Dairy Herd May Open
Brisk Alfalfa Market

Good Cow Will Turn One Ton of Hay
Into 1000 Pounds of Milk With 65
Pounds of Butterfat.

Oregon Agricultural College, Corvallis, Jan. 12.—Why not try selling surplus alfalfa hay through products of a dairy herd?

"Alfalfa is selling at a much lower price than for several years," says E. R.
Pitts, professor of dairy extension at O.
A. C. "In fact the market is glutted in some districts with no outlet in sight."

"A material start was made in dairying in some of the alfalfa growing districts just prior to the war, but with higher prices for hay and a labor shortage there was a stampede to sell the dairy cow and take what seemed like ready money in raising and selling hay.
Now with conditions again returning to normal the dairy cow looms on the horizon as the best channel for marketing this important crop."

"The alfalfa grower who kept his cows received good prices for hay fed them, and now has a position of vantage as he still has a good market for his crops."

A good cow yields 60 to 75 pounds of butterfat from one ton of alfalfa hay eaten, and in addition releases 1000 pounds of skim milk that is valuable as feed for calves, swine and poultry.

Marketing the hay in concentrated form of dairy, pork and poultry products saves handling and shipping. It is true conservation, Professor Pitts points out.

"Good cows can" now be bought at reasonable prices," he declares, "and alfalfa men should give serious consideration to this opportunity for building up a permanent market for their surplus hay and at the same time add a new industry to their community by entering in the dairy business. The monthly pay check will prove a real asset, and the farm will become increasingly fertile."

Experiment Station Report.
Scientific farm practice as developed and recommended by the Oregon Experiment station should be kept years in advance of general farm practice in order that the new methods, crops and varieties may be fully tested before offered to the farmer, says James T. Jarvis, director, in his report for 1919-20 just out of the college press. Much information that has added to the profits of farming, and even more facts under investigation with promise of eventual solution, are explained in the report.

Western Land & Irrigation Company Changes Hands

All the property of the Western Land & Irrigation Co. was sold Dec. 13 to the Central Trust & Safe Deposit Co., of Cincinnati, Ohio. The sale followed a foreclosure suit brought by the trust company, which held a first mortgage on the holdings of the irrigation company. In addition to all the ditches, head gates and water rights of the company, six thousand acres of land is included in the sale. The purchase price was $106,000. It is understood that the purchasing company will operate and maintain the ditch in good shape, and it is stated that the change of ownership will probably operate to the advantage of the land owners under this ditch. The sale does not effect the status of individuals who bought land from the old company. Several Echo people who had claims against the irrigation company, totaling about $30,000 will lose their security by the sale, however. These claims were secured by a second mortgage on the ditch property. There is a stated period, however, during which the second mortgage holders may redeem the property if they desire to do so. Nearly $175,000 has been spent on this property by the trust company, besides such advances and interest on the bonds. The ditch is the source of supply for the Alton, Fairview and Courtland ditches. All the water for these being taken from the Clatsop river through the direction works of the Western Land—Irrigation Co.

New Farm Account Book.

A new edition of the Oregon farm account book has just been issued by the U. S. C. extension service and United States department of agriculture as simple and complete and efficient as can be made. Just what the farm did for the farmer—whether it made him or lost him money, and how much—and which of the leading farm operations—livestock, dairy, crops, fruit, forest or pasture—were profitable, are only a few of the useful points developed in proper accounts. The farmer's gross and net profits, labor income, interest on investment, and other interesting items, are ascertained. Copies may be had of county agents in counties carrying record projects from banks cooperating with the college and government, or from the college extension service direct on application to G. A. C. Corvallis, and payment of actual production cost.

Stiles Harris came down from Hardman Monday for a few supplies necessary to keep the wolf from his door during the remaining winter months. Stiles is the original genuine homesteader of the Hardman section, and we take it from what he has told us, he still resides on this homestead, where he will liberate for the next few months, read the "Literary Digest" and the Kansas City Star, and withal enjoy a season of intellectual feasting and contentment of soul.

The Telephone Company and Wages
Salaries and wages constitute 72% of the expenses of this company. Out of every dollar spent by the telephone company, 72 cents is turned over to its employees in the form of compensation. It is our purpose to retain competent and experienced employees. An efficient and contented organization is the main factor in good service.
The deficit in earnings which we have experienced in Oregon has been largely augmented by necessary increases to our employees. It will be of interest to our Oregon patrons to know what our increased expense for salaries and wages in Oregon has been since 1916 as shown in one of the exhibits filed with the Public Service Commission in connection with our recent application for an increase in telephone rates.
Increase in wages of Plant employees, present over 1916. $ 307,000
Increase in wages of Traffic (operating) employees, present over 1916. 681,000 Increase in wages of Commercial employees, present over 1916. 38,000 Total annual increase in wages. $1,026,000
Although these large increases in wages have been made they represent approximately a 60% increase over pre-war wages, as compared with increases of over 100% in many other trades and occupations requiring no greater skill or preparation on the part of the worker. We do not think our employees' wages should be reduced under present conditions or under conditions now possible to forecast.
