HOMEY
PHILOSOPHY
for 1923

NOW is the time for all our philosophers to get busy on "philosophy." Who's smiling because the income tax blanks are out again? Everybody's gettin' the best of it. Here we are sittin' around the table in a friendly game an' we've got to have a klity.
Every cent spent for ourselves share an' share alike. The fellow that can't chip in much isn't asked to, an' the chap that's had luck in the game drops in quite a pile. Seems as if it was a bit mean for the little fellow or the big fellow to dodge the ante. Suppose we fixed it so that everyone had to chip in the same amount before he could sit in. That would be fair enough, wouldn't it?
Boy, the little fellow that's let off lightly ought to smile and the tight wad that's hit hard should smile, too.
He's hit the ball an' won the cigars ahead of the game. Pay up an' cheer up, an' if you want to win the next pot study the game an' play it square.

Mrs. Hiram Knox of Hemphill, Tex., who actively and successfully managed her husband's business of building railroads, running sawmills and bossing lumber crews, claims business rivals urged murder charge now against her in mysterious killing of her husband. All of the West is interested as she was known as "Lady Beautiful" for generous gifts to poor children of Texas. Photo is of Mrs. Knox and her children.

WILLAMETTE IN WORST FLOOD SINCE 1890 REACHES OVER 55 FT. AT NEWBERG

Newberg Graphic Gives Fine Account of Recent Overflow of Willamette.—Horses, Cattle, and Other Animals Lost In Muddy Torrent.—Logging Company Loses Large Rafts of Logs and Forced to Shut Down By High Water.—S. P. Company Crippled.

From NEWBERG GRAPHIC of January 11, 1923.

Once more the Willamette has gone on the rampage and taken toll which will run into the hundreds of thousands of dollars. And joining in with our own river are all of the other rivers in this part of Oregon. Following a succession of heavy rains which for days and days soaked up the ground came a week of almost steady downpour which flooded every creek and small stream and raised them to the standing of rivers. Creeks were formed where none had been before and every gully and ravine contributed its stream of water to that flowing into the Willamette. As a result that river climbed steadily until it reached the flood stage, then swept over its banks and inundated all of the low land on both sides. At this point the river stretched out over the lowlands for miles. Houses which ordinarily stand on high and dry land were surrounded and some almost completely submerged.

The bridge across the Willamette at this place was covered Sunday night and by Monday night 250 feet of the Marion county end was floating loose from the piling. At the end of the bridge the water was then some twenty feet deep. At Dayton the Yamhill river was out of its banks and over two hundred feet of water covered the highway at this end of the bridge making travel detour by way of Lafayette to get to McMinnville.

All day the rising river was watched and that day a boom of logs belonging to the Spaulding Logging Co. at this place broke loose and came down. This boom struck the bridge pier broadside. The bridge trembled like a leaf but held firm. The log raft broke up and went swirling down the river. The Spaulding people lost 350,000 feet of logs at Salem and on Monday evening had six feet of water in their boiler rooms in that city. The sawmill was shut down here with the coming of high water and will be unable to resume operations for at least several days and possibly a week. Two hundred feet of their logging railroad was washed out at the Grand Ronde country where a hill had been made and this will have to be repaired.

Monday morning the gauge at the sawmill indicated a stage of 39 feet above low level. On Monday afternoon the water had raised to 51 feet 6 inches, and was still rising slightly. This was a raise of 2 and one-eighth in about five hours' time.

Old-timers say that this is the highest stage which the river has reached since 1890. Some say that in 1907 it was higher. However, Austin Keeney says that at the sawmill the river only reached 49 feet in 1907, and in 1909 it reached 51 feet. This is not quite as high as it was on Monday afternoon, with the river still rising.
In 1890 it is said that the high water stage reached 60 feet. At that time the buildings at Champoeg were all washed out.

Sunday night shots were heard at regular intervals coming from across the river. Henry Chas finally went to investigate and found some people marooned in a house in the flood.
He rescued them. They proved to be two men, Charles Benner and Frank Murphy.

John Gearin, who lives across the river on the north side of the road and just beyond the bridge, was in Portland where it is said that one of his children is in the hospital. During the night the water completely enveloped his buildings. His horses and cows were in the barn. There were about six horses and 10 cows and all were drowned. Efforts were made by several men in boats to recuse these animals which were still alive on Monday but they could not get them out. It is also said that Mr.
Gearin had a large number of sheep and goats on his place, all of which are thought to have been drowned.

