"You may be Sure"

says the Good Judge

That you are getting full value for your money when you use this class of tobacco.

The good, rich, real tobacco taste lasts so long, you don't need a fresh chew nearly as often—nor do you need so big a chew as you did with the ordinary kind.

Any man who has used the Real Tobacco Chew will tell you that.

EVERY PERSON who does business with this bank is a customer, and is accorded a cheerful, helpful service at all times.

In accord with accommodation to every customer, we regard it as a privilege rather than a mere duty or favor. We believe in business being conducted on a friendly basis, certainly the business of banking where so many seek helpful counsel in the conduct of their monetary affairs.

Perhaps that is one of the principal reasons for the success of this bank. It is one of the reasons why we would like the opportunity of explaining our service at greater length to you. Drop in some time and ask us about it.

FARMERS & STOCKGROWERS NATIONAL BANK

DRAFT GREAT GRAIN SELLING PLAN FOR FARMERS

Here are the men who drafted one of the most gigantic and revolutionary grain selling plans in the history of the nation and which is to be put into operation by the farmers, if action taken at Chicago, April 14, does not go amiss. The picture is one of the "Farmers Committee of Seventeen" of the American Farm Bureau Federation. In the center is Chairman C. H. Gustafson, of Lincoln, Neb., and C. H. Hyde, of Oklahoma, one of the leaders. Their plan was drafted after nearly two years investigation. It was recommended to the Wheat and Corn Growers of the nation in Chicago this week for ratification. It is planned to create United States Grain Growers Inc. for national and export distribution of corn and wheat, and financed by the grain growers themselves. Herbert Hoover has endorsed the plan.

To Pay National Debt Through Sinking Fund

REPUBLICAN LEADERS INTEND TO USE BILLION PAID HOUSTON TO LESSENING TAXES

Washington, April 12.—Prevention of a financial deficit which might be brought about by a continuance of the policy of the Wilson administration of paying off a billion dollars during the last year on the national debt will be one of the moves of the new administration.

That this is a move for the benefit of the taxpayers may be gathered from the fact that without this huge payment on the national debt, taxes may be perceptibly diminished. Thus the excess profits taxes and the surtaxes, which have been passed on to the consumer until prices have been kited out of sight, will be removed or greatly reduced.

It was provided by the last Congress that the national debt shall be paid at the rate of 2 1/2 per cent of the aggregate amount of victory and liberty bonds outstanding on July 1, 1920, less an amount equal to the par amount of any obligations of foreign governments held by the United States on that date. This percentage amounts to $253,000,000 and the debt will by this means be paid in twenty-five years without great burden to the country.

Secretary of the Treasury Houston, however, just before he went out of office, said that "the war debt should be paid, not perpetuated, and the time to pay it is as soon as possible after the end of the war." In other words, in spite of the fact that the business depression which naturally followed heavy importations of foreign goods without any protective tariff to safeguard American producers, and in spite of the reasoning that it is better to let the entire next generation pay for the war from which it will benefit, the head of the Treasury in the Wilson administration is of the opinion that the debt should be paid off immediately and at enormous sacrifices. And yet it was this same Secretary of the Treasury, backed up by his chief, President Wilson, who permitted the nations of Europe which had borrowed from us to forego their interest.

VOLSTEAD FOR LANDIS.

Washington, April 12.—Impeachment proceedings will not be brought against Federal Judge Kenesaw M. Landis, in the new Congress if Chairman Andrew J. Volstead, of the House Committee on Judiciary can prevent it. He says:

"From a careful investigation of the charges made against Judge Landis and the evidence adduced in their support, I believe the findings are unsupported and the recommendation made in the last Congress for further investigation entirely unjustified. The charge against the judge is that he entered into a certain contract with various baseball associations. The findings that the act of entering upon this contract and of agreeing therein to function as an arbitrator between these baseball associations is inconsistent with a full and adequate performance of the duties of Judge Landis is rather indefinite. If it means that the duties assumed by the judge will take so much of his time and energy as to interfere with his judicial duties, it rests on a mere assumption in support of which there is not the slightest testimony. The judge was first offered a salary of $50,000 a year. He agreed to take $42,500 and give $7,500 to a secretary furnished for the very purpose of relieving the judge from work that might interfere with his judicial duties."

HARDING MAY SEND HIM TO ENGLAND

Col. George Harvey

Uncle Sam's choice diplomatic plum—the ambassadorship to the Court of St. James (England)—will likely go to the man who was most directly responsible for putting Woodrow Wilson in the White House. And his appointment will come from a Republican president, according to reports. He is Col. George Harvey, editor of the North American Review. The noted editor supported President Harding in the recent campaign.

INSULTING.

