WOOL GROWERS WIN BY TURNING THEIR WOOL INTO FINISHED PRODUCT

REMARKABLE FARM BUREAU ACHIEVEMENT SAVES SITUATION FOR VIRGINIA SHEEP OWNERS IN A HARD PINCH.

By ROBERT FULLER
SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE

Chicago.—Early this summer the situation of the wool growers of Virginia was bad. Their 1920 clip was still unsold. The 1921 clip was still on hand, prices still far below the cost of production.

The Virginia Farm Bureau Federation has not only solved the problem of these wool producers but they now net 30 to 40 per cent above the market price for wool.

The credit is largely due to Mrs. L. S. Copenhaver, publicity director of the Virginia Farm Bureaus. In her old girlhood home at Marion, Va., are many heirlooms and among them are three old coverlets that were in her mother's wedding chest, coverlets of a design that were brought from England, Holland and Sweden two hundred years ago and which the mountain women developed into works of art. She proposed to revive these coverlets and at the same time consume, at a worth while price, the Virginia sheep owners' stagnated wool.

A picturesque little mill run by a small mountain stream and equipped with power looms was found. During the war the owner of the mill had manufactured 50,000 army blankets for the army. His looms could make the coverlets.

Arrangements were made with the weaver and today Virginia Wool growers are receiving from 30 to 45 cents a pound for their wool—30 to 40 per cent above the market price. The mill takes the wool at the rate of 2000 pounds a day and is swamped with orders for coverlets. City club women are assisting in the sale of the coverlets, thus building up a closer cooperation between the city and country in the Old Dominion.

Farm bureaus have solved Virginia wool growers' dilemma by buying their unswold wool and making coverlets of wonderful old designs. Pictures are of old mill that was brought into use; some of the designs and Mrs. Copenhaver who originated the plan.

Poem by Uncle John

THE ANCESTRAL ALBUM

All the folks, I reckon, that admires the works of art. Knows the one collection that is nearest to their heart—such as Paintin's by the masters,—such as Rembrandt or Millay Fetch a power o' money from the nabobs, so they say.— But, in my humble judgement, there's nothin' better shown Than my old family album that our Grandma used to own . . . It's in the simplest bindin'—with a bit of filagree, That gives a faint artistic hint of what you're goin' to see . . . The clasp is easy opened,—simple latch of blue-and-gold, Hintin' stronger of the treasures that its faded pages hold

There's faces there, that brings a mist before a feller's eyes, When we visit in the album, that our Grandma used to prize . . . I reckon search it frequent, and I reckon always will— To find true art exemplified,—which more than fills the bill; I reckon you have got one,—I wouldn't be surprised— For, this here art collection can't be monopolized . . . From patriarch to baby—that can barely set alone— They're all here in the album, that our Grandma used to own.

THE GREAT UNEMPLOYED. "I tell you, my boy," earnestly remarked the benign old professor, "it doesn't pay to be crooked." "I realized that," said bright student replied. "Look at all the corkscrews out of a job."

UNTO THE END. "How's this?" asked the lawyer. "You've named six bankers in your will to be pallbearers. Of course, it's all right, but wouldn't you rather choose some friends with whom you are on better terms?" "No, judge, that's all right. Those fellows have carried me for so long they might as well finish the job."

QUASHED! "What made the jury disagree in that prohibition case?" Webster: "There wasn't enough evidence to go around, so all except the first four jurors voted for a reasonable doubt."

Uncle John's Jests

IN THE BRIGHT LEXICON OF YOUTH THERE'LL BE NO SUCH FUTURE WORD AS SALOON.

You Will Have Just As Much Money But There Will Be Less of It.

Washington, Oct. 3.—The government will soon radically change the form of its paper money which has remained unaltered almost since the foundation of the Republic. This change will be in the direction of bills of smaller measurements, particularly the bills of smaller value. Two reasons justify the change. The first is that of economy. Paper which is now used for government bank notes is made by a secret process and is obtainable only at high cost. At present four bills are made from one sheet of this paper. Under the proposed change five bills will be made from a sheet of the same size. Another reason for the change is to reduce the danger of counterfeiting. If the bills of smaller denominations are made smaller in size while those of large denominations are left the same size as now, it will be impossible for the counterfeiters to raise the $1, $2, $5 and $10 bills to bills of larger denominations.

SMILE AWHILE

UNLIMITED ABILITY. The town band had been royally entertained in a neighboring village where a concert had been given. On the train home the conductor had some trouble getting the ticket of one of the musicians. After several futile attempts to get his fingers into his vest pocket, the musician gave it up and announced:

"I've losht th' dang thing." "Come, come," ejaculated the conductor encouragingly. "You couldn't lose a thing like a railroad ticket." "Oh, I couldn't, hey?" retorted the other with indignation. "Y' don' know me. I just losht the bass drum, thass what I did."

EARLY FALL LIMERICKS There was an old Turk in Thermopylae Who of wives longed to have a monopoly. Said he: "I'll just scare 'em Right into my harem If the silly things won't be won monopoly."

A clergyman told from his text How Samson was barbered and vex. He told it so true That a man in a pew Got rattled and shouted out "Next!" A maiden at college named Breeze, Weighted down by B. A.'s and M. Deezee, Collapsed from the strain. Said her doctor: "Tis plain You're killing yourself by degreaze."

EQUALLY TRUE "The rapidly increasing divorce rate," remarked the wit, "indicates that America is indeed becoming the land of the free." "Yes," replied his prosaic friend, "but the continued marriage rate—that it is still the home of the brave."

FOR MERCHANTS ONLY

MONEY Talks"—according to an old adage, indicating that our cash has human traits.

If it is so, we may have learned the reason for the straying habit of many dollars from this community—they've succumbed to the courtesy and friendliness of our neighbors, the big city merchants and mail order houses.

The city merchants and mail order folks are proving every day that it is profitable to invite OUR DOLLARS over. They do it through advertising.

But the merchants of this community can overcome that—they can establish a more lasting friendship with the community's money—in fact, make regular STAY-AT-HOME DOLLARS—every one.

FIRST—By INVITING THE DOLLARS within shopping distance of this center to TRADE IN THIS COMMUNITY.

SECOND—By renewing that invitation through advertising, week after week, month after month, year after year. That's the way the city merchants and mail order folks do it.

THIRD—The invitation is to tell the dollars about their while things that are in your store for them.

FOURTH—When the dollars come, remember they will only come back again when well treated.

And there is nothing more inviting to the activities of any community than peppy HOME-SPENT DOLLARS.
