SWIFT SAYS PACKERS BENEFIT TO PUBLIC

Head of Leading Plant Explains the Position of Companies in Price Adjusting.

Claims Nation Could Not Be Fed at Present Cost if Giant Plants Were Not Active.

BY LOUIS F. SWIFT.

Editor's Note.—Louis F. Swift, head of the vast organization that bears his name, in the following outlines the reasons why America's modern complex life has given birth to and sustained similar companies and why their existence is important to every citizen of the United States. It is a clearly written article and presents the packer's side of the disagreement that is of many years' standing.

We have been hearing for a great many years, especially during the war, about the economies of producing goods on a large scale. Most of the textbooks on economics tell us that the large concern is able to carry on its business at lower cost than a small concern for the following reasons:

It buys and sells in larger quantities and is able, therefore, to buy raw materials and to sell finished products to a large scale. But strange as it may seem this fact alone does not really explain why large packers have come into existence. A very real reason for the development of large packing concerns is to be found in the distinctive and absolutely necessary service they render in transporting meat products long distances from the producing to the consuming sections of the country.

Stock in West.

It so happens that approximately two-thirds of the livestock of the country is produced west of the Mississippi River, while two-thirds of our population lives to the east of it. Either live animals or fresh meats must be shipped from West to East, and it has been found to be more economical to slaughter the animals in the producing sections and to ship the meat products in refrigerated cars to the consuming sections than to ship the live animals.

Before the development of the refrigerator car it was impossible to ship fresh meats. The livestock of the West had to be shipped East for slaughter because it was impossible to transport perishable products any great distance. The shipment of livestock to Eastern markets for slaughter was exceedingly wasteful. Many of the animals died on the long journey. Owing to the length of the haul stock arrived much shrunken in weight. At certain points on the road it was necessary to unload the stock and give them feed, water and rest. All this involved heavy expense.

In addition there was the fact that only a little more than half the animals dressed out as meat, and in those days the balance, with the exception of the hide, was largely waste. To the other wastes of the system would be added nearly half the freight costs.

The large packer has been instrumental in eliminating these wastes. Herein lies his distinctive service. His packing plants are located near the source of production. Refrigerator cars transport the products of these plants long distances (in many cases more than a thousand miles) to branch houses located in consuming centers. His cars are also used to carry perishable meat products to the small towns located along the railroad lines extending in all directions from the packing plants.

Fall In, Buddy

In more than 11,000 communities the world over today your old Buddies are, through The American Legion, still in action, fighting at home for the land that was good enough to fight for abroad.

There are vacant places in the ranks that can never be filled—blank files dedicated to the memory of old shipmates and tentmates who went West when death rode in the air and sea.

But there's your old place in the line, Buddy, waiting for you, and the bugle of duty sounds "Fall in." There are no written orders or commands except those of your own conscience, and bunk-fatigue brings no excited top kicker.

Just the same, Soldier, The American Legion needs you and you need The American Legion. That's fifty-fifty. Hold up your end and become a member.

By midnight—Saturday—July 1, Heppner Post of The American Legion wants to have every eligible service man or woman enrolled as a member.

Your honorable discharge is your eligibility ticket.

Your Legion button tells the world you have such a discharge.

For further information ask any Legion member.

COUNTRY PRESS IS OFFERED SERVICE PRIZES

Newspapers Carrying Best Rural Community News in Their Classes Will Get Cups and Pens.

All weekly and semi-weekly Oregon newspapers have been invited to enter the second rural news service contest with valuable prizes offered by the department of industrial journalism at O. A. C. The papers will be judged by a committee of seven at the annual meeting of the state editorial association at Corvallis, July 21-23.

The first contest was a big thing in bringing the advertising value of a good rural news service to the attention of Oregon editors, said C. E. Ingalls, ex-president and present program committee chairman of the association. "As a member of the former judging committee I had occasion to study the close relation between the amount and quality of rural news and the amount of paid advertising. You should have this contest at the annual meeting of the association by all means."

To enable every newspaper in Oregon to enter the contest with a chance to win on merit the country papers have been grouped into three classes with a large cap as first prize, fountain pen second, and honorable mention third. The classes are:

First, grand champion, free for all, except dailies; second, best paper published in town of not more than 1500 population; third, paper of fewer than 28 columns all home print. The "best" must be left to the judges to decide, but they will consider the amount of news from any community away from the publication point or news and editorials primarily for rural readers and the quality of news and editorial in relation to the total news and editorial space. To eliminate special "cramping" it is specified the editors may select any edition of their papers published in June, 1922.

