

DAY'S DISQUIETUDE AILING WOOL MARKET

(Pendleton Post Oregonian)
The low wool market is not due to over-production, but to a general feeling of uncertainty which will probably be dispelled after election, says Dan P. Smythe, prominent wool grower who returned yesterday after a two month stay in Chicago.

Mr. Smythe says that because of the general trend, people are expecting lower prices and are therefore curtailing purchases. Where a wholesale dealer formerly sold a retailer a hundred dozen suits, he now sells about a hundred garments, according to the wool man. Mr. Smythe remarks that it is a difficult thing to bring down the price of suits from $30 to $40 by paying less for wool when the amount of wool in a suit coat about $8 when wool was at its highest.

Mr. Smythe was in Chicago to look after the sale of mutton and says that the results were quite satisfactory. Three million carcasses of New Zealand lambs, killed two years ago, had a tendency to hold prices down, but he believes that this will be overcome as the meat is of inferior quality.

Money is tight in the East, says the local man, who visited New York and Boston, but he thinks there will be a healthier tone after election. He was surprised at the amount of building in Chicago and New York, a dozen or more buildings being in process of construction on Fifth avenue. He noticed a building impetus also in Wisconsin, Minnesota and Nebraska.

Round-Up Drink Advertisers Fined Heavily In Portland

The Pendleton Round-Up may set back the clock a few years so far as the jolly expiring cowboy and the declining wild life of the plains are concerned, says the Portland Telegram, but on the time element of the prohibition laws the lapse was not effective. Harking back to the days of hard and legal liquor, M. J. Ingalls and Geo. Geyer, who were running a jitney between Pendleton and the Round-Up grounds, took on a glee-erous jax.

"Ever 'body wot takes sha ride retah sha drink?" they shouted in careless hallyhoo from their machine. Among their many passengers was a federal officer, who not only sampled their liquor, but acquired a quart bottle for evidence. The men said they were too drunk to know. Nevertheless they were fined $250 each and their new $2700 automobile was labeled under the prohibition law and was sold at public auction by the government.

W. W. Cryder Returns
W. W. Cryder, formerly supervisor of the Umatilla National forest and more recently head of the Malheur forest, has resigned from the forest service. With Mrs. Cryder and son, he has returned to Pendleton and expects to remain here.—Pendleton E. O.

Mrs. L. N. Traver is in the city from Corvallis.

Star On Honeymoon.

Some months before coming to California to produce a screen version for Paramount of Clyde Fick's celebrated comedy, "Girls," which will be shown at the Star theatre this week, Marguerite Clark, dainty and popular screen star, was married to Lieut. H. P. Williams. She was accompanied on her trip west by her husband. They were cordially received by the California officials of the company and took up their residence in a beautiful home prepared for them before their arrival. Taken all in all, the trip is a sort of honeymoon excursion for the happy couple.

POLITICAL MEETING.

Heppner, Oregon, Oct. 12, 1920.
To my friends and fellow voters of Morrow County: We are going to have the largest and most entertaining republican rally in Heppner, about the 22nd of October. Definite announcement in next Thursday's Gazette-Times. I have provided ample room to hold everybody and give all seats. I will read the prelude to my campaign song and sing my song, and I will give you a generous entertainment on my violin. There will be a goodly number of eminent speakers that will present the issues of this campaign in a clear, comprehensive and entertaining manner. You have always had faith in old Harry Cummings and I assure you you will not be disappointed this time. The errors of last meeting enables us to avoid them in this. Everybody will be treated right and given an enjoyable evening regardless of political affiliations.
Cordially,
HARRY CUMMINGS.

A Good Provider.

(Los Angeles Times.)
One day when Robert Lansing was secretary of state an old negro woman made her way into his office and asked him to use his influence to obtain a pardon for her husband, who was in jail.
"What's he in for?" asked Mr. Lansing.
"Fo' nothin' but stealin' a ham," explained his wife.
"You don't want him pardoned," argued Mr. Lansing. "If he got out he would very likely only make trouble for you again."
"Deed I does want him out of dat place," she objected. "I need dat man."
"Why do you need him?" inquired Mr. Lansing.
"Me an' de children," she said, "needs another ham!"

Republicans for Stanfield

Harding Needs Republican Senate
Oregon Needs Protective Tariff

AS IS GENERALLY KNOWN the present Republican majority in the United States Senate is just one vote. Republican control of that body is therefore, in jeopardy. It is the realization of this fact which is causing Oregon's Republicans to unite in support of the candidacy of the Republican nominee for United States Senator, Robert N. Stanfield. With a difference of only one in the present Senate, Republican voters have awakened to the fact that if they vote for George E. Chamberlain they may by that very act be turning the control of the Senate over to the Democrats. On the other hand, by electing Robert N. Stanfield it is possible that his single vote may give the Republicans control of the Senate, and thus put that body solidly back of Harding.

R. N. STANFIELD

Oregon producers are fearful of the effect that the election of Cox and a Democratic Senate would have upon them. It is quite evident that under Democratic rule rival products of foreign origin would offer a serious menace to many Oregon products. If the American standard of living is to be maintained, Oregon farmers, livestock men, fruit growers, lumbermen and woolgrowers must receive a price for their products which will enable them to make a reasonable profit over and above the cost of production. They will be unable to obtain such reasonable profit, or any profit at all, unless a Republican administration is elected to levy protective tariff duties just high enough to save our producers from the ruinous competition threatened by Canadian wheat and lumber, New Zealand butter, Australian wool, Argentine corn and beef, European beet sugar, South American meat and hides and Manchurian beans and peas.

To hamper a Republican President with a Democratic Senate flies in the face of the well accepted principle that governmental management should be centered so that the people can correctly place the responsibility for success or failure. The feeling among Oregon Republicans is, therefore, becoming quite general that Harding, if elected, is entitled to the support of a Republican Senate and that, therefore Oregon should elect the Republican Senatorial nominee, Robert N. Stanfield, to help back up Harding.
