MINE HEAD POINTS RIGHT TO ORGANIZE

Pres. Lewis, Miner's Union, Quotes Authorities on Labor Problems

OPPOSITION TO STRIKE PRINCIPLE OF MINERS

Asserts Mine Owners Have Resorted to Brutality to Break Union

By JOHN L. LEWIS, President of the United Mine Workers of America.

Editor's Note: Coming at this time anything from John Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America, is of interest. In the following Mr. Lewis has gone to some pains to locate and quote rulings on the rights of the workers to organize from men known throughout the world. To their opinions he has added some ideas of his own. The total gives cause for thought—and that, evidently, was Mr. Lewis' idea in presenting the manuscript.

Opposition to strikes, except as a last resort and after every other honorable means of reaching a settlement of differences has failed, is a cardinal principle of the United Mine Workers of America. But they hold firmly and determinedly to the well-established principle of the right of workers to organize and to deal collectively with their employers. When this right is denied or attacked the miners stand ready to engage in industrial battle for the maintenance of that right. The right of workers to organize is fundamental. It has been pronounced and affirmed by the government, by the last four presidents, the congress, the courts, by state legislatures, by the press, the pulpit, by civic bodies everywhere and by the public.

Can You Do It?

Stamatis, a coal miner, started on an athletic career when he was two months old. His daddy trained him. The feat shown here is only one of his stunts. He weighs 18 pounds and he has a chest measurement of 18 inches.

players' Group in the president's first industrial Conference, October, 1919, said: "So far as I am concerned, I am committed in my mind and in my very soul to unionism as it is expressed by the administrative faculty of the American Federation of Labor; and in saying that, my friends, I do not sanction ultra-radicalism."

Theodore Roosevelt, while president of the United States, in 1902, said: "I believe in organized labor. I believe in organizations of wage workers. Organization is one of the laws of our social and economic development at this time."

Chief Justice Taft, before his election to the presidency, said: "What the capitalist, who is the employer of labor, must face is the labor union—a permanent condition in the industrial world. It has come to stay. If the employer would consult his own interest he must admit this and act on it. Under existing conditions the blindest course that an employer of labor can pursue is to decline to recognize labor unions as the controlling force in the labor market and to insist upon dealing only with his particular employees. Time and again one has heard the indignant expression of a manager of some great industrial enterprise, that he did not propose to have the labor union run his business; that he would deal with his own men and not with outsiders. The time has passed in which that attitude can be assumed with any hope of successfully maintaining it."

During the war emergency Mr. Taft served as joint chairman of the War Labor Board, and it is interesting to note that after his experience in that work he said, on August 9, 1919: "Labor unions have been necessary to secure to the individual workman an opportunity to deal with his employer on an equality and free from the duress of the immediate want of a daily wage, to demand what he regards as an adequate and just return for his labor, or to withdraw from employment."

Hughes Speaks Up. And this from Charles Evans Hughes, now secretary of state, in an address at Columbia University, on November 30, 1918: "I trust there will be no more struggle in futile opposition to the right of collective bargaining on the part of the employee. The recognition of the right of representation and the prompt hearing of grievances provides the open door to reasonable and just settlements. And in returning to peace conditions there should be the utmost care to preserve every possible means which has been found helpful during the war for the investigation of complaints of labor and for the adjustment of demands."

Employers of importance and vision concede the right to the workers to organize. Thus John D. Rockefeller, Jr., said in the Annals of American Academy of Political and Social Science, January, 1919: "As regards the organization of labor, it is just as proper and advantageous for labor to associate itself into organized groups for the advancement of its legitimate interests as for capital to combine for the same objects."

Poem by Uncle John

WELL—AFTER ALL—
When you hear a feller grumble at the hill he has to climb, an' later, see him crumble in despair,—you wouldn't err in judgment, if you bet yer bottom dime, that he has built the cross he has to bear. This thing we call humanity, is full of human freaks, with itful an' imaginative brains. There's very few that's brave enough to scale the highest peaks,—that knows enough to come in, when it rains! With blessings all around us, we embrace the things that curse. We ponder to the victor's apoplexy, we undertake the very thing that's sure to make us worse, an' shet our eyes to everything that's right.

