ARE YOU A "WISHER?"

Many people go through life "wishing" while others start saving and then get the good things that the other people "wish" for.

In which class are you? Get in the saving class. It's easy. A dollar starts you at this bank. We will pay interest on your savings no matter how small they may be. Before long you'll have enough to be really proud of.

Life is cruel. It hasn't much time for the "wisher." But to the person who is backed by a little capital the world opens the doors of opportunity.

Start saving now. That one thing takes you out of the "wishing" class and puts you in the "having" class.

FLIVER TRAINS NOW HAUL FARM PRODUCTS IN WEST

Fliver trains, both passenger and freight, are the newest in transportation developments. They have been adopted by folks of the West and mid-Western States as a logical way to overcome high operating costs of railroads, and they are serving their purpose. All that is needed is the proverbial "streak of rust," then "lizzie" is equipped with flanged wheels and some trailers hooked on behind. Of course, as the photographs show—the passenger car is a bit more pretentious,—nothing like our modern Pullman cars—but it "gets there just the same," say the community folks who ride—and haul their farm products thereon.

Need Emergency Rates If Farmers Are to Exist

YOUNG SHOWS DEADLY EFFECT OF INFUX WITHOUT DUTIES OF FOREIGN PRODUCTS

Washington, April 25.—That the enactment of the emergency agricultural tariff bill is essential if the prosperity of the farmers of the country is to be restored is evidenced by figures presented by Representative George M. Young, of South Dakota, in charge of the bill for the Ways and Means committee in the House. He said:

"The annual consumption of flax in the United States is 25,000,000 bushels. We imported 24,000,000 in 1920. In other words, we imported all of our needs excepting 1,000,000 bushels. We raised in this country last year about 11,000,000 bushels. That leaves 10,000,000 bushels of flax to flood this market and depress the price.

"I will give you a few figures to just show how this works out to the man who raises flax. The total acreage of the United States was 1,785,000 acres in 1920. The total production was 10,990,000 bushels, giving an average yield per acre of 6.2 bushels. About one-third of that flax was grown in North Dakota. The average there was 5.3 bushels per acre. The last quotations, which reached me last night, in the Grand Forks Herald, gives the price at $1.22 per bushel. That would mean $6.47 per acre as the gross return from flax; $6.47 per acre is scandalously below the cost of production. The average cost of raising flax in North Dakota was $15.70 per acre, according to the United States Bureau of Markets. The cost in Minnesota was $21.40 per acre.

"The situation in respect to live stock is of a highly emergency character. During the winter of 1918 and 1919 there was very little snow in the Northwest and in the mountain states, and in the following summer there was a very severe drought which dried up the pastures and meadows, and during the winter of 1919-20 there was need for buying hay and other feed to winter the stock. It is true that during the war the growers of live stock had been able to do fairly well and to accumulate something, but during that winter they had to buy hay that used to cost $4 to $6 a ton and pay $20 to $25 a ton. So that in the spring of 1920 it was a very rare stock raiser of the West who did not owe more to the bank than his stock was worth after the slump came. In other words, after the price of live stock and meat had been deflated, the stock was mortgaged for more than it was worth, and it was impossible for the banks to secure liquidation."

COAT OF PONGEE IS 'DOUBLE HEARTED'

The summer coat for the little tot is as essential to her wardrobe as shoes, in this day of motor cars and evening rides. "Sweet enough to eat" is daddy's verdict when this beautiful little miss presented her new coat. It is of natural pongee, doublehearted and smocked. The stylish tailored hat, made of black, slinky braided, is faced with straw of another color. Both hat and coat are advanced showings as seen at the Rush Terminal Sales Bldg. in New York.

relations with President Harding. This is not due merely to the fact that a great party has returned to power and is anxious to find remedy for the burdens of the taxpayers. Nor is it caused by the seven million majority by which a majority of 170 was swept into power in the House and a majority of 22 gained ascendancy in the Senate. It is considered at the Capitol that its chief cause is the simplicity and mutual esteem in the relationship between Congress and the White House. Members call on the president and are warmly greeted, instead of being coldly received in order to give orders as in the last administration. The president in turn confers with the leaders in Congress upon legislation. Before he sent his message he consulted the members of the Committee on Foreign Relations of the Senate. All of this is done with the idea that it is the natural thing to do. Hence, the president is making headway and, hence, all Republicans in both Senate and House are on the qui vive to help each other and the president in helping the country.

