POSTAL BUSINESS REFLECTS RETURNING OF PROSPERITY

Washington, Dec. 20.—"The country is on its way to an era of industrial prosperity such as has never been seen before," is the opinion of First Assistant Postmaster General Bartlett. In substantiation of his printed in substantiation of his opinion Mr. Bartlett says: "No better proof of this can be found than our postal business. The mails are running heavier than at any time in history. Receipts at our postoffices from the sale of stamps are going upward. The amount of parcel post matter going through the mails at the present time is taking the capacity of the entire system. The postal service is widespread, extending into the most remote corners of the republic, and feels more readily than any other business organization both the blight of commercial stagnation as well as the flourish of its revival."

The Spirit of Christmas

THE SPIRIT OF CHRISTMAS is the spirit of co-operation, the spirit of helpfulness. "Peace on Earth Good Will to Man" cannot mean anything else but friendlineness, aiding one another, working together. The go-it-alone policy will not get you anywhere in this day of mass formation. There might have been a time that one could paddle his own canot but that day has passed. No matter how great the business or the business-man he needs and must have the good will of his brethern if he is to attain the success desired.

Commenting along this line the "Spirit of Progress" official publication of the Chamber of Commerce at Sioux City, Iowa, says:

The world is too big for any one person to get all there is in life by himself. Now and then we find a man who imagines that he can start a business and make it go without the help of anybody else. These men are getting scarce for bitter experience has shown that it cannot be done. He will struggle along for maybe a few years paying no attention to what his city and his neighbors are doing. He makes no effort to serve his community other than for profit, he takes n opart in public activities and does not seem to care whether the world moves or not. That man is doomed but for one thingfailure. He will wake up some day and find that the city has advanced so far that he is left entirely behind. That is the reward of no co-operation. His competitor across the street believes in co-operating with the other merchants of the city in an effort to make it a better town in which to live. His business will grow while the other fellow fails. This is the reward of co-operation. In the early days of civilization, men saw that co-operation was necessary in order to protect themselves from the wild animals and ravages of nature. The same thing was true two thousand years ago. Co-operation is necessary in order to preserve your business. Times and conditions change but the fundamental laws of nature stay with us forever.

Recognition From Pierce

There seems to be persistent talk that our good friend, Sam Boardman is being primed for the position of state highway commissioner, and that his candidacy is looked upon with favor by the incoming administration. It is printed in the papers that Mr. Pierce is favoring a paid highway commission, and in the event that this coller should be adouted into learning. Pierce is favoring a paid highway commission, and in the event that this policy should be adopted into law by the legislature, then Sam would fit into the place O. K. But as it has heretofore been the policy to place men on the commission, who were able to give their time and attention to the work, gratis, the appointments were handed out to gentlemen of means. However, Mr. Boardman has given up a lot of good time for the benefit of the public, all at his own expuse and he might be of a mind to continue this philanthropic endeavor. And Mr. Pierce might go a long ways to find a better fitted man for the commission than Sam Boardman, at that. The following is from Wednesday's "Those Who Come and Go" column in the Oregonian:

"Still another man who has been mentioned as a possible appointee on the state, and a continuance of the present the producing sections of the state, and a continuance of the present to for long the producing sections of the present severe weather is likely to make it necessary for livestock men to restore grass comes again, according to a statement made by L. A. Illust, manager of the Oregon Co-Operative Hay Growers, to the East Oregonian of Monday. Mr. Hunt says:

"The heavy losses suffered by hay growers during the last two years have caused many to plow up large areas of their fields and a large number of their producing sections of the producing sect
