Arnold Sale a Big Success.
A large crowd of farmers attended the public sale which T. M. Arnold held at the Stanton ranch last Saturday. E. E. Miller was auctioneer and nearly everything sold brought a good price. Mr. and Mrs. Arnold have spent a number of years in Morrow county and have made a large number of friends who regret to see them leave. The Arnolds have purchased a home near Sunnyside, Wash., and expect to move there in the near future.

Foolish Question.
She came down to breakfast very late and her mother spanned her severely. "Did that man kiss you last night?" she asked.
"Now, mother," said the sweet young thing, blushing, "do you suppose he came all the way from Great Lakes to hear me sing?"—Pittsburg Chronicle-Telegraph.

duction of the best herd, which averaged 1392 pounds of milk with 47.56 pounds fat. The heaviest milk producer was a Holstein cow giving 1779 pounds milk, and the biggest fat yielders were a Holstein and a grade Jersey giving 76.14 pounds and each.

Oregon Food Coolers Famous.
Oregon iceless refrigerators, the kind used in many Josephine county homes, have the call. Their fame has reached one woman in Florida and another in Virginia, who have written Miss Ruth Corbett, some demonstration agent, for directions for making them.

Very few publications seemed to have survived the war times as well as The Red Cross Magazine, a monthly publication owned by the American Red Cross. The October number is particularly attractive and features a story of our great Northwest by Anne Shannon Monroe, illustrated by Charles Sarka who knows this country as he knows his art. Hardly less interesting is an article "Theodore Roosevelt, the Father" by Herman Hagedorn. A number of interesting photographs of the great American in his family life are a feature of this article and one may recognize Theodore, Jr., and Kermit, who as a flyer, gave his life in the World War.

Ellis Parker Butler, Dr. Frank Crane, Frank Ward O'Malley, and Walter Pritchard Eaton are but a few of the well known name in the magazine world who contributed to the October number. Such illustrators as James Montgomery Flagg, J. E. Allen and Maginal DeWright Enright have contributed decorations. One expects an atmosphere of iodine and bandages in the Red Cross Magazine and it is a relief to find instead good fiction and interesting articles.

Largest Yield Known.
H. M. Gunn secured 22 sacks of alfalfa seed off five acres recently, which is said to be the best yield so far on the project. Ames & Strohm's alfalfa huller was secured to do the work. The 22 sacks would make the seed average about 55 bushels off the five acres.—Hermiston Herald.

Many Cows Tested.
Just 3737 Oregon cows were tested for milk production by the six testing associations in August. Their average yield was 697.52 pounds of milk carrying 30.44 pounds fat. Big as this yield is it is far below the pro-

POPULAR POET COMES TO IONE CHAUTAUQU

Marshall Louis Mertins Comes on Second Night.

Marshall Louis Mertins, staff poet of the Kansas City Star and contributor to many of the national magazines, is to be in the West this year on the Festival. "Who's Who in America" rates him as a poet and writer, but the Chautauqu platform has claimed him because of his brilliant talent as a humorist and lecturer. He speaks with a delightful Southern drawl, tells stories with unusual charm and recites a few poems from his latest book of verse, "The Wishing Gate and Other Poems." But back of all this he has a splendid lecture of real inspirational value.
