President Urges Subsidy for Merchant Marine

President Harding is seen here recommending to Congress that the "costly experiment" in the shipping business be brought to an end and advising that ship subsidy legislation is necessary to put the American flag foremost on the seas. The administration has pointed out that an American merchant marine is as vital to farmer and the inland manufacturer as to the business men on the seaboard. Ships are the railroads of international commerce carrying American manufactures to all corners of the earth. Ships spell increased trade and steady employment.

President of Radio Corporation Comments on Existing and Expected Facilities

Service Is Unlimited; Benefits Uncounted; Life Saved and Property Guarded

EDITOR'S NOTE—Edward J. Nally is the head of the Radio Corporation of America and one of the few great authorities on this comparatively new method of instant communication. While to many it is still a plaything to be classed with the phonograph those who are familiar with its possibilities declare it will do much to introduce a new era of communication between the furthestmost points on the world's surface.

This brief outline of some of the wai and Japan, at rates which are from four to twenty-four cents per word lower than the cable rates. Economy being the keynote of commerce, the enormous total saving effected by the use of radio in the conduct of international communications makes it a matter of vital interest to everyone, and this interest has manifested itself in the constantly growing number of countries which are adopting radio as a means of communication, and which are constructing wireless stations with which to carry on this communication direct with other countries already thus equipped.

A RADIO ADVANTAGE. Another great advantage possessed by radio is what might be termed its universality, with reference to communication with several distant points at the same time. This was illustrated on the occasion of the formal opening of Radio Central, a superpowered station of the Radio Corporation of America, located at a point on Long Island about sixty-five miles distant from New York City. On November 5th, 1921, President Harding threw a switch in the White House, and a message which he had prepared for broadcasting to the world ran through a mechanical transmitter and the words, carried by land wire to Radio Central were flung into space without the intervening agency of a human hand.

The first answer came back instantly. Others followed close upon it. Acknowledgements were received from such widely scattered points as Norway, Germany, France, Italy, England, Belgium, Sweden, Hawaii, Canada, Cuba, Japan, New Zealand, Panama, Columbia, Costa Rica, Nicaragua, Honduras and Australia.

This fact of the universality of radio has a further application in the broadcasting of news, market, weather and crop reports, lectures, sermons, etc., through the medium of broadcasting stations which are in direct communication with thousands of wireless stations maintained by amateurs in all parts of the country, and in this respect it is of especial value to isolated communities, out of touch otherwise with current happenings and with the world's progress.

has awakened a wide interest in all parts of the world, and with the rapid development of the wireless telephone persons in remote districts, as well as passengers at sea, are privileged to listen to concerts by famous artists in the large musical centers and to hear, not the dots and dashes of the telegraph code, but the exact words of spoken addresses, etc., etc. Not a day passes but our daily papers carry stories of new accomplishments in this direction, and I venture the prediction that in the not far distant future radio sets, for both telephone and telegraph, will be a vital part of the equipment of every American home.

The Free Public Library

By CATHERINE JONES. "The library is a vital factor in every person's life. Library facilities should be made available as far as possible to everyone," says Miss Lucia Haley, head of continuations at the Oregon Agricultural college library.

Poem by Uncle John

NO TELLIN' WHAT. When a feller gets sick, as we sometimes do, the sun don't shine, nor the sky ain't blue. . . . But the wind turns cold, an' the clou's look black, when we shift from feet, to the flat of our back. . . . an' we hurl bad words at our blasted luck, till the Doc comes in, with the pizen truck, an' he looks us over, inside an' out, to find if it's fever, or chills, or gout. . . . It might be measles, or mumps, or pip,—it could be flu, or the dog-gone grippie,—we may have fits, or it may be faints, or, more than like, it's a dozen complaints. . . . So, the Doc bombards 'em, with shot an' shell, till, fust thing we know, we're around an' well! It's about that way with our human life, which largely consists of man and wife. . . . There's a heap depends on the kids we raise, whether flesh and blood, or dark-blue days. . . . And there's lots depends on the heights we vault,—if we land on thorns, it's all our fault, or, mebbe we land in a bed of rose,—it all depends on the seed folks sows. The Doc's called in, when the fever's high, but when we cool off, he sails on by,—but tomorrow is due, with the freight it brings, whether better or wuss, it's our'n by jings! An' when I reflect on the human mess, I'm bound to conclude, it's a game of guess.

Man-O-War a Proud Daddy

Libraries in the small towns are helpless as a rule because of the lack of sufficient funds. A library located either at the county seat or the town best suited to the purpose, would be the better way of solving the small town library problem. The central library could loan books to all the towns of the county. A wider and more complete selection of reading material would then be available for all. Oregon laws provide for the levying of taxes by counties and towns for the maintaining of free public libraries. The appointment of a board of five citizens to manage the library and funds is also provided for. Consulting the state librarian, is the first step in the starting of a library. The librarian can offer valuable advice and can recommend a good librarian to take charge. A saving of money, a selection of only the best equipment, and a greater amount of efficiency in starting the library, will be made possible by the hiring of a competent librarian. She is most familiar with the work. The board at best is a group of busy people who can not afford to give as much time as the librarian. A poor selection of books is guarded against by a 1921 amendment to the Oregon laws. To buy books which are not on an approved list issued by the American library association, is unlawful for a library not having an income in excess of $2500 a year. "Establish the library first in some rented building. Prove that it is of value to the community. Something workable is necessary before a permanent building can be thought of. Above all, ask the advice of the state librarian before starting a movement to establish a library," is the counsel of Miss Haley. Corvallis, Oregon, March 8, 1922.

How the Suit Dollar is Divided

Presumably the American Woolen company will not send a vote of thanks to C. J. Fawcett, director of the wool marketing department of the American Farm Bureau Federation for his disclosures regarding the travels of the suit buyer's dollar. It appears that on a suit of clothes which retails at $40 the wool grower's share is $1.96. Hence the wool grower's part of the suit buyer's dollar is 4.9 cents. Also a few other fallacies are exploded as for example the statement that domestic wool is not suited to the manufacture of the better grades of men's wear. There is no better wool in the world than American wool. The injection of cotton and shoddy into fabrics has swelled the coffers of manufacturers who in addition have offered as an excuse for inferiority the poor quality of domestic wool. As the situation stands the wool growers get but a small share of the money and for their product condemnation instead of praise.

Either Coat or Cape in This Garment

Back of every radical fashion is a fundamental idea which when traced to its source has some particular appeal to woman. Arrival of spring fashions shows the major idea this year to be "two-in-one" garments. The cape-dress and cape-suits are among the newest showings. The idea offers woman a bargain of two garments for the price of one. The newest offering is the coat shown here, which is convertible either to a cape-coat or a smart raglan sleeve sport coat. When sleeves are unbuttoned they form a cape. When buttoned as shown on the left, a raglan sport model is obtained.
