Mr. Gibbs Jollies the Sheepmen.

The following letter from J. W. Gibbs, the trapper, has been handed to the Gazette-Times with the request that we give it publication. Mr. Gibbs was employed by the sheepmen of this county to wage a war on the coyotes and bob cats.

"I have been trapping coyotes and cats in the vicinity of Big and Little Butter creeks for the stockmen and regret to state that I have got to lay-off for a spell as I have most of the sheepmen about broke, or at least badly bent. I don't follow the trapping business for the sport altogether. It is business with me, a matter of dollars and cents. I am a professional at this trapping business and expect my pay when I get the coyotes and cats.

"I have had some trouble in collecting from some of the signers, one gentleman among them refusing to pay, saying that he would rather use the money to buy moonshine.

"Therefore I have turned the matter over to a wide-awake, reliable attorney.

"During the past two months I have brought many a pesky marauder to account, having caught 45 coyotes and cats within a thirty mile radius of the John Kilkenny ranch on upper Hinton creek. I took five coyotes in three nights from John Kilkenny's buck pasture. These coyotes had killed many a fine buck for Mr. Kilkenny.

Mr. John certainly appreciates what I have done for him and has paid every cent that was coming without batting an eye. Gentry, Hynd and Wiselworth were all very much interested in the work I have done.

"For every coyote I kill, I receive $23.25 and 45 coyotes at $23.25 is a nice little stake for Gibbs and enables him to keep up with the high cost of living. I am planning a trip to Seaside where I expect to enjoy myself on some of the easy money I have picked up.

I will admit that I don't make my money altogether by trapping but a good line of talk helps some with Mr. Sheepman, getting him to sign his doom. Good bye all of you until you sell some wool, then I'll drop in and catch another bunch of coyotes and cats. I do hope you fellows will be a little more liberal with your change.
