EFFECT OF A STATE INCOME TAX IT is the farmer and the worker who will suffer most heavily from the stic life of America. If fathers do not go back to their effect more marked than any other Oregon to California and Washington,

Loss of one week's pay to a wageearner through lack of employment means a much heavier loss to that wags-earner than would be any pos-sage-earner tanh would be any pos-sible saving he might make in reduc-tion of taxes on his Oregon home by virtue of a state income tax.

Loss of a local market for his crops means much more loss to a far-mer than any saving he might make by the small reduction in property taxes that is bosed for from the taxes that is hoped for from the taxes that is hoped for from the state income tax.

Diverting industrial investment from Oregon means that Oregon labor will be deprived of just that much employment and the Oregon farmer will be deprived of just that much of a market. much of a market.

An active market for labor and for farm products is created by the es-tablishment and growth of manufacturing industry. Anything which tends to retard that growth reduces the activity of the demand for labor and for farm products. The farmer and the laborer will be the chief sufferers should Oregon ratify an in-come tax law the certain effect of which will be to divert new indus-

Washington will qualify for practic-ally all of their stock under this new term permit arrangement. The plant will affect approximately a million head of sleep and over 200,000 head of nattle and horses in these two sines. This period of secured use is couble that heretofere allowed. The longer term permit is being granted largely for the purpose of enabling the steemen who are dependent upon national forest ranges to better finance their operations, forest officials stats. It will also encourage better management which will be possible under the certainty of a lunger period of range use.

Ten year permits will be issued only to stockmen who own commenturate and dependent ranch property. The permits will be issued for the to using the national forest ranges. It may be necessary to make reduc-tion in numbers to protect the forest ranges during any year of the permit peried and should this reduction am-cent to or exceed the 10 per cent then there will be no reduction for the admission of new owners. All readjustments, such as changes in allotment boundaries, grazing fees or other administrative adjustments will be made at the end of the first five years of the ten year permit. All ad-justments, however, will be kept at a minimum during the term of the per-mit.

The new grazing fees which are to e arrived at after appraisal of the ational forest ranges is completed ill also go into effect beginning in 26. These new fees were to go to effect during 1924 but action was stronged as that the livestock in-stry would have time to recover artially from the recent period of topression. The new system of graz-ng permits and the new fees will go into effect at the same time, the of-
