MAGIC IN GOLD AND HUMOR

How Happy Combination of the Two Put End to "Run" on Famous English Bank.

A story is told, with some reservation, by a London paper, concerning the grandfather of the well-known Quaker peer, Lord Peckover. The story goes that, during a run on the bank of which he was a principal, at one time known as that of Gurney, Bickbeck, Peckover & Co., he exhibited, within sight of the counter, a bag full of gold, surmounted by a peck measure also filled with sovereigns. "You see," he explained to the depositors anxious to draw their balances, "that there is enough money for you all, and a peck over." This is said to have terrified the run. So the magic of gold, and of humor. One feels by no means certain that stacks of "fivers" would have achieved the same happy result. Or, to revert to the time of George III, when the sum of twopenny was represented by a solid two-ounce coin, would a large pile of these weighty "centwheels" have allayed the fears of the small depositor? No! Not even a ware houseful!—Christian Science Monitor.

Hope Not All Abandoned.

Miss Threeways was watching the grizzly bear in his new cage to the northwest of the lion house. A recently constructed chain of bear and other animal cages there has added immensely to the attraction of the place.

Somebody threw the old grizzly a peanut, and then another, but both nuts hit the bars and fell just outside the cage. The bear reached his paw through and tried to scoop the tramping nuts in, but his long, yellow claws seemed to be in his way.

He had to use his claws as a sort of rake, and the spaces between the prongs of his rake proved too wide, so the peanuts slipped through.

Miss Threeways was most sympathetic. The poor bear couldn't get his peanuts. But there was yet hope. The keeper would be around shortly with the bear's dinner, and ground— "Maybe he can get it wif a fork or a spoon," she said.—Washington Star.

Didn't Work Out Right.

A languid swell was visiting a charming young society lady, and as they sat on either side of the fire his heart was full of the burning desire to say something not only complimentary, but brilliantly flattering. So after revolving the matter in his mind, he said: "Ah, Miss Lillie, why are those fire-tongs so like me?"

He meant her to guess, or ask him to tell her, "because they were prostrate at her feet," or something of that kind.

Miss Lillie, looking solemnly demure, said she didn't know, unless it was because they had two thin legs and a brass head.

He was groping blindly for the front door before she had recovered from the shock of her own volley.

"The Woman Who Fed London."

One of the most interesting figures brought into the limelight of publicity during England's great railway strike was Miss E. M. Hopwood, now called "the woman who fed London." Miss Hopwood was secretary to a large commercial firm in the north of England, and her business ability was so well recognized that when the ministry of food was organized, she was called to the service of the government. She scored such success in her emergency warwork that she was appointed at the distributing of railway strike as food distributor for the whole metropolitan area.

Depends on the Result.

"Does you admire determination in a man's character?"

"That depends. If it brings success I praise it as splendid perseverance. If failure, I denounce it as confounded obstinacy."—Boston Transcript.

Is Your Hook Baited Right?

For every species of fish and condition of water there is the proper bait which, when used, will give the greatest number of finny beauties in the basket at the end of the day's sport. The wise angler acquaints himself with this lore and his efforts are productive of greater results than the one who uses any kind of bait for any kind of fish in any kind of water.

Just so, there are in every locality certain ways for the merchant to increase his sales and among these advertising stands out preeminently. But the wise advertiser soon learns that advertising in itself will produce but few results if the medium used is not the best. In Heppner, close attention to the mediums the advertiser has at his command shows conclusively that The Gazette-Times is the choice of local advertisers, and what is just as significant, the choice of large national advertisers, with whom advertising is a science and who judge a measure and solely by the standard of results obtained. That these large contracts are renewed every year is one of the strongest recommendations of the effectiveness of G.-T. advertising.

Place your advertising in The Gazette-Times and your judgment will be vindicated by the results obtained.
