Richard Lloyd Jones Says:

DOING OUR DUTY LEADS TO POWER.

DUTY.—This is a positive word. Imposed on every living creature is upon an obligation. Duty demands that this obligation be met. He who fails to meet it is a drone. The world discards its drones. Do not let yourself be cast into the discard.

Duty is a stern taskmaster. It commands us to be useful, not according to our desires, but according to our powers.

Duty will tolerate neither slight nor neglect. The more you shirk it the higher it piles up before you. If you break the thread in the loom by being false to your duty today you may confront the flaw tomorrow, when you will have forgotten its cause and are helpless to mend it.

Duties seldom come through choice. They are the lot of destiny. The reward for doing one's duty is the power to fulfill another.

The arm that swings the hammer grows strong. The conscience that soldier-like, pursues duty daily develops character.

Duty is the acid test of manhood. It marks heroes and shows the shame of pretenders.

Duty is not spasmodic—it does not confront us occasionally; it is constant. Some duty meets each of us face to face every day. We cannot meet it by long jumps. We must follow it step by step.

Duty measures time cautiously. With every duty we are given the time in which to do it. But we are not given time to spare. Neglect will forfeit fulfillment. Do your duty now. Take no chance. Duty delayed spells failure.

Pleasure often appears to be in conflict with duty because in attempting to discharge our duty we do only what we are strictly obliged to do, and we feel we are seldom praised for it. Yet the pleasure of a man of honor enjoys in the consciousness of having performed his duty is a reward he pays himself for all his pains.

The first, the last, and the greatest pleasure in life is the sense of having discharged our duty.

A CONVENTION OF PATRIOTISM.

THE city of Washington has just finished entertaining the annual convention of Shriners. In a peculiar sense the nation was the host, for Washington not only is governed and financed by Shriners, but during the convention many agencies of the federal government actively participated to make it a success.

Furthermore, President Harding, himself a member of the Shrine at Columbus, Ohio, took an active part in all of the Shrine ceremonies, and with Mrs. Harding, reviewed all parades. The White House was thrown open and was daily visited literally by thousands of Shriners in attendance at the convention. Scores of delegations paid formal calls upon the President and the ladies of the convention paid special tribute to the First Lady of the Land.

Postmaster General New, another noble, a member of the Shrine Temple at Indianapolis, established a Shrine postoffice and rendered 100 per cent efficient postal accommodation to the hundreds of thousands of visitors during the week. Secretary of Labor Davis was a speaker at one of the Shrine meetings.

One of the chief features of entertainment were the exhibition drills and maneuvers of units furnished by the army and navy. The army made additional contribution by giving exhibitions on the Potomac River while both army and navy fliers gave aerial circuses each day. The show places of the federal government, such as the Congressional Library, Bureau of Printing and Engraving, etc., made an especial effort to entertain the visitors.

But the outstanding feature of the convention was the patriotic favor of the delegations of Shriners which was matched only by the enthusiasm with which the tens of thousands of spectators greeted such exhibition. Over 100 bands furnished music almost 24 hours a day. At a dozen different places in the city the was

Poem by Uncle John

Oh, a dainty job is the sailor lid, as she perches o'er ruins old . . .
when the large pink ears that can't be hid, are tanned to a russet gold.
And a forso red, adds rehenemy rare to the scenery ferminat the bean.
It's the old box, fresh from the barber-chair, that's dirting with sweet sisters!

I dote on the guy in the damp sweat-shop, who turns out the sailor lid . . . for the old paloot with the egg-shell tops, is vain as the average kiss. He parades Broadway in a manner gay, and takes on the goo gee eye.—He's a masher hold—though a rooster old,—can't somebody tell me why?

I darren't go near to Lover's Lane, topped out in a sailor new . . . for fear I might addle some Dearie's brain—which my wife wouldn't want me to. . . So, I stick around my vine-clad porch, to keep my attractions hid. . . For, nothin' will kindle flirtation's torch, like a bran' new sailor lid!

It was during the parade, however, that the hundreds of thousands who were in Washington furnished the most significant exhibition of their intense nationalism. Of course every delegation was headed by a color-bearer with the American flag and in many cases each unit of a delegation.
Not a flag passed the reviewing stand above the blare of the street, it invariably brought hats off and hands to salute.

