DISKING INFESTED AREAS DESTROYS HOPPER EGGS

Routing out Embryonic Forms Exposes Them to Attacks of Weather and Enemies.

Oregon Agricultural College, Corvallis, Nov. 6.—Disking the relatively limited areas in which grasshopper egg deposits are massed is one of the two effective control measures for hoppers practiced by Oregon farmers. "Right now is the time when most effective work is being done in routing out the vast quantities of eggs and exposing them to attacks of bad weather, birds, and other enemies," says B. G. Thompson, federal and agricultural college insect field specialist. "The grasshoppers that will damage the crops next season are now in the egg stage and great masses of them may be destroyed by disking."

The eggs are relatively large and straw colored, and are deposited in bean-shaped capsules with 25 to 30 eggs each. The capsules are half an inch long and covered with earth. They are found around grass roots in unfertilized soils, along fence rows, and in waste places where they are protected from the weather.

"The egg areas seldom exceed two or three acres in extent and frequently are no larger than a table top. Within this space the egg masses are crowded thick. They are mostly within the two inches of surface soil, which should be thoroughly stirred to that depth. The areas may again be harrowed or disked next March or April to expose the eggs that escaped the fall disking."

"Grasshoppers do an immense amount of damage each year in Eastern and Southern Oregon and indications are that they will appear in great numbers next spring."

SUPPORTS LAID FOR UNIVERSITY Y. M. HUT

Two Story Building with Total Seating Capacity of 750, to Cost $8,700.

University of Oregon, Eugene, Nov. 4.—Supports have been laid for the new University Y. M. C. A. hut between the library and the Oregon building on Thirteenth street. It is to be a regular two-story hut, fifty by ninety feet, containing an auditorium, game room, reading room, social room, showers and bath rooms, and is expected to be ready for occupancy in a month's time. The auditorium will have a seating capacity of 300, and it is to be equipped with a stage and movie apparatus. The game room, reading and social rooms will be so arranged that they can be thrown into the auditorium when necessary, increasing its seating capacity to 750. A canteen will probably be established in the hut.

W. O. Heckart, a Eugene contractor, has charge of the construction of the building and William F. Vance, Y. M. C. A. secretary, will have charge as soon as the hut is completed. Dr. Vance has just recently arrived from Caldwell, Idaho.

The national Y. M. C. A. has appropriated $8,700 to be used for the benefit of the soldiers in the University camps. This means that the organization of the red triangle is putting on the campus $2,100 more than the United War Drive is asking from the campus. The University of Oregon is expected to give $6,500 for war work during the week of the drive, November 11 to 18.

C. A. Morey and wife were in town for a short time on Tuesday afternoon. Mr. Morey states that the influenza was quite prevalent throughout the Strawberry district the past few weeks but that it is now about all over. The school was going at the time the epidemic broke out and most every family had its share. The cases were mostly light.

OUR STEADY SUBSCRIBER.

"How dear to our hearts is the steady subscriber Who pays in advance at the birth of each year; Who lays down the money and does it right gladly, And casts around the office a halo of cheer. Who never says, 'Stop it; I cannot afford it I'm getting more papers now than I can read.' But always says, 'Send it; our people all like it— In fact we all think it a help and a need.' How welcome his check when it reaches our sanctum, How it makes our pulse throb; how it makes our hearts dance. We outwardly thank him; we inwardly bless him— The steady subscriber who pays in advance." —Adopted from C. C. Chapman's Oregon Voter.

People of Heppner now travel the "saw dust trail" when they go to the butcher shop. Henry Schwarz has adopted this Billy Sunday method of inducing people to come his way, which is, of course rather a different destination from that in which Billy exhorts his followers to travel.
