Local Happenings

Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Phelps spent Thanksgiving holidays at Portland and Vancouver, Wash., where they were joined by their son Marshall and daughter Miss Elizabeth, and enjoyed a short family reunion. Marshall Phelps is now located in Alaska and was down to Seattle, while Miss Elizabeth is a student at University of Oregon. Mr. and Mrs. Phelps returned home on Saturday, having made the trip by automobile.

J. T. Parker and Mrs. Ed Burchell of Lexington were visitors in Heppner Monday. Mr. Parker was in charge of the Burchell farm near Lexington for three years, but has now leased the J. B. Carmichael farm and moved there this fall. Mr. and Mrs. Burchell, who have been residing in Lexington have again taken possession of their farm and moved out there. Mr. Parker is a nephew of Mr. Burchell.

Attorney F. A. McMenamin came in from Portland Saturday and has been spending a number of days in the city, looking after business affairs in connection with his office here. He states that since going to Portland he has been having a fine line of legal business and is quite well pleased with his connections in the city. Business in general is pronounced good by Mr. McMenamin.

W. T. Craig, who is a successful farmer residing in the Wells Springs district north of Ione, was in Heppner for a short time on Saturday. He reports that the grain has come along well in his locality and he never saw a better fall prospect. Tom does not get to Heppner often, this being his second trip to town in a full year. Says he has plenty to keep him busy on the ranch.

Louis Ball was taken to Portland last Saturday for treatment by specialists. The badly damaged eye caused from a kick by a mule some time ago has so far not responded satisfactorily to treatment. Later—Dr. Walker had word from the boy's attending physician yesterday saying he had been compelled to remove the injured eye to save its mate.—Ione Independent.

E. Jay Merrill, farmer and stockman of Hardman, was down to Heppner Saturday, having left home on Friday. When he started for town it was snowing in his section, and we presume that by this time the hills out south are all pretty well covered and real winter has set in. Until the present week, conditions for stock have been splendid in that part of the county.

Thomas Ross, while on a business trip in the vicinity of La Grande, was taken quite ill last week. Mrs. Ross left Echo to join him in La Grande and they returned home Wednesday accompanied by a nurse. Although Mr. Ross is still very weak he is much better today and it is hoped will be fully recovered in a few days.—Echo News.

George H. Hayden of Hardman was moving down to Morgan the first of the week, where he will be busy for a month or six weeks in the work of building a new bridge for the county across Willow creek for which job he has the contract. He passed through Heppner Tuesday on his way down the creek.

Miss Norma Fredrick, bookkeeper for the telephone company, was taken suddenly quite ill on Friday, and early Saturday morning was operated on at the Heppner Surgical hospital for appendicitis. The operation was quite successful, and Miss Fredrick is reported to be doing well.

E. R. Huston had the misfortune to step on a sharp nail while at work at the store of Phelps Grocery Co. on Saturday, and as a result of the injury has been laid off from work the most of this week. The injury was painful but Mr. Huston is getting over the hurt alright.

Mrs. W. O. Livingstone was a passenger for Pendleton on Saturday, where on Sunday at the Christian church she delivered an address in behalf of the Christian Women Board of Missions. She returned home on Monday.

The Christian Endeavors of the Christian Church will continue to serve chili and doughnuts and coffee in the People's Hardware store every Saturday afternoon. You should patronize them, their lunch is fine.

W. O. Livingstone went to Portland the first of the week to attend the Northwest parliament of the ministers of the Christian church in session there for a couple of days.

Gene Gentry, of Lexington, was a visitor in this city on Friday, and reports some winter weather in that part of the country.

H. O. Ely and son, of Morgan were visitors in Heppner Saturday. Mr. Ely coming to the city to attend the farmers meeting.

W. G. Palmateer, who farms quite extensively in the Morgan country, was here Saturday to attend the meeting of farmers.

W. G. Scott, banker and warehouseman of Lexington, spent a few hours in Heppner Saturday, looking after business.

Mrs. Vawter Crawford is a guest at the home of her sister, Mrs. J. B. Cooley.

