"Stuffing" papers on the Sunday edition of the Seattle Daily Times was a boyhood occupation for Edward F. Sultan every Saturday night. He admits himself that he got to be a regular "whizz" at putting the various sections of the big newspaper in their proper places in making up the edition for presentation to Times readers. Mr. Sultan now travels for the Lestle-Judge company and appears to be as dexterous in landing subscriptions for these nationally read magazines, Judge and Leslies, as he was in boyhood days doing the "stuffing" act. Mr. Sultan was a visitor in Heppner on Tuesday.

Henry Stender and E. H. Turner, well known wheat farmers of the Ione section, were in Heppner on Tuesday attending to business matters. They are feeling jubilant over the exceptionally heavy rains which have visited their fields during the last few days and say that the crop situation has been greatly improved. Mr. Turner states that his son, Raymond, who is convalescing in the army hospital at Camp Lewis, is recovering satisfactorily. The young man received a shrapnel wound in both legs while in the service overseas, and the best of surgical skill and attention was all that saved him from losing one leg, which was quite badly torn.

If—
An Oregon family of four had $100 a month to get along on in 1913, but had grown into a family of ten with only $45 a month income in 1920, how in the world would it live?

That Is the Case With

The State University, the Agricultural College, and the Oregon Normal. In 1913 they had 2250 students; now they have 5400. And $1 in 1913 is only as good as 45 cents today, in purchasing power.

If You Yourself Were Responsible could you carry on the work of the College, University and Normal on the same state support as in 1913?

You Could Not.

Neither can the State University, the Agricultural College, and the Normal School do it. Will you not help these three institutions to continue their useful and productive work for Oregon by voting on May 21 for the Higher Educational relief measure?

Silk Blouses that Offer You the Sum of Many Savings

Made of Georgette and Crepe-de-chine

THE wholly unique, efficient and economical co-operative manner in which these Blouses were acquired, makes it possible for you to exercise in their purchase the sum of many savings. Briefly summed up, they are

1. Saving in material costs.
2. Savings in cost of making.
3. Savings in overhead costs.
4. Savings of all selling expenses.

The materials out of which these Blouses are made, were purchased at prices radically under costs today; the saving in making costs, resulting from their manufacture in vast quantities, the same styles having been made for one good store in practically every city of consequence throughout the country; the lower overhead cost and the elimination of selling expense result from the contract manner in which the Blouses came to us.

This is a rare Blouse opportunity, one that you should not miss if economy means anything to you. The quantity is limited and no more of the same styles will be obtainable.
