LIVESTOCK PRODUCERS MAY EXPECT BRISK BUSINESS WITH MEAT PACKERS

Thomas E. Wilson Says Industry Has Eliminated All Unhealthy Business Conditions and Is in Position for Year of Profitable Operations, Which Means More Profits For Livestock Growers.

Written Specially for THE GAZETTE-TIMES by THOMAS E. WILSON, President Wilson & Co, Chicago

NEW YORK, FEB. 21.—The meat packing industry has entered upon an unmistakably definite period of better business and unless some severe and unforeseen circumstances are encountered, 1923 must be a year of profitable operation for ourselves as well as the live stock producers.

If we do not prosper in 1923 the fault can properly be traced to those running this business, for all conditions augur an opportunity that has been absent in our industry for several years past.

The outlook is brightened considerably by the fact that we entered upon our fiscal year without being confronted by an accumulation of troublesome stocks and other unhealthy conditions which are now eliminated.

This encouraging factor is shown in our current stocks being at a level that ought to be normally carried and which should be marketed at a profit.

We find that the demand for our products is very brisk due to the greatly improved industrial conditions.

Fresh meats alone are rarely ever marketed at a profit; so the free movement of meat alone does not always indicate profitable operation of the industry; therefore, our profits must be realized from the development and sale of by-products in conjunction with the meat.

Improved industrial and labor conditions also have reflected themselves in a more active demand for our by-products.

When there is a quickened demand by the consumers it is because the great portion of our people who depend upon their labor for wages are more regularly employed at wages which permit them to purchase more liberal supplies of clothing, shoes, furniture, etc.

This immediately is seen by increased demands of industry in general, which requires large quantities of hides, wool, curled hair, oils, glue, and many other of our by-products which are utilized in the manufacture of goods required by the people.

These are important items of our business and their free movement on an active market such as is indicated for 1923 is of considerable importance to our net results for the year.

Prosperity seems to be in the air in this country. Many factory smoke stacks which have been but huge