George Ritchie and Fred Griffin of Ione were Heppner visitors on Monday, being called to the city on business.

For Sale—Two fine Togenbury milk goats. Will be fresh in February. Address B. B. LANE, Irrigon, Oregon. 2t.

Howard Anderson, of Eight Mile, attended the meeting of farmers held in this city on Saturday afternoon.

Ira Lewis, prominent resident of Lexington, was in this city for a short time on Saturday.

WAIT FOR IT—Fancy work bazaar by Federated church ladies; Dec. 15.

WHAT IS IT WE CALL AMERICANIZATION?

"Americanization" is a widely used term, the real significance of which is appreciated by but very few. To the larger number who use it, it means merely the naturalization of immigrants. To a much smaller number it means the education of immigrants to the point where they can read and write the English language. Americanization of immigrants is something far deeper than the mere formality of taking out naturalization papers or their superficial education in reading and writing. Americanization of immigrants means their acceptance of and belief in American policies and American institutions. It means their willingness and eagerness to uphold American laws. It means their placing this country and its welfare ahead of any other country—even the country from which they came.

There never was a time when there was greater need of real Americanization than now. A study of the census statistics relative to our foreign population will startle anyone who has not made himself familiar with the facts. In a half-a-dozen of our eastern and New England states approximately one-half the total voting population is foreign-born. In some states this proportion exceeds one-half. In half-a-dozen other states the foreign-born population constitutes such a very large per cent that they easily control the balance of power between the old political parties.

Theoretically, at least, those who come to this country, come in order to avail themselves of American institutions, American standards of living, American opportunities, American wages. They do not come here in order to transplant to this country the conditions and policies from which they emigrated to this country. One would naturally suppose that these immigrants would readily support the policies and institutions which made this country an attractive place as compared with their homeland. In a great many cases this is true, but in the majority of cases the contrary is true. They immediately begin to take sides in American politics, not from the standpoint of how proposed policies will affect this country but how they may affect foreign countries.

They view the question of a tariff not from the standpoint of American industry and American wage, but from the standpoint of how a tariff will affect their "home country." They view the immigration law, the prohibition laws, the courts, local and federal authorities and all policies affecting our foreign relations such as the handling of the foreign debt, not from the angle of American and how such policies work to the injury or the benefit of the United States, but from the angle of their native country and how such policies will affect their former country.

Our foreign population can never be said to be "Americanized," until they have lost this foreign viewpoint in considering American policies. Moreover, until they are "Americanized" in the real sense of the word, there exists a very grave danger of America's losing its national integrity, its national individuality, if such a term may be used, and becoming as merely expressed by Theodore Roosevelt, a "polyglot boarding house."

Unless there is genuine Americanization of our foreign elements, it will be but a matter of a comparatively short time until this nation will be but little better than the countries of Europe and those who have come to this country to improve their conditions will find that they themselves have destroyed the very thing they most desired.

The work of Americanization of our foreign elements, can be tremendously accelerated by the refusal of political parties to appeal for the support of political blocs upon the basis of their particular nationality or the particular interest of their home country. For a political party to appeal for the support of any foreign element upon any other ground than its policies will benefit that element in common with all Americans, is to accentuate and perpetuate the foreign blocs which vote as foreigners rather than Americans.

When any party appeals to certain foreign blocs upon the promise that it is a better friend of that bloc than the other party, it necessarily follows that it must resort to class or bloc legislation in order to redeem its promises, actual or implied. If the opposing party resorts to the same practice then we have the spectacle of the two great political parties engaged in competition as to which can do the most for the foreigner, which can pass the more legislation pleasing to foreign countries, which bloc can be the less American in its policies.

There are a great many vital problems awaiting solution at the hands of the American people but it can scarcely be an exaggeration to say the most vital one is that of a real Americanization of all our foreign population.—National Republican.
