AT STAR ARE PROVING POPULAR

The Triangle feature plays at the Star theatre are proving popular. If the comments of theater goers are any indication of the worth of these pictures.

Anyone who missed seeing Chas. Ray in "The Pinchhitter" this week, missed a treat that rarely comes this way, except from such high class Triangle productions as Manager Sparks is now showing. Chas. Ray makes the best interpretation of a green awkward, bashful country boy that you could imagine. So well does he play the part that it seems his natural character and you couldn't help but feel sorry for him.

When he left his father's home down in Vermont to attend school at Williams College, he was just about the greenest boy that ever came in from the farm. He finally makes good though, and his time comes when he takes his place at the bat in the last half of the ninth inning, with the score standing 7 to 6 for the opponents, one man on, and two out. Chas. hit the ball so hard it went away over the fence and down into Main street. From that time on, his confidence made it easier for him. It is a great play.

Are Doing Some Good Road Work.

Louis J. Padberg and J. R. Jackson are doing some good work on a piece of road extending from the Padberg place to Willow creek, south of Lexington. These men have been doing this work voluntarily, just as they had time from their other farm duties. They are using the Padberg caterpillar and dragging two road scrapers. Mr. Jackson is a master hand when it comes to directing a road scraper, and seems to thoroughly understand the proper way of grading up a road. People who have gone over this work pronounce it excellent. The road immediately packs and becomes firm, is properly graded to the center so that it drains and the water is carried off. They have fixed up about two and a half miles of the road and will put some five miles in shape if they find time to do the work. The caterpillar is proving the proper power for moving the scrapers and the road should be in good shape the entire season by looking after the filling of holes when they appear.