Then—is it any wonder, that we flounder in the sea, and swaller bitter waters, tempest-tossed? Too often we imagine that our trouble has to be, when we only need the rudder that we lost! We'll find it smoother sailin' if we banish every dread, and cure the imperfections of our own. The trouble's nearly allers in our little ivory head,—and trouble's hard to manage—in a bone!

From Uncle John

Wearing Her Championship Belt

murder, if necessary, those employees who dare to encourage organization. Hundreds of coal miners have been beaten or killed by these lawless gunmen in the employ of union-busting coal companies. Scores of union organizers have been assaulted, beaten up, driven out or killed in order to prevent the union from obtaining a foothold in these non-union fields. These coal companies place themselves above the law, above government courts, pulpit, press and the wholesome force of public opinion. They would destroy the union and reduce their employees to a still lower standard of living. What is the great American public going to do about it?

Many Thrillers Will Be Feature of Round-Up

PENDLETON, Ore., Aug. 23.—Wild Mexican steers which have never felt the yoke, bucking bronks who have yet to know the novelty of the touch of the saddle, and fast running sleek horses—these will be the co-stars with the human performers at the Pendleton Round-Up, September 21, 22, and 23.

A bunch of livestock unequalled in the history of the great outdoor drama is being assembled for the events of track and arena and promises some lively work for the cowboys who will meet their wilds against those of the animals in the bulldogging, steer roping and broncho busting.

The suspense thrill for which the Round-Up is noted will be as usual, be paramount. The association permits not a moment's delay in the staging of the drama and event follows event in quick succession.

Among the stars who will participate will be Tom Mix, motion picture actor, and his 50 cowboys; Yakima Canutt, Ray Bell and Hugh Strickland, all former champions; Mabel Strickland, clever trick rider; Lorena Trickey, winner of the McAlpin trophy awarded the champion woman rider of the world; and scores of other cowboys and cowgirls whose lives have been spent in the saddle.

Entertainment for the evening hours will be ample. Happy Canyon, that untamed village of the West of the old days when man was untrammelled by law or convention, will be "wide open" and will offer games of faro and roulette for those who would stake their Round-Up bucks. Like the Round-Up, Happy Canyon is a community show sponsored by Pendleton people.

Special railroad rates have been arranged for and the Oregon Journal special from Portland will be a feature. The Round-Up association is daily receiving out-of-town orders for tickets.

HONEY PHILOSOPHY FOR 1922.

Since we are all out helping to make the world better why not do it in half the time? If we put the time spent in kicking into correcting, gee, what a hole we could knock in the things we don't like! Most people who don't kick say "what's the use?" because they think they are powerless. As soon as one thing's cured another bobs up. When we're saving by wireless there'll be a kick because the static shakes the razor. Meantime suppose we all butt in an' better things, and meantime all smile.

FOR SALE—Two bull calves—one came Nov. 16, 1920, and one February 11, 1922. Good registered Jerseys of same breeding. Will sell either of them. Price $75 and $150. J. R. Johnson, Boardman, Ore.

FOR SALE—Thoroughbred White Leghorn cockers, laying strain. $1.50 apiece if taken soon. Mrs. Eph Ekelson, Lexington, Ore.

Amusement Mania

and are being rocked in the cradle of indecency.

The amusement mania of pleasure insanity seems to have afflicted eighty-five per cent of the population. They are today spending millions and millions of dollars for a day of folly or a night of moral fatality.

They do not seem to agree with anyone who is trying to cure them of this awful malady. They are not willing to co-operate with anyone who is trying to reform the amusements now being used for the destruction of society.

The Honorable William H. Hays supports of all Christian people in his efforts to clean the filthy screens and wash out the cesspools of moving picture studios.

Every virtue-loving woman in the land ought to come to his support and demand the closing of every theater which exhibits or false coloring an immoral subject or false coloring.

If you are not willing to support men who are trying to cure the populace of their mad amusement insanity then you should prepare the funeral cortege for the wrecked bodies of your sons and daughters.

Help us to treat your madly, reform your amusements, and direct the people in the road of sanity and moral development.