These silent and poorly paid workers in bare looking experimental rooms in the national capital every of dollars to the income of the nation. They should take a lesson from the hen and let themselves be heard from.

One flag, one land,
One country!

those in seats arose and joined with those standing in cheer after cheer.
The spirit of America pervaded and dominated the entire convention.
There was no politics. There were no partisans. All were Americans. As Thomas Jefferson exclaimed in his first inaugural address, "Every difference in opinion is not a difference of principle. We have called by different names brethren of the same principles. We are all Republicans; we are all Federalists." And so in this convention the outstanding fact that although delegations were composed of Republicans and Democrats, radicals and conservatives, none of these distinctions were thought of because all were Americans with whom the institutions of our nation and the honor of Old Glory stood fast.

Had the visiting thousands been asked to give utterance to the thought uppermost in their minds, they would no doubt have all subscribed to the sentiments expressed by Daniel Webster in his speech of dedication of the Bunker Hill Monument:

"Our principal business is improvement. Let our age be the age of improvement. In a day of peace let us advance the arts of peace and the works of peace. Let us develop the resources of our land, call forth its powers, build up its institutions, and promote its great interests." . . .
Let our object be, our country, our whole country, and nothing but our country!"

LET OUR TOWN BE HEARD FROM.
I talk, the principles of democracy would soon be spread over the globe, for there is scarce a land under the sun where the eagle of our barn-

We take this means of expressing to you, through the columns of what we still call our paper, our appreciation of the splendid cooperation accorded the office while we were privileged to serve you in the capacity of County Agent.

Copper Carbonate has proven to be more than we had dared to hope, controlling the smut without any injury to the germination making it possible to seed in the dust at the same time reducing the rate of seedling 35 per cent. The seed can be treated in advance of seeding too, which is another great advantage.

It means that practically every farmer in the Northwest will be using that method of treating this fall. Every farmer who knows of the method and the greatly increased yields is already purchasing machines with which to do the work.

So great will the demand for machines be that it will be practically impossible to secure them promptly without ordering in advance and for your protection we have arranged to have Mr. Ralph Finley who will be our representative in that section call on you and show you the CALKINS IMPROVED WHEAT TREATING MACHINE so that you can place your order in the near future.

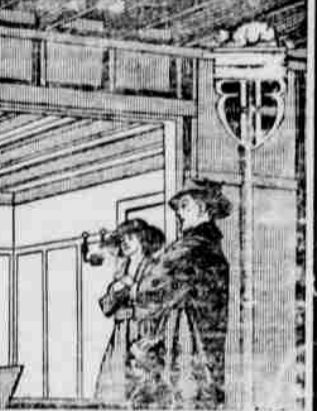

Mr. Finley will have 500 farmers to see in Morrow and Gilliam counties and it will be impossible to see you all at once. THEREFORE, if you will write us we will send you a circular giving a clear cut of the improved machine and all details on price and purchase.

You can then order direct at your convenience. You will appreciate the fact that you ordered early before seedling time is over. Address communications to wreck they have produced. They are responsible for the late war. They are also responsible for the crime wave sweeping this country and Europe. The orgy of sin and crime can be traced directly to false teachings. Like the vultures they make a feast of the decaying carcass. Not satisfied with the murder, expense, wreck, and ruin produced, they have written a shorter Bible which will perpetuate the orgy.

The astonishing thing is that there are leaders connected with the certain religious organizations who have lent their names and their influence to the infamous, hell-born production called the Shorter Bible. If these organizations permit their names and the names of their leaders to be attached to this abortion, then the righteous, orthodox Christian forces of America should crush them. Our boys and girls cannot be entrusted to the leadership or to the educational and club features of institutions drawing their sustenance from the churches of the living Christ, to have the faith of those children undermined by such infamous attacks upon God's infallible Word.

The Shorter Bible, so called, is one of the most blasphemous attacks upon God's Holy Bible.
Orthodox, self-respecting, consecrated men and women will not be insulted by such attacks of the rationalistic forces.
