CATTLE ROUNDUP IN NEW HART PLAY.

Twenty Thousand Head of Cattle Filmed in Triangle Feature "Wolf Lowry."

Those who never visited the west would receive a great surprise if they could see the large expanse of country that is necessary for cattle grazing. Very few people realize the area necessary to graze one head of beef per year. Twelve thousand acres of good grazing ground is necessary to sustain 1,500 head of cattle throughout the year, or, in other words, it takes eight acres per head.

In the new Triangle-Ince production "Wolf Lowry," starring William S. Hart, the scenario called for the showing of large herds of cattle. Hart, who appears as a ranchman for the first time in his career, accompanied by Cliff Smith, his assistant, and Camera Man Joe August, spent a week on the Mexican border, the point nearest Los Angeles, raining cattle in large numbers.

"I located a herd," said Hart, "and had about forty punchers round them up. Before 'shooting' the scenes I asked my camera man to guess as to the number of the herd. After looking down into the valley for several minutes he answered that there must be at least 20,000 head. I then gave him orders to film the scene. There were only 1,500 head, but I had secured the effect I wanted. You would be surprised at the amount of territory 1,500 head can cover."

"WOLF LOWRY" STARS WILLIAM S. HART.

"Wolf Lowry" is the title of the new Triangle-Ince play starring William S. Hart at the Star theater Sunday and Monday. It is produced under the direction of Thomas H. Ince and was written by Charles Turner Dazey.

As "Wolf" Lowry Hart turns from the grim, warrior-like ranchman to a man of softer nature. This great change in his life is brought about by meeting Mary Davis, who he thinks is a settler taking a claim in the midst of his domain. His friendship for her develops into love, and he becomes her champion.

Buck Fanning, a designing real estate agent, visits her and makes coarse and violent love. Lowry, on his way to see Mary, arrives in time to save her and gives Buck one minute to live, but she persuades "Wolf" not to kill him. Margery Wilson appears as the girl who enters the somber life of "Wolf" Lowry. Aaron Edwards as Buck Fanning, the real estate agent and former gambler, and Carl Uilman as Owen Thorpe are among those in the supporting cast.

Not So Altruistic.

"I'm working hard to get several of my friends on an investigation committee," announced Congressman Fluddub. "That shows goodfellowship on your part. Who is the committee going to investigate?"

Entirely.

"Would you call a girl who plays the harp a harpy?" "Depends on how she plays it."

Always Uneasy.

"I suppose you travel on Easy street now with your big car?" "No sir. The traffic cops have fixed it so there is no easy street for the motorist."

Handicapped.

(Boston Transcript.) Winnie couldn't get her doll to sit up as she wanted it, and after many vain attempts she banged it down, exclaiming: "Oh, I wish I belonged to a family that swears!"

DAVIS DISTRICT.

Leona Blackwell, one of the Davis school students, made a trip to Ione last Saturday.

The income tax has straightened the wrinkles for some of our people. About four of our citizens came in for a share of this.

The time of the Davis Sunday school has been changed from 2:30 p. m. to 11 a. m.

Audrey Hall has completed his eighth grade work and is no longer a student at Davis school.

The Christopherson family are having the chicken pox for a change.

Roy Ray hauled a tank of water and a load of wood for the school last week.

Unsafe Experiment.
The party of tourists were watching Professor X as he exhumed the wrapt body of an ancient Egyptian. "Judging from the utensils about him," remarked the professor, "this mummy must have been an Egyptian plumber."
"Wouldn't it be interesting," said a romantic young lady, "if we could bring him to life?"
"Interesting but a bit risky," returned the professor. "Somebody might have to pay him for his time."
