FARM BUREAU NEWS

(From the Morrow County Farm Bureau News.)

Sheepmen Take Definite Action

Farm Bureaus of Three Counties Arrange Meeting.

Acting on the suggestion of the Farm Bureaus of Morrow, Umatilla and Walla Walla counties, the President of the Wool Growers Association called a committee meeting of the leading sheepmen of the three counties, at Pendleton on April 13. To this meeting as delegates representing the Morrow County Farm Bureau went R. W. Turner, Co-operative Marketing Committee man, Ed Neill and W. W. Howard. The meeting was also attended by a large number of sheepmen from Umatilla county. After considering plans for the Marketing of the extra sheep and lambs available over the Northwest, the question of marketing wool was taken up and a committee appointed to go to Portland to confer with business men of the wool game in the metropolis, as well as western growers, to ascertain what could be done in connection with organizing a central wool market for Northwest wool. As delegates to this meeting from Morrow county went Ed Neill of Butter Creek, Jack Hynd of Ceell, Pat Mollahan and Frank McMenamain from Heppner, and the County Agent. This was also attended by a number of growers from Umatilla county, Walla Walla county, and Douglas county as well as representatives of the State Marketing Bureau at Corvallis. The various warehouses had representatives there as well as many of the wool buyers of the northwest, and several manufacturers. The spirit of cooperation that was manifested at this meeting by everybody concerned was decidedly gratifying. The manufacturer is keenly interested in providing a market in which he can buy wool whenever needed. The grower is likewise interested, because in such a market alone can he secure the real benefit of his labor. At the present time the speculator largely figures as a means of financing the wool grower. The committee members were unanimous in deciding that it would be preferable to try to create a special large wool center at Portland, rather than holding wool sales over the Northwest. On May first, Saturday afternoon, the people of Morrow county will see what may be done in the line of fixing wages, providing wool facilities for sheep, and any other matters which may come in line with a definite re-organization of the Wool Growers Association. It is hoped that this general discussion of the problems of the sheepmen will result in definite action which will get results for the future. Every man interested in the sheep industry should plan to be on hand.

A Carload of Wire

Several of the farmers of Morrow county have inquired at this office as to the possibility of saving money by shipping a carload of wire. In this connection, will say that the Deschutes county Farm Bureau was able to save quite a large amount of money a year ago by pooling their order and shipping a carload from the eastern factories. We did not find that we would be able to buy of the Portland dealers or anywhere along the coast in a way to save money to be of material benefit, and we are positive that the only way that the farmers here can save money on a shipment of wire is by going in together and putting up the money and having it shipped direct from the factories. In this connection last year we were able to save a little better than 20 per cent. We do not know what can be done at the present time. Last year our order was finally placed through one of the local dealers, and they insisted in making us a carload by having some for their own store. We assume that this could be done here. We have now 12 miles of netting listed for shipment. We would be very glad to hear from any members of the Farm Bureau or anyone who desires to become a member and who contemplates building a fence. Now as to the kind of wire that would be included in this order, almost any kind of barbed wire or wire fence netting or poultry netting or anything of that kind, and anything that will go under the head of wire we can nearly include in this proposition. Let us hear from you if you are interested. It will require six weeks to get the shipment here, it will probably require about six weeks for us to assemble this order.

Pruning Your Trees

Different kinds of trees require different treatment, but the first part of this article applies to trees in general, the rest to apple trees in particular.

1. Prune the roots at planting time. Thin out all crowding and interfering roots. Cut away all broken ends.

2. Prune the top to correspond substantially with the loss of root by removing from the nursery, and the Messrs. Teal, Minor & Winfree of Portland, Oregon, will be furnished the successful bidder.

The Court reserves the right to reject any and all bids. The assessed valuation of the taxable property of the County is $14,046,730.54.

J. A. WATERS, Clerk.

pruning. There is a natural balance between the root system and the top system of a tree which should not be too radically disturbed.

In apple trees the main thing is to develop a permanent tree structure. If the tree is a 1-year-old and puts out a poor head, rehead it. Have never less than four, or more than six leaders. Have the leaders spaced up and down on the trunk so as not to form bad crotches. Have the leaders spaced around the tree so that no leader is directly under another, but let each have a position of its own, so that when you look directly down the tree, the leaders look like spokes of a wheel. When the leaders have grown to be about five and a half to six feet high, cut them back about four and one-half to five feet high. The next year after this is done, the first series of permanent fruit-bearing laterals will come out within a foot or 18 inches of the top of the leader. Select two to four of the best laterals in a permanent position and cut the others off. Leave some of the low laterals for temporary bearing. These can be cut off after they have borne four or five years. The strong inside shoots that come inside the tree opposite the first series of permanent laterals should be wrapped together to grow into living braces where needed. Cut the leader two or three feet above the first series according to the variety and the next year bring out a second series of permanent laterals. The idea is to have a permanent tree, with the fruit-bearing laterals in a permanent position, thus the tree has the maximum amount of fruit-bearing wood, a very important point for the fruit-growers in a country where the trees bear so heavily. If this method is carried out it will not be necessary to cut large limbs out of the tree when they get older.