On Monday a row boat brought a lady and little baby up to the bridge where they were landed. They had been staying at the Bents hop ranch.
The buildings at the Bents place were surrounded and water was well up on the barn.

The old partly finished bungalow which was originally erected for a road house was in the flood and the water on Monday evening was within about five feet of the roof.

Many other buildings throughout this section of the valley were submerged. The house of A. Barcroft was surrounded by water and Mr. Barcroft was operating his gasoline launch to get in and out.

It is said that the house of Paul Menard was washed away during the night Sunday and the river was filled with floating debris of all kinds on Monday. The Chase launch was requisitioned to clear away a great quantity of logs, stumps and other floating debris which was lodging against the Marion county end of the river bridge to take the strain off the structure.
The water which was pouring down unfished and it was thought that it would be ready to carry trains before the night was tonight.

The water in the river fell steadily all night Wednesday night and on Thursday in spite of the heavy rains at noon the river had fallen eight feet. The approach to the river bridge was pulled back into position and the receding waters showed that much damage had been done to it.
It is probable that some two or three hundred feet of approach will have to be practically rebuilt. At noon Thursday no communication had been established with St. Paul.

Cooperative Marketing
Sweeping the Country

Nearly 2 Million Farmers Are Selling Collectively, One-Half Under Contract

"The cooperative marketing movement is sweeping the whole country from the Atlantic to the Pacific," said C. J. Hurd, market specialist of the U. S. Extension service on returning from the National Cooperative council at Washington. "More than a million and a half farmers were represented when the council met, and 15,000 names were wired in from the cotton growers association alone while the council was in session."

A state-wide cooperative marketing educational campaign has been graded on by the 12 organization members composing the Oregon Cooperative council which met in Salem January 17. This will carry the idea into every community in the state.

The purposes, methods and results of cooperative selling will be explained by extension specialists. Local arrangements and other assistance will be given by the representatives of the council.

The state grange, farmers union, farm bureau, bankers association, agricultural committee of the Portland chamber of commerce, the state college extension service and bureau of markets, and the five state-wide commodity marketing associations are back of the movement. The five associations are growers of grain, fruit, wool, poultry and hay.

Governor Pierce approves the plan and asked the council to name a committee to help draft a market master bill for enactment at this session of the legislature.

"Bill" Hanley of Oregon, president of the State chamber of commerce, said he is greatly impressed with the work already accomplished and is in favor of extending it.

W. B. Dudson, manager of the Portland chamber of commerce, was reported as saying that the big $300,- 000 development plan would not be a complete success until every farmer has an opportunity to market cooperatively.

Educators Praise Picture
"The Four Seasons"

When "The Four Seasons" played a recent pre-release engagement at the Rialto, New York, it excited more attention from educators and children than any motion picture that was ever shown on Broadway.
It is a year's biography of Nature; it enables audiences to live a year in an hour and for sheer beauty as well as instructional value it probably has never been surpassed. It is a cycle of the seasons taken under the personal direction of Raymond L. Ditmars, Curator of the New York Zoological Society, and edited under the personal supervision of Charles Urban, President of the Kineto Company of America.

The story opens with the advent of spring, showing the last of the winter's snows upon the ground being ary 9th, Dalles Hotel and at Pendleton, Dorion Hotel, Saturday, February 10th

Office Hours: 10 a. m. to 4 p. m.

ONE DAY ONLY

No Charge for Consultation

Dr. Mellenthin is a regular graduate in medicine and surgery and is licensed by the state of Oregon. He visits professionally the more important towns and cities, and offers to all who call on this trip free consultation, except the expense of treatment when desired.

According to his method of treatment he does not operate for chronic appendicitis, gall stones, ulcers of the stomach, tonsils or adenoids.

He has to his credit wonderful results in diseases of the stomach, liver, bowels, blood, skin, nerves, heart, kidney, bladder, bedwet-ting, catarrh, weak lungs, rheumatism, sciatica, leg ulcers and rectal ailments.

If you have been ailing for any length of time and do not get any better, do not fail to call, as improper measures rather than disease are very often the cause of your long standing trouble.

Remember above date, that consultation on this trip will be free and that his treatment is different.
