HOMEY PHILOSOPHY FOR 1922

WHEN the Irishman got into a row with his wife and she threw a plate at his head the melee is said to have started and in the midst of it the husband jerkily remarked: "If—I'd known married life—was like this—I'd—have got married long ago." All of which carries out the general conception of the Celtic conviction that we must have peace even if we have to fight for it.

Tolstoi preached non-resistance which meant letting everybody walk on your neck. This brings peace to the bullies and death to the meek. Jesus turned the other cheek, but he took the money changers by the scruff of the neck and threw them out of the temple. So it all depends when to fight and what to fight for, which means keep an eye out for the spurious flag wavers.

BEBE DANIELS in

"One Wild Week"

Pauline was having it all right. She had thought it would be wonderful to come of age and inherit her money and enjoy a little freedom and fun after her Aunt Emma's stern rule. But her innocent little plan to visit her mother's friend hadn't included any such hectic events as were exploding, like shrapnel, all about her. Bebe Daniels portrays the role of Pauline. You know what that means—youth, beauty, fun, madcap escapades, innocent mischief, excitement and thrills a-plenty.

TOM MOORE in

'Beating the Game'

A picture that proves how much better it is to face the world with a clear conscience than to enjoy ill-gotten gains. The point is put over in a typically Tom Moore fashion. See it.

NOTE: With each episode of BUFFALO BILL, we will show a five or six reel feature, and as the serial deals with historical events the program is complete every Friday whether you are able to see every chapter or not; but we venture the assertion that after seeing the opening chapter you will not intentionally miss seeing a single one.