Oregon Jersey Breeders Would Cop All Honors

Progressive Breeders Now Hold Seven of Eight Highest Places; Are Hot on Trail of Eighth.

Sir Launcelot's pursuit of the holy grail was not more thrilling than the case of the Oregon Jersey breeder after the last of the eight honor records. Of the eight classes recognized by the American Jersey Cattle Club Oregon holds seven world records, said Horace Addie, field editor of the Oregon Farmer. These are all except the senior 3-year-old, and Pickford brothers of Marion have a better now going on test at a clip that promises to bring that record to Oregon.

Of these record cows St. Maves Lad's Lady, bred as a senior yearling by Harry D. Hill of Independence, with a record of 829 pounds of fat, is considered the most wonderful. She is now owned by S. J. McKee, Independence, who has other daughters of her sire on test that will soon make for him a gold medal bull.

Another wonder cow is Viva La France, the only Jersey with two records for more than 1000 pounds of fat a year—1030 and 1039 in consecutive years. She also holds a senior 4-year old record. She is owned by Pickford brothers who also own Lady Silken Glove, 1040 pounds of fat, and Old Man's Darling 2d, senior 4-year old. This is the only Jersey herd in the world with two cows making more than 1000 pounds of fat on official test.

The McArthur and Stauff of Rickreall herd has a gold medal bull, Holger, with 23 daughters that averaged 614 pounds of fat on official test, the highest average of all Jerseys with 20 or more tested daughters.

This record was taken from another Oregon breeder, Ed Carey of Carlton whose herd some years ago had 20 tested daughters of St. Maves, averaging 601 pounds of fat. Carey has also the unique record of using two gold medal bulls on his herd in one period, something no other herd in the United States had ever done. One gold medal bull, Rosetta's Olga Lad, has eight gold medal daughters, more than any other in the entire west. Four daughters of St. Maves full sisters, have another record with an average of 728 pounds of fat, one of which has five register of merit daughters, three of them gold medal and four of them averaging 714 pounds.

G. G. Hewitt's herd at Monmouth has Rinda Lad, sire of Lad's Iota, world record Jersey cow for all ages with a record of 1048 pounds of fat. She was record senior 4-year old at one time. She is now owned by S. J. McKee. Hewitt has five of her daughters now gold medal. Rinda Lad is full brother to Holger and these two are the only two full brother gold medal bulls in the world.

Peter Curran has departed with his flock for the summer range in the vicinity of Whitney, Oregon.

There Will Be Many Race Horses at Ukiah on Fourth

Though it is ten days before the little mountain town of Ukiah will be agog with cowboys, bucking broncos, wild steers and wild horses, the pony races are steadily coming in from other localities to practice on the big race track and complete in the events of July 3rd and 4th.

The grounds where the big show will be held is all ready, people of the town are ready to help take care of and entertain one large crowd that is expected for the celebration.

Daily tryouts are being held where the cowboys practice riding, pulling leather and biting the dust. Many of the bucking horses that will be used in the show, buck altogether too hard to please the riders. One of the famous buckers known by the name of "Wickip," few men live that can scratch this little bucker, or even stay on his back. The boys who are expecting to enter the bucking contests are all very anxious for practice when this horse is led into the arena; most of all of them have something else to do.

Bronco busting, steer roping, wild races and wild horses, the pony races, pack horse races, bulldozing, relay horse races, are some of the thrilling events that will take place.

N. Thomsen of Ione was a visitor in Heppner on Monday. Mr. Thomsen has quite an extensive acreage which he farms in the vicinity of Ione and states that his Turkey red is going to yield him a fine crop this season. From what we can learn of him, Mr. Thomsen is coming to the front as one of the good farmers of this country and is again putting the Ione country on the map as a wheat producing section.

Jack Hynd of Cecl took on a brand new Buick from Messrs. Vaughn and Goodman of Heppner Garage this week. It won't be quite so easy to tell when Jack is coming as formerly, but he will still use the old machine as a "rout about" for the Cecl ranch.
