STATE NEWS - - - SPECIAL FEATURE SECTION

Under this heading each week will be found up-to-the-minute news of the world in picture and text, showing the doings of the great, the near-great and those who are striving to become great.—Items of general news interest gathered from over the state at large.—Women's activities and fashions.—Humor from the leading humorous papers.

First Picture of Democrats Nominating Their Candidates

This first picture of the Democratic convention at San Francisco shows the vast concourse of 10,000 delegates and spectators in the new million-dollar Auditorium. Senator Robinson of Arkansas, permanent chairman, can be seen on the platform, immediately under the giant electric amplifier, which carries the speaker's voice to every corner of the big hall. In the foreground are members of the press, newspapermen from all over the world. The various state delegations are on the ground floor under state banners.

OVER NIAGARA FALLS IN A BARREL

Add the name of C. J. Stephens of Bristol, England, as the last person to go over Niagara in a barrel. Stephens since his earliest recollection has been able to perform the most hazardous stunts without the slightest fear. As he is returning to his home he uses this method purely as a business item. The spectacular has little appeal for him.

A preliminary survey of 10 Oregon canneries has already been made under the direction of Professor Wiegand—those of Newberg, McMinnville, Spring Brook, Gresham, Fall City, Lebanon, Junction City, Eugene Fruit Growers Association, Creswell, and Roseburg.

This inspection is entirely voluntary on the part of the canneries which pay a certain fee per case for all cases packed. These canneries agree to live up to the rules and regulations of the inspection service, according to Professor Wiegand. Eventually daily inspection will be made, adequate force being employed to handle the work. All fruit received at the plant will be inspected and the entire process of canning observed by the inspectors.

No employee will be allowed to handle fruit who is not fit to do so. Even the machinery will come under inspection. The walls in each plant must be whitewashed to meet the federal and state rules of the association. Chester Roche of Corvallis, a senior in horticulture at the college, specializing in horticultural products, has been made deputy inspector.

This inspecting work is the result of an advertising campaign being conducted by the National Canners association which is attempting to bring before the housewives the value of canned goods from the standpoint of healthfulness. The association inspection seal will be fixed to each can of food put out by canneries which have subscribed to inspection service of the association. This seal will assure the purchaser that the product was sound before canning, was handled by cleanly employees under strict sanitary conditions, points out Professor Wiegand.

Isackson-Gibson
An event of last week was the wedding of Edna Isackson and Joe Gibson, which took place at the home of the bride's brother, Wm. Porter, in East Portland, Friday evening, July 2 at 5 o'clock. An impressive ring ceremony was read by Rev. Bowersox, which was witnessed by relatives and intimate friends.

The living room was artistically decorated with pink roses, sweet peas and marguerites.
The bride looked very attractive in a gown of crepe de chine and lace. Following the ceremony refreshments were served and later the couple left for The Dalles to visit friends. The groom has charge of a ranch near home, where they will make their home.

BORN—In this city on Friday, July 9, to Mr. and Mrs. Arthur McAtee, a son.

LIVE NEWS ABOUT OREGON INDUSTRIES

Pendleton, Ore.—The picturesque Indian has been outdone at his own original industry of making blankets. Navajos of this vicinity are dressing almost exclusively in blankets manufactured by the Pendleton Woolen Mills. While unsurpassed in its field as a rug, the native Navajo weave is too heavy for a body covering, and is being discarded by the red men in favor of the machine-made article. Pendleton blankets have won a reputation throughout the world. Patterns used in the blankets, modeled after the Indian design, are as distinctive as those of the Orient or ancient Egypt.

Portland, Ore.—Worn out carpets or woollen goods of any kind can now be converted into rugs of any desired weave by the Northwest Rug company, which has just added to its equipment the latest and most efficient machines in the market. Many of the hotels and theaters of this city have been supplied with rugs by this factory an order of 400 rugs for Weiser, Idaho, has just been filled, and a large number of mail orders is being received from points as far distant as Hawaii and Alaska.

Gold Hill, Ore.—New development of one of the oldest hard-rock mines of the 1851 gold fields has yielded pay shoots averaging $28 a ton. The mine is located between Gold Hill and Jacksonville. The vein recently uncovered is believed to be the source of the placer gold that put Jacksonville on the map.

