A son was born to the wife of J. C. Sharp in this city on Friday, Jan. 31st. Mother and child doing well.

John Olden left for Hillsboro on Sunday, where he is called on business in connection with the estate of the late M. A. Olden, his father.

C. E. Hensley, the Singer machine man, is over from his home at Hermiston this week, negotiating some machine sales in this vicinity.

Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Ayers returned home from Portland on Sunday. Mrs. Ayers was called to the city by the death of her brother-in-law, Thos. J. Conway.

Chas. Osten has been in town for some time getting a new set of teeth. He had been Hooverizing for some time but finally decided that picking was getting too short.

Mrs. D. W. Boltrott arrived home on Thursday last from an extended visit with relatives in Illinois and Kentucky. She has been absent for the past three months.

Fred Teague is home from Camp Lewis and will become identified again with the farming interests of Morrow county, he having received an honorable discharge from the service.

Mrs. C. L. Keithly returned home on Saturday from Wolf Creek, Ore., where she has been for the past three weeks helping care for the family of her brother, all of whom were down with the flu.

Miss Amy McHaley was taken to Portland on Sunday, where it is hoped the change in altitude will prove beneficial to her health. She was accompanied by her mother, Mrs. Mary McHaley and Dr. J. H. Fell.

John Boyd was at Parkers Mill recently getting some repair work done on his wood saw. He was driving his mule team, which he says are not to be trusted as they will run away at the drop of the hat. They are aged respectively 76 and 106 years.

Samuel Swanson, capitalist and erstwhile railroad contractor, who some 36 years ago landed in Pendleton, where he had contracts of railroad building, has been in Heppner for several days this week. Mr. Swanson deals extensively in real estate and has a considerable tract of land in this county north of Ione.

Paul Gemell arrived home Sunday, having secured his release from Uncle Sam's Navy. Paul enlisted in April, 1917, and has seen a lot of service and made many trips of interest, being fortunate enough to be at Brest, France upon the arrival there of President Wilson, and his vessel acted as one of the convoys of the George Washington into the harbor.

B. Sparks, manager of the Star theater of this city, was over from Condon the first of the week. He states that the flu ban has been lifted there and that he has opened up for business again. The Star theater opened for business in this city last evening. The new pipe organ is now installed and a fine class of music will be provided for the patrons of the show.

Rain, snow and frosty weather has held up construction work on several different buildings going up in Heppner this week. The contractor had just about finished the pouring of concrete on the Case building when the weather turned a little too cold, and wet weather has interfered with much of the other work. The Tuma-Lum people have gone right on, however with the fixing up of their new premises.

Marshall Phelps arrived home on Sunday for a visit with his parents. Marshall has been with the aero squadron and was located in France, not many miles from Paris, but did not get a chance to visit that city. His company were about ready to go into action when the armistice was declared, and then it was 'bout face and return to the U. S. Having enlisted for four years, Marshall is here on extended furlough and as a consequence cannot say how long he will remain.

School convened on Monday with practically a normal attendance in all departments, and now the pupils will get down to business in good shape, trying to make up for lost time. Just four school months in which to make up their grades, and the term has been shortened from nine to six months on account of the epidemic. We hope that nothing will arise to interfere with the work being continued now until the end of the term.

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Wyland returned to their Hardman home on Tuesday, after having spent several days in Heppner while returning from Portland. They had been called to Portland on account of the very serious illness of their daughter, Miss Naoma, who was suffering with the influenza and took sick while on a visit with friends in the city. For many days it seemed that Miss Wyland could not live, but she finally recovered sufficiently to be brought home, and after resting for a few days at Heppner she was able to go on out to Hardman.

Sheriff Shutt and Deputy Cason picked up a "wild man" in the south part of town on Sunday and on being examined as to his sanity it was decided to furnish his transportation for a distance down the line, it appearing that he was not sufficiently "buggy" to permit of his being committed to the asylum for treatment. This is evidently the party that has for several weeks past been causing some concern by his peculiar actions on Big and Little Butter creeks. The man is a Dane and claimed to come from South Dakota and stated that he was on his way to California.

S. E. Notson received a fine picture from his son Edward on Monday evening. It is a photograph of Battery D, 127th Artillery and was taken at the barracks at Newport News, Va., before the boys embarked for England and they were fully equipped, each man wearing his "tin" hat. They all have the appearance of being determined to make short work of the Hun when they should get into action on the battle field, but unfortunately the armistice came a little too soon for the boys to show what they are made of. Edward occupied a prominent place in the picture which Mr. Notson will have framed.
