

4. Hypnotic Mystery.
 In a hypnotic mystery, the most that can be said is that the hypnotic power of the woman who was hypnotized was used to kill a man before she was hypnotized. The hypnotic power of the woman who was hypnotized was used to kill a man before she was hypnotized. The hypnotic power of the woman who was hypnotized was used to kill a man before she was hypnotized.

Boy Scouts Dinner.
 The Boy Scouts have now completed their organization of two patrols known as the Crow patrol with Ried Hunsick as patrol leader, together with Charles Nelson, Robert Tash, Johnny Turner, Crockett Spruells and Lawrence Coppenhaver. The other is the Wolf patrol, Duward Tash leader, and his patrol consists of Sam Van Vactor, bagler, Jim Thomson, Vawter Parker, Phillip Mahoney and Louis Parker.
 These were invited by Scout Master Livingstone and wife to dinner at his home on Friday evening last. Mrs. Livingstone prepared a chicken, pie dinner for the occasion and this was followed with an evening of games. The occasion was a delightful one for all present.

We were kindly remembered this week by our old friend, Eph Eskelson of Salem. Mr. Eskelson is nicely located in a fine home at Salem but states that he can't get along very well without the home paper. We thank him for his kindly expression of good wishes.
 W. O. Livingstone, pastor of the Christian church, has been elected vice-president of the board of Oregon Christian Missionary convention, to take the place of Rev. Russell, who has removed from the Eastern Oregon district. Mr. Russell was formerly at The Dalles.

 Samuel Goldwyn Presents WILL ROGERS in
'The Strange Boarder'
 THE CAREER OF AN HONEST MAN IN A CROOKED WORLD.
 Faith without miracles, trust without reward, honesty without encouragement — and yet this big, brawny westerner, Sam Gardner, portrayed by Will Rogers, never lost his faith in human nature. "The Strange Boarder" is an inspiration to every naturally honest man and woman — and the world is honest save for a few scoundrels that lurk on the borderland of decency. Don't miss "The Strange Boarder." It will give you the laugh and thrill of your life. It will strengthen your faith in your fellow men.

Saturday - Jan 8, 1921 - Saturday
 H. B. WARNER in
"One Hour Before Dawn"
 A PLAY TO CHALLENGE YOUR POWERS OF DEDUCTION. SEE IT.
 As was demonstrated when "One Hour Before Dawn" played to capacity audiences at the Capitol Theatre, New York, the world's largest theatre, this Jesse B. Hampton feature starring H. B. Warner, has the power to hold people spellbound with its baffling mystery, heart-throbbing suspense, and its tender love story.
 An adaptation of Mansfield Scott's book, "Behind Red Curtains," it is not the usual type of murder mystery, for herein hypnotism plays a prominent part. It stings the mind into action. It is far more puzzling than the Elwell murder case that baffled New York's cleverest detectives.
 Do you believe a hypnotist has the power to make a good man do an evil thing? Or does the vine will rule? "One Hour Before Dawn" answers these questions in the screen's most baffling and entertaining mystery.

Sunday - January 9 - Sunday
Harry Carey in "West Is West"
 Drama Beneath the Earth. Stirring Action in Deep Mines of West Supplant the Rough Riding of Other Days.
 The story of a cowboy with brains—a natural free-lance who uses his head as well as his horse; of how he settles a miners' strike by shirtsleeve diplomacy, wins a fortune for his friends as well as for himself, and makes a certain young lady realize she is not too good for him.

Monday and Tuesday Jan. 10-11 Monday and Tuesday
 Richard A. Roland and Maxwell Karger Present
Nazimova in "THE BRAT"
 A DRAMA OF LOFTY DEVOTION DEVELOPED FROM THE DREGS OF EXISTENCE.
 Adapted by Nazimova and Charles Bryant from the sensational stage success written and starred in by Maude Fulton, and put into scenario form by the clever June Mathis, "The Brat" is a screen epic. It tells the story of a slum child with a woman's heart. It begins with her life in the chorus of a cheap musical comedy. It peeps behind the scenes into a realm of unreality, heavy with the odor of grease paint and glittering with the tinsel of frivolity.
