DEMOCRATIC PARTY
 NEEDS REORGANIZING

Dissatisfaction With Wilson's Reticence on Peace Plans—Cabinet Superannuated.

By David Lawrence.
 (Copyright, 1918, by N. Y. Evening Post, Inc.)
 Washington, November 25.—President Wilson is himself so strong an advocate of frankness in public business and politics that he will not mistake the sincerity of purpose and disinterestedness of his many friends who believe that he is face to face with a crisis in his own career both as the leader of the Democratic party and the representative of America at the Peace Conference.

Briefly, there is a dissatisfaction and discontent inside the Democratic party of which the public has hitherto had no hint, but which, if left uncorrected by the President himself, will mean that as he goes to Europe he will leave behind a dejected and depressed following whose enthusiasm for him will have been seriously diminished.

Men who are not officeholders but unselfish friends of the President are grieved and disappointed. They are not Republicans, they are not his political foes, but they are the men who helped elect him in 1912 and in 1916, and they are talking earnestly among themselves about what can be done to make the President see that he must clean house, that he must reorganize his entire Cabinet and that he must, indeed, reorganize the Democratic party in Congress so that he will have advisers in the Executive branch of the Government and leaders in the Legislative branch who are in sympathy with the true wishes and spirit of the American people.

After talking with dozens of these men, the names of any one of whom, if published, would carry the conviction that they are seeking only things which will help and not hurt the President, one gets a consensus of opinion which is unmistakable.
 Here and there are suggestions of method which differ, here and there are different degrees of dissatisfaction, but, put categorically, these are some of the mistakes which the President himself is declared to have made or to be making today:

First, the President in his absorption in foreign questions, has gotten out of touch with the true spirit of America on domestic questions. He has listened to a small group of advisers who have had his ear to the exclusion of the greater group of friends who come from the Middle West and West and sections of the East where people are finding it difficult to reconcile the brand of democracy which Mr. Wilson preached at the outset of his Administration with the retention of distinctly autocratic and bureaucratic advisers and with his own seclusiveness.

Second, the friends of the President are unable to understand why George Creel should be taken to Europe as the head of any committee on public information when Mr.
 Creel, notwithstanding his fine personality and close personal friendship for the President and sympathy with the Wilson ideas, has lost the confidence of the American press, and thereby the people.

Third, the friends of Mr. Wilson believe a grave mistake was made in announcing the dispatch of Mr.
 Creel to Europe at the same time that Postmaster-General Burleson was permitted to take over control of the Atlantic cables. These things have been denounced as "colossal blunders," not merely by Republicans, but by Mr. Wilson's most loyal friends, who mean nothing personal by it either.

Fourth they believe that Mr. Wilson's Cabinet is superannuated, and in a rut, and that the resignation of William Gibbs McAdoo deprives the Administration of one of its most efficient public servants, and that the President should have never permitted him to resign until after reconstruction was well under way, or at least Mr. Wilson had returned from Europe.

Fifth, they consider that Southern domination in Congress and elsewhere will prove fatal to the Democratic party's chances to regain the confidence of Western electorates.

Sixth, they are deeply disappointed that Mr. Wilson himself should have kept himself aloof from the various States, who have sought to aid him in the past, and that he should have depended so much on his own judgment or the advice of a small group of provincially minded advisers.

Seventh, and most important of all there is a deep-rooted feeling that Mr. Wilson has not taken ac-

Does the Farmer Make the Country, or Does the Country Make the Farmer?

At one time, I was almost convinced that the country makes the farmer—but now, I feel differ-ently.

I have been thinking of the farmers that live in this community; the farmers that come to this yard to buy their building materials, and I have decided that the farmer makes the country.

You have made two blades grow where one formerly grew.

That is why I say the farmers of this community have made it what it is.

Some of you were pioneers—the days were longer then for there were fewer comforts—there were fewer people on the roads.

First, you built a small home, barn or stock shed.
 Perhaps, you would not call it home today, but it was a protection to your loved ones. And, that is what we call home.

Mother Nature has done her share, for we have had rain, sun and wind. But, without your labor, the weeds would overrun the best of farm land.
 You have taken a lot from the soil this year—a good crop and at top prices.

Let this community of farmers prove beyond a doubt that it is the farmer that makes the country.
 You can do this by building your wife a new home.
 She has earned it—a home with conveniences in the kitchen—a home that will save steps—a home that is warm in Winter and cool in Summer—a home that will be economical to build and economical in the arrangement of space.

You have been successful because you worked.
 We want to prove to you that we can be successful for the same reason.

We all like to be successful. We like to show our neighborhood farmers and business men that we are doing more than our part to live up to what the successful farmer and business man should do.

We will do our part.

Will you do yours?

Will your stock sheds take care of the cattle?
 Are they warm? And, have you plenty of light in them? Remember, light kills germ, foul odors and makes better, beefier, and healthier stock.

How is your fence? We have posts that are as good as a pair of old-fashioned knit socks. Successful farming and a good fence go hand in hand.

Do you need a walk leading from the house to the barn and sheds? Don't track mud into the house. Help keep it clean.

When you come to town with grain and farm products, don't drive home with an empty wagon.
 Load her up with lumber and coal. Do this now for a car shortage may deprive you of the supplies later.

Do you need some battens for the barn? Make it as warm as possible. Line the inside with tar-paper. Re-hang the old doors that do not fit.

And, by all means, protect your machinery from the weather. You would not allow your automobile to stand out all winter. Then, why leave your implements out?

And, how about the hen house? Make it dry and warm. The chickens will reward you by announcing in their own way "big, big, big, big, big egg Big egg."

My company is at your service. Come in and talk these things over. We will gladly help you in every way, and remember one price to all. There is at least one grade for the work that will give you the best job for the least amount of money.

We want to play our part in building up good farm buildings, by helping you. By rendering you SERVICE.

All stock is up to grade, bright, fresh and easy to work.

You like this country—we like it—but no town or country will ever be so good we can't improve it.

Mike found that the chew stayed with him for a long

It goes further—that's why you
