

Health in Trapshooting.
The great and popular detective of fiction, Sherlock Holmes, once admitted that a man's knees were the seat of great enlightenment and from this source he drew many of his deductions. He may, therefore, scrutinize with interest a trapshooter's knees while he is in action. Do they wobble? He is a seasoned shooter in good physical condition. Do they wobble? He is anxious, perhaps a little new at the game but so happy and willing to get that next target he cares little whether the sun shines or the equinoctial is on.

It is a fascinating sport without placing any strain on the nervous system. In fact, trapshooting strengthens the nerves. It combines sport with fresh air and sunshine and saves many doctors' bills. Physicians and nurses recommend the sport as a health tonic, and if the patients follow the advice given there will not be much need for the physician and the nurse.—Forest and Stream.

Homer.
Homer is an epic poet and not a historian, so it is quite natural that he should have exaggerated everything with poetic license. Moreover, the events which he describes are so marvelous that many scholars have long doubted the very existence of Troy and have considered the city to be a mere invention of the poet's fancy. I venture to hope that the civilized world will not only not be disappointed that the city of Priam has shown itself to be scarcely a twentieth part as large as was to be expected from the statements of the Iliad, but that on the contrary, it will accept with delight and enthusiasm the certainty that Ilium did really exist, that a large portion of it has now been brought to light and that Homer, even although he exaggerates, nevertheless sings of events that actually happened.—Robertson.

Mrs. T. J. Humphreys was hostess on Tuesday afternoon to a large number of the members of the Christian Women's Board of Missions. An interesting program was given, after which light refreshments were served.

HAROLD C. KESSINGER IS "BOY SENATOR"

Youngest Man in the Country to Be Honored With Senatorship.

Senator Harold C. Kessinger

Senator Harold C. Kessinger of Illinois chose the platform, just as other young men choose the law, medicine or journalism. He made careful preparation and for five years has been a highly successful lecturer. His ability as an orator and his knowledge of modern history and economic questions attracted the attention of civic and political leaders of his home community and he was elected to the Illinois House of Representatives. He is now a State Senator and probably the youngest man ever elected to that office in the nation.

Senator Kessinger will be here soon on the Lyceum course with one of the best lectures of the year. You will find it constructive and thought-compelling, packed with solid facts and clean humor and given with rapid fire delivery.

Lost—Somewhere between Lexington and Juniper Canyon, one 30x3 1/2 Hartford tire with rim. Finder will please leave at The Gazette-Times.

Trade at Home

There are hundreds of swindlers in the land who take people's money for subscriptions and move on to the next town to spend it. Usually these confidence men offer magazines at greatly reduced prices. No standard magazine, that is, no magazine you really want, permits anyone to reduce its price. You cannot buy the kind of subscription you want, cheaper than thru your newsdealer.
