Richard Lloyd Jones Says:

UMPIRE YOUR OWN GAME.

BOYS have the greatest respect for the fellows who play square. The boy who cheats, who breaks the rules of the game, may seem to be successful; he may claim the fruits of temporary victories, but once he is discovered in wrong-doing, he has lost more than in all the hollow victories he seems to have gained. His playfellows view him with suspicion; he has lost the priceless possession of confidence and trust.

The world is ever ready to cheer for the fellow who will honestly lose and find victory in losing. The world has nothing but contempt for him who seeks victory by a conduct that short-circuits character.

When the New England baseball league brought its season to an end a few years ago excitement ran high among the fans. The two teams that played off for the pennant had each won two games in the final contest. The bleachers were packed to witness the one last struggle that should decide.

In the last half of the ninth inning, the score stood 2 to 1 against the team at bat. There were two out; two men on bases; the batter up had twice fanned the air; the grandstand was tense.

The pitcher delivered; the batter swung; the grandstand sprang to its feet—a phenomenal hit. The ball shot upward and outward as if started on a journey to Mars. The fielder raced to the corner of the grounds; it was a desperate race.

The keeper of the grounds had not calculated that any ball would be driven so far. Along the fence there was a margin of tall grass. Into this the fielder raced. He sprang for it, and with it fell into the grass. The crowd stood breathless. Then from the grass the fielder rose and held high the ball in his hand, an evidence that he had made the catch, that he had made an out, completed the inning, won the game, gained the pennant for his team.

The moment was his. The fans of his city spent their wild enthusiasm in maddening cheers. Then all changed. The hand that held the ball high was lowered and the head that had risen defiantly out of the tall grass sank and was shaken negatively. The cheering ceased; funeral silence lay over the bleachers like a cloudy blanket.

The fielder had won a victory that was above the pale of pennants. He who hung his head in humiliation was lifted into the glory of heroism by men who admired a man who dared umpire himself honestly, who could put the Golden Rule upon a baseball diamond and make it a thing of matchless glory.

Every man is instinctively honest. Every man wants to be honest. But the hunger for success, the ear that aches to hear his fellow men cheer, ofttimes dulls the conscience to compromise with self to shade the truth with shallow falsehood. But each such compromise makes more blunt and bending that conscience which is the prop of character. And victory real victory, comes only to those who have made character the Gibraltar of their lives.

The boy who learns to play the game squarely will become the man who plays the game of life squarely; who will take no mean advantage; who knows that no game is ever won unless it is rightly won.

THE FIELD TOO SMALL.

THE Pendleton Tribune has suspended publication as a daily paper, and beginning on the 14th of this month it will be issued hereafter as a weekly, under new management. Editor Harry Kuck will go to California, where he expects to engage again in the newspaper game. This leaves the daily field at Pendleton to the East Oregonian, which is suitably equipped in every way to care for the field, as Pendleton was not large enough to support two papers in the daily class, and the Tribune was never able to measure up to the standard set by its evening competitor.

There were, perhaps, many reasons why the Morning Tribune failed to reach the heights that its worthy and ambitious young editor and proprietor had visioned. The tendency is toward elimination in both the daily and weekly fields, and where one or two papers in a community fill the requirements, it is considered better business and in the line of economy to eliminate the extras, whose support only becomes a tax on the business and of the community. After commenting to some extent upon the increased cost of labor and high price of newsprint, the two big factors in the production of newspapers, the East Oregonian says:

"But this is not all of the story by any means. Before the war and when production costs were not especially troublesome the same tendency toward elimination of needless newspapers was on. In 1856 Chicago had five morning newspapers. Now it has but two. Yet the circulation of those two is vastly in excess of the total circulation of the five that existed in 1856. New York has three less morning dailies than it had in 1856, yet the total circulation of the New York morning newspapers has doubled meanwhile. There has been a decrease in the number of newspapers but newspaper readers are constantly increasing, so business would seem to justify more publishers rather than fewer.

"The reverse is true. Under natural conditions the fewer newspapers a town has the better. This is true for the same reason that one telephone system in a town is better than two or more competing systems. Duplication of service is expensive. The reason why six big dailies in New York and Chicago ceased publication within the last 18 years was because both advertiser and subscriber gradually rallied behind the larger and better papers. By doing so they got much better service at less cost. No business man wishes to run an advertisement in two newspapers when by using but one he can reach the same people at one half the cost. The interests of the subscriber are akin to those of the advertiser. He is served better if his town has one good newspaper than if it has two or more weak papers."

Punchettes

FROM THE SHOULDER.

THE world is constantly hurling accusation at the church, but it does not point you to the real robbers. Would a man rob God? No. But a Bolshevik, hypocrite, and heretic would. They are robbing the church every day.

They are sending their agents, their rationalistic and Bolshevistic heretics into the church. Of course, they have to perjure themselves and singe their own souls in order to get in. Then when they enter the church their obligations begin not to the church but to the conspirators against the church. There isn't a heretic in the church today who isn't the conscious or unconscious agent of the conspirators who are trying to rob the church of her influence and power.

Heresy is not an intellectual evolution; it is absolute proof of the total depravity of mankind. These agents preach their false doctrines because they are part of a conspiracy to destroy the world's confidence in the church.

There is another group of conspirators and robbers who are both in and out of the church. Their method is to take from the church for circular use every dollar that they can possibly extract from the members. They are constantly devising schemes and plans and organizations and methods by which the church member is relieved of his money and is made to contribute to organizations, methods, plans, and programs, which are antagonistic to the spiritual work of the church.

Nearly seventy per cent of all the moneys contributed to these outside competing antagonistic and destructive agencies is contributed by the members of the Christian Church. They are robbing the church member, the church organization, and God in order that they may fill the coffers of the devil and build up the institutions of hell. They are all co-conspirators with the infamous heretics that are today making their attacks upon the church, upon the Bible, and upon Christ.

Poem by Uncle John

FOR A RAINY DAY.

UNLESS I'm poor at guessin' there ain't a grander blessin' that's sent to cheer this anxious world of ours. . . When the farmer starts to frettin' and the medder needs a wettin'—the thing that helps the bettin' is the showers. . . . I've saw a heap of weather-takin' years, an' years together,—an' I reckon I have et my sheer of dust,—and I've allers been befriended, when the fervid drouth was ended by a copious an' splendid thunder-gust! And I've never had it fail me, when the prickly heat would ail me,—I'd do my level best to not complain, for I know my blessed Master watches His earthly pastur' and will jugulate disaster with a rain. . . In spite of their devotion, there's some that get a notion, that fortune or misfortune's only luck,—but it's been my observation, there's mighty close relation between a man's salvation,—and his pluck! And so, in rainy weather, I never wonder whether we face annihilation by the flood, —but I keep my sperit happy with a rhyme that's nice an' snappy, though my cloze is wet an' flappy with the mud!
