The Corner Stone

In every structure is a headstone from which is determined its strength.

In the structure of savings it is tried and proved 4% which stands for all that is safest and soundest.

A young artist unversed in financial matters returned home from a business trip to find his mother had invested her savings in a promotion enterprise which offered a very tempting 9%.

"It's no good," he said.
"But you don't know about it yet," said the mother.

"I know that any 'outside' investment wherein anyone with small capital can buy stock and which offers more than 6% has an element of risk in it which you can ill afford," he replied.

Two years later events forced the mother to sell—and after all the "special clauses" had been observed, the interest she received on her money was less than 2 1/2%.

Lowden Family Home Again

Just as excitement over the naming of Goldstein by President Harding is at its height, Frank A. Lowden, former Governor of Illinois, and his family get back to America, perhaps to figure in the political news of the day. Picture shows the former Governor and his son and Mrs. Lowden and their daughter, Miss Frances, snapped as they were starting ashore when the ocean greyhound, Olympic, reached New York from the other side.

realized by those who loan money for purposes of investment.

Today there is a serious speculative element in building within almost all of the larger communities of the country, and this affects the rates at which money is loaned for building purposes. Conditions must be established by which each of the groups interested in the building industry may receive fair treatment and by which the public will also receive fair treatment. Nobody is benefited by a situation which leads to permanent stagnation in the building industry, and least of all those who are peculiarly interested in the building trades. All groups peculiarly interested in these trades must make sacrifices and all should be willing to sacrifice for the public good. A real partnership of endeavor to better the building situation will lead to definite and concrete results. The general public, which suffers most from the present situation, is not easily aroused in many of the larger communities of the country against profiteering landlords. It will be aroused against labor organizations, material men and contractors, unless these several interests set their own houses in order. A constructive program for better housing renders it necessary that all of these groups cease their present improper practices.

HIGH RENTS STILL SERIOUS HANDICAP

All Other Prices Slowly But Surely Dropping Back to Normal, Is Housing Experts Claim

Contents That Combinations Exist Among Material Men and in Labor Union Circles

EDITOR'S NOTE: Walter F. Dodd, an attorney of Chicago, was selected as general chairman of the Public Committee of Five on Housing when that organization was formed November 30, 1921. The committee began an extensive investigation into the housing problem not only in Chicago but throughout the United States. It was from this investigation that Mr. Dodd drew the conclusions he presents herewith.

During the war little building was done. With the termination of the war it was apparent that there was great shortage of places in which people could live. This shortage has led to a continued high level of rentals, and to an overcrowding of people, to the detriment of life and health.

Movements in New York, Massachusetts, Illinois and other states for the regulation of the rental of dwelling premises have to some extent met a temporary emergency situation, and restricted profiteering upon the part of landlords who have enjoyed a temporary monopoly.

Rental legislation has, however, been a mere makeshift. The only permanent solution for the housing situation is the construction of more houses. A permanent high cost of dwelling construction and a permanent domination of the situation by dishonest labor men and dishonest material men must be met in order that a new period of dwelling construction may begin.

The cost of living is gradually adjusting itself with respect to other items of expense, but the reduction as to other items is still in many communities more than offset by the high rates of rental. In the city of Chicago and in many other larger urban communities it now appears that rents are likely to go higher, rather than be reduced in the near future.

THE BIG HANDICAP
The building situation in all of the larger communities of the country is now handicapped by combinations of material men which maintain the price of building material; by leadership in the unions of the building trades of corrupt and incompetent leaders; and by restrictive agreements among material men, labor organizations and contractors, which increase the price of building construction. The Lockwood Commission in New York and the Dailey Commission in Illinois have done something to expose conditions in the building industry in the cities of New York and Chicago. However, recent developments appear to indicate that it is impossible to convict corrupt labor leaders in the city of Chicago.

The Landis award issued in September, 1921, stands not merely for a lower wage scale in the city of Chicago, but is more important as representing an effort to get away from restrictive practices which are supported not merely by labor organizations but by material men and contractors as well. The Landis award has, however, as yet not led to material improvement in the city of Chicago, because neither labor organizations nor material organizations have supported it with honesty.

A REAL PARTNERSHIP.
The time has come for the recognition that something drastic must be done in order that persons of moderate means may be enabled to build homes for themselves. In order to accomplish this result it must be recognized that all elements in the community have a partnership interest in the construction of proper dwellings for the housing of their people. This partnership is one which must be realized in a definite and concrete way by material men, labor organizations and contractors. It must be

Homey Philosophy for 1922

Wouldn't it be a great thing if every one of us was his own Chiropractor—not worryin' so much about our spines, except to straighten the corkscrew spine brigade—but generally goin' in for adjustment. Here we've got this great an' glorious world handed over to us an' we're makin' a whole lot of rumpus because we haven't got the furniture in the right place an' the house is upset. Instead of settin' to work to straighten up, we sit down in the confusion an' despair. When the good wife empties the dust pan into the yard she puts the little particles of dirt where they belong. Every grain of sand fits in. It's dirt only when it's put where it doesn't belong. Let's get down to tryin' a little adjustment. There's lots of crooks that would be geniuses if they were in their proper places.

Poem by Uncle John

GRADUATIN' DAY

The graduatin' days have come, the brightest of the year. Take off yer hat, an' smile out loud, an' don't forget to cheer. It's good to see 'em graduate, jes' like their mother did back there when Dad played hookey, like a good-fer-nothin' kid. There's nothin' else fer them to do—they've got to step down off the stage, to make room fer the rest. There's others comin' on the trail—a pushin' that away; it keeps the old world rollin' round, in circles, as they say. It allers makes me happy like—to watch 'em, as it were, an' see 'em get diplomys—never dreamin' what they're fer. They'll plunge into the sea of life, an' grab at every straw, an' lots of 'em will be surprised, the worst you ever saw! God bless these noble boys an' gals—I say it from my heart—they're startin' out with smiles an' tears, each one to do his part. There ain't no better cargo to load on the Ship of State, than a band of these here children—on the day they graduate. The Sea of Life is deep and wide—it's miles an' miles to land; it ain't the same as "Jurdan's Banks," where us old fellows stand. They've got to pierce the clouds of Fate, an' breast the murky wave. Lord, stick around an' watch 'em close, an' see that they behave.

THE CRIME WAVE

Crime is on the increase regardless of the statements of heretical pulpit parasites who say the world is getting better. There are unmistakable reasons for the increase.

First: Your children are not taught the Bible. Less than twenty-five per cent of the children of the country can recite the Ten Commandments correctly. Ignorance of the Bible increases crime.

Second: You have preached that damnable crime producing lie, namely, "there is no sin," until its effect is now felt in the wave of theft, arson, and murder.

Third: You have yielded to the infamous, demon-possessed-feminine-maudlin sentiment which looks upon the criminal as a hero and the jails as rest resorts until you have destroyed the idea of punishment. Consequently crime increases.

Fourth: Your lax, criminally law, enforcement of law has increased crime. Your juries are cowards and your judges are without judicial conscience or a penal backbone. Their sentences are a curse to law and an encouragement to the criminal.

The time has come to demand that all people, and especially the courts and their officers, shall respect law and enforce its stern demands upon criminals regardless of political fear or favor.