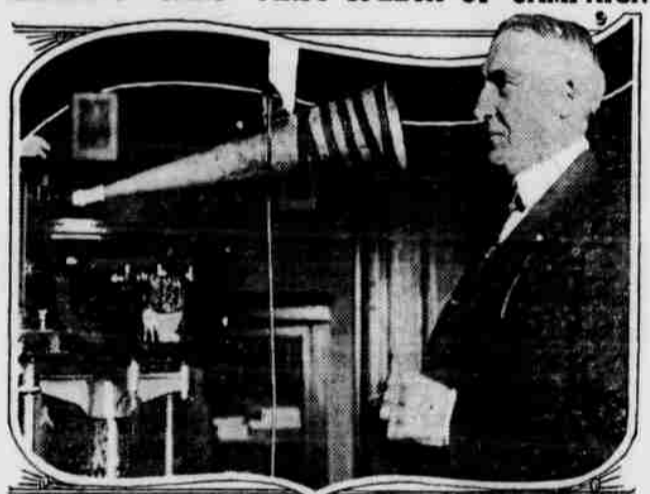

Portland, Ore.—Another statewide newspaper advertising campaign is soon to be launched by the Associated Industries of Oregon to call the attention of the people of this state to Oregon products. Display advertisements will be inserted in 35 Oregon newspapers.

Portland, Ore.—Expansion of Oregon's markets to the four corners of the earth has greatly increased the demand for tin cans here. As a consequence, the American Can company has applied for a permit to construct a three-story concrete plant on a tract recently purchased in north Portland, which will be devoted entirely to the manufacture of cans. With its equipment, the new structure will cost well over $1,000,000.

Portland, Ore.—Brooms for every purpose are manufactured by a local plant which lists 375 distinct varieties.

Marshfield, Ore.—Markets of the northern part of the state will be invaded by the local dairymen's as-

HARDING "CANS" FIRST SPEECH OF CAMPAIGN

Senator Harding, Republican presidential nominee, delivers his first campaign address into a phonograph. With an audience of one individual, the operator of the machine, the senator makes his initial speech on "Americanism," which will be distributed throughout the country. An address by Calvin Coolidge, vice presidential nominee, appears on the reverse side.

NEW FALL HATS IN EMBROIDERED FELT

This chic fall creation is of hand-embroidered felt, the brim alone being the field for design. A rather narrow band encircling the high crown and bowed in front. The ends of the ribbon finished with either little balls or tassels. The under side of the brim is faced with delicate-tinted silk, preferably pink or blue, giving a beautiful cast of reflected light upon the face.

association, which has just purchased a $49,000 plant on the waterfront.

Grants Pass, Ore.—The Oregon Growers' association has completed plans for a new packing plant to be built here.

Salem, Ore.—The new plant of the Oregon Pulp and Paper company, under construction here, is expected to be in operation in about two months. It will be one of the most modern paper manufacturing plants in the country. F. W. Leadbetter is president of the company and Joseph Kaster manager.

Portland, Ore.—The eyes of many eastern visitors, who had thought of Oregon only as an agricultural state, were opened during the convention by the displays of Oregon-made articles in Portland store windows. Particularly fine displays were made of confectionery and woollen goods.

Eugene, Ore.—Material benefits from bringing Shriners from all parts of the country to Oregon have already appeared here. A New York Shriner purchased a ranch near this city for $37,000.

Eugene, Ore.—A mill established here for the sole purpose of grinding fir trees into excelsior now employs 128 men in the woods.

Medford, Ore.—A plant costing $40,000 will be erected here by the Mutual Creamery company.

INSPECTION WORK WILL AID OREGON INDUSTRIES

Preliminary Survey is Made of 10 Oregon Canneries—Work is Under Prof. E. H. Wiegand.

That the inspection work just started by the National Canners association will be a great thing, not only for the canning industry of Oregon, but also for the housewives, is the opinion of Ernest H. Wiegand, of the horticultural products department of the college, who was recently appointed director of the inspection service of the association, in Or-

Warren G. Harding and Will H. Hays

The Republican nominee receiving the congratulations of the man who will manage his campaign. Senator Harding has been selected to head the Republican ticket and Will H. Hays is Chairman of the Republican National Committee.