Two magnificently upholstered women, built on generous lines, as the auto ads say, were waiting in the theater lobby while the crowds streamed by. There came a pretty girl, so pretty indeed that every one turned their heads to admire. As she

IN ERUDITE CIRCLES.

"What is meant by telling the world about it?" asked the spectacled person.

"Why, I don't really know," said Prof. Diggs, with a thoughtful air. "The phrase has recently come into current use. I suppose it means employing all the facilities of the telephone, the telegraph, the cable and the wireless to—ahem—disseminate an important piece of information."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

THE SAME NUMBER.

Little Margery wished to talk over the telephone with her mother, who was visiting a friend, so her elder sister gave her the 'phone number and let her call Central. A few days after this conversation when the mother was paying another visit to the same friend, the older sister overheard Margery at the telephone. Central evidently had been asking for the number, and Margery was explaining, vehemently: "Central, I want the number I had Thursday. Don't you understand? The same number."

HIS TROUBLE.

Father was giving the fair young daughter a lecture about her beau. He exclaimed, "Does he know who pays the light bills? Doesn't he know enough to go home at the right time?" The daughter replied, "Yes."

he knows enough to go, but he was sick last night." With that father started in again. "Don't tell me that a big husky fellow like him was sick. What on earth was the matter with him?" As the fair young daughter started for the door she sang back, "He has heart trouble."

IT DEPENDS.

The senatorial committee was deep in the revision of the tariff, when Senator Lodge remarked: "The tariff question always reminds me of the suburbanite who was delegated by the finer half of the sketch to make a purchase at a downtown department store, but by the time he arrived at the store had forgotten his instructions, so remarked to the clerk: 'I want to buy either a casseroles or a camisole, and I can't remember which. Can you help me out?' And the pert young sales person helped out with: 'It depends on the kind of chicken you want to put in it.'"

WON AT LAST.

Mabel was telling Isabel of the shy young man that had for some months been "gone" on her, but whose suit had languished because he simply hadn't the courage to speak out. Finally, Mabel said, she decided that it was "up to her" to take decisive measures. Accordingly the next time he called she pointed to the carnation in his buttonhole and said: "I'll give you a kiss for that carnation."

Whereupon the bashful suitor's color outdid the carnation in brilliancy, but the exchange was effected. Then the young man grabbed his hat and started to leave the room.

"Where are you going?" demanded Mabel, surprised.

"To the Borist's for more carnations," he called out as he shot through the doorway.—Los Angeles Times.

An Underworld Movie.

(By Albert H. Laidlaw, from the National Republican.)

"How sweetly the goldfish are singing today."

Said Irma Maloney Vangilder; Then through seven reels "Gat" McCann led the cops

Who sought to find out why he killed her.

The picture was labeled "The Thinking Machine,"
Notorious Players, Producers, Whose specialty seemed to be yeggmen and thugs,
White slavers, dope hounds and seducers.

The author was Willard Delaney Swidoux,
Whose right name was William Skinner;
Guynn Maartyn, director; photographers, Ed Van Dusen and Percival Bynner.

Crime One was committed on Riverside Drive

Where Irma, vampish though meaty,

Had lived in a flat with a poodle and wealth

Put up by her millionaire sweetie.

There entered McCann, of the underworld set,

Dolled up with a stick and Tuxedo, A leer in his eye and a sneer on his face

As he said, "Kid, I'm back from Toledo."

"I see," said the woman, who once was his girl,

"But why the swell scenery, dearie?"

"I'd hate to be seen as my natural self,"

He said; "of the cops I feel leery."

"Besides," he declared, with a grimace of hate

Beclouding his front elevation, "You're going with me from this elegant dump.

"With little or no hesitation."

He patted the gat which she knew he had hid

Beneath the dress coat he was wearing,

While she, with a smile meant to register scorn,

Maintained a composure most daring.

"You fathom the tenor of my terse remarks?"

He asked as she gazed in the water.

"How sweetly the goldfish are singing," she chirped,

And, smarting with anger, he shot her.

"Great heavens!" she cried, as her head struck the floor,

"I'd never have thought that you'd do it."

"Remember the oath I took five years ago?"

"Yes, Gat, but how could you hold to it?"

To which he replied not a word, as he sneered

With hatred while Irma was dying, And men in the house were for lynching the thug

While women spectators were crying.

The mystery back of McCann's callous deed

Seemed hopeless of any solution, Until at the end of the seventh wild reel,

With the date set for Gat's execution.

The Thinking Machine was the cause of it all—

A sinister yogi from Burma Who, during a seance, slipped Gat the info

That someone had stolen his Irma.

It took seven reels of most lurid detail,

With many a fight and a quarrel, To prove that unfaithfulness, even by crooks,

Is thought to be highly immoral.