If wool was worth 55c per pound in 1919 it should be worth $1.00 this year, it cost that much more.

Do you get your money's worth out of the Farm Bureau? If not why not? Its for you. Maybe you better get busy.

Doctor McClure Speaks on Wool

Wool in Good Suit Costs Only $5.35.

The statement of H. R. King of Seattle in an address before the National Retail Clothiers' Association at Chicago that clothing prices will advance from 26 to 40 per cent, partly because of higher wool prices, was characterized as "absurd" by Dr. S. W. McClure of Salt Lake, secretary of the National Wool Growers' Association. Mr. King said before the clothiers that Australian wool has increased from $1.14 a pound in 1914 to $4.10 a pound now.

"The truth of the matter is that wool is no higher in Boston, the wool market of the country, today than it was 90 days ago," Dr. McClure declared, "and the highest price yet paid for clean scoured wool in Boston is around $2.10 per pound for the very finest grade. Ordinary three-eighths blood wool, out of which soldiers' uniforms were made and which is the most useful grade for clothing purposes, is selling today in Boston at from $1.30 to $1.40 per pound scoured. This wool has not advanced in the last 90 days.

"To manufacture a suit of a man's clothing, suitable for the average-sized individual and made of medium winter-weight goods, requires about 62 ounces of wool, which can be bought in Boston today at $5.25. This is on the presumption that the suit is made of all-wool. Such suits as this retail today at from $60 to $75.

"If one were to use the very finest wool grown in this suit, not more than $7 worth could be used.

"The price of wool has not been responsible for the advances in the price of clothing and even at present wool values the wool required to manufacture a suit represents less than 10 per cent of the price at which such a suit is retailed.

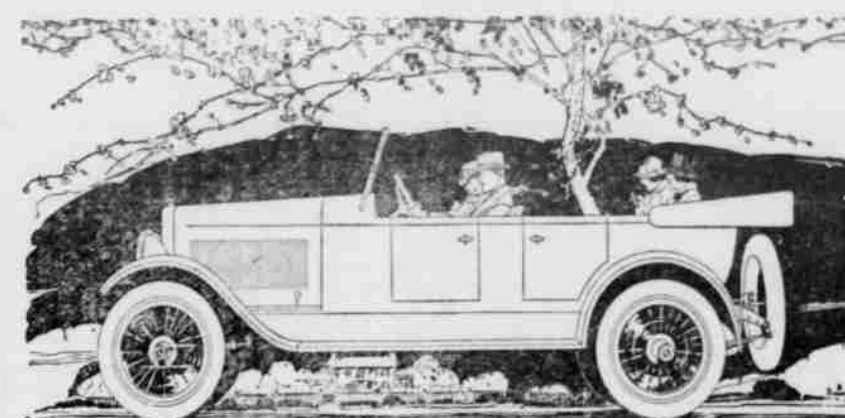

"There may be some reason for advancing the price of clothing," Dr. McClure asserted, "but it cannot be blamed on the price of wool."

The Labor Situation

State Chamber of Commerce Makes Investigation.

We are in receipt of a communication from Secretary Quayle of the State Chamber of Commerce, stating that after considerable investigation of labor conditions all over the United States, they find the available labor supply to be at least 10 per cent less than last year all over the United States, and the State of Oregon is not less than 85 per cent of a normal quota. Morrow county so far has felt the labor situation quite keenly in the livestock business and to a considerable extent in the grain section. What the conditions will be during harvest can only be conjectured. It would seem that we would likely face a serious shortage, however we cannot be sure as conditions might change. The arrangements which we have made with Portland agencies for supplying help here we have been able to secure a great many people from the State metropolis, but not as many as we would of liked. We hope that we can make better arrangements for harvest than we have been able to make for spring seeding.

Is Your Hook Baited Right?

For every species of fish and condition of water there is the proper bait which, when used, will give the greatest number of finny beauties in the basket at the end of the day's sport. The wise angler acquaints himself with this lore and his efforts are productive of greater results than the one who uses any kind of bait for any kind of fish in any kind of water.

Just so, there are in every locality certain ways for the merchant to increase his sales and among these advertising stands out preeminently. But the wise advertiser soon learns that advertising in itself will produce but few results if the medium used is not the best. In Heppner, close attention to the mediums the advertiser has at his command shows conclusively that The Gazette-Times is the choice of local advertisers, and what is just as significant, the choice of large national advertisers, with whom advertising is a science and who judge a medium solely by the standard of the results obtained. That these large contracts are renewed every year is one of the strongest recommendations of the effectiveness of G.-T. advertising.

Place your advertising in The Gazette-Times and your judgment will be vindicated by the results obtained.