SMILE AWHILE

HIS MISTAKE.

He longed to find the road to fame. But not a highway bore that name. He thought to glory there must be a level path that he should see; But every road to which he came possessed a terrifying name. He never thought that fame might lurk Along the dreary path called Work. He never thought to go and see What marked the road called Industry. Because it seemed too rough and high He passed the road to Service by. Yet had he taken either way He might have come to fame some day. —Detroit Free Press.

MAKING IT EASY.

There was company at dinner, and the son and heir listened to the conversation. During the meal an animated discussion arose regarding the feeling which, some one maintained, still existed between the North and the South. The minister remarked: "The time is coming, not far off when there will be no North, South, East or West, and—" "Won't that be splendid!" interrupted little Willie. "Why does that interest you?" asked the boy's astonished parent. "Because it will be so much easier to learn geography." —National Republican.

"A flirt, am I?" exclaimed Mary Ann, under notice to go. "Well, I know them as flirt more than I do, and with less excuse." She shot a spiteful look at her mistress, and added, "I'm better looking than you. More 'ansome. 'Ow do I know? Your husband told me so." "That will do,"

said her mistress frigidly. "But I aint finished yet," retorted Mary Ann. "Want to know 'oo told me that, ma'am?" "If you mean to suggest my husband—" "No, it wasn't your husband this time," said Mary Ann. "It was your chauffeur." —National Republican.

Fess Praises Harding for New American Note

STRESSING OF DOMESTIC PROBLEMS WILL FIND RESPONSE IN CONGRESS FOR SOLUTION

Washington, April 25.—High praise of President Harding for stressing the domestic problems to be settled by Congress following upon the passage of the Knox peace resolution is voiced by Chairman Simon D. Fess, of the National Republican Congressional Committee.

"I am especially mindful of the words of our great president," said Dr. Fess, "when he announced that we are out of the clouds, with both feet upon the ground and facing the front. How refreshing those words are after eight years of meaningless shibboleths, endless appeals to prejudice, doctrinaire pronouncements upon unrealities, un-American grants of our rights in the name of humanity, and quixotic and persistent discoveries of the millennial dawn. Our president has sounded a note of common sense and we have turned to earth.

"As a matter of fact," the doctor continued, "the problems of reconstruction are real and their solution must be equally practical. Our war debts cannot be liquidated by theory. They must be paid. There is no relief from war burdens save in the homely remedy of thrift and economy. There is no relief from war burdens save through the reduction of the cost of the government. So long as it costs six times the pre-war cost to manage the government there is no chance of relief from taxation burdens.

"Economy is President Harding's watchword, as it is that of the Republican Congress, and the command heads to cut to the bone the cost of executive administration. War taxation, uneconomic and unscientific, must not be tolerated when war is over. Hence, the deadening and paralyzing excess profits tax must go, in order that enterprise may again risk investment in continuance and expansion of industry. These as it must be an inspiration to every citizen to know the president is for. And so, too, emergency tariff legislation should be enacted on behalf of agriculture, the cost of commodities of which has responded to the demands of deflation while the cost of the things the farmer buys has not so responded. Thus, it may be necessary to make investigation to ascertain the cause of the inequity toward the consumer. Profiteering is a temptation which no longer should be tolerated at the expense of the public."

Deserts Chaplin for Ruth as Bali Season Opens

When young America saw little Jack Coghlan take a leading part as the "kid" in a recent Charlie Chaplin movie, every mother's son of them thought him a mighty "lucky" boy to get to play with the funny Charlie. But this new picture—taken when the baseball season opened—confirms their hunch that little Jack is the "luckiest" kid in the world—for there he is—perched right up on "Babe" Ruth's knee, while the king of swat tells him all about hitting out home runs.
