FOOT AND MOUTH DISEASE

From State Board of Health.

Foot and mouth disease is an acute and highly communicable infection which occurs chiefly in cattle and other cloven-footed animals. The virus of this disease is of historic interest, since it was the first to be defined as filterable and ultra micro-scopic. This means that it will pass through pores of the finest filters, and scientists are not able to demonstrate the organism under the micro-scope. It is essentially a disease of cattle, but it also attacks sheep and swine. In cattle it causes small, fine blisters in the mouth and on the skin between the hoofs. There is a characteristic "lobbering,"—a licking and smacking of the lips as though the animal were attempting to rid itself of foreign material adhering to the side of the mouth. Lameness frequently occurs. The animal suffers a loss of appetite, emaciation and marked diminution in the quantity of milk. More rarely the eruption appears on the udder, and it is this localization that is chiefly responsible for the virus in the milk. The time that the disease appears after infection is from two to six days. The disease has a very low mortality, generally from 1 to 3 per cent, but its highly infectious nature makes it one of the highest economic importance. The attack lasts normally from ten to twenty days, but has been known to continue for a year. It has been demonstrated in the recent epidemic in California that this disease is not easily controlled, and radical measures, therefore, must be taken to stamp it out. The disease is extremely prevalent in European countries and carries great economic loss.

Porter Lectures

John B. Ford, Pullman car porter, who, upon invitation lectured, from his viewpoint, on "Transportation," at Dartmouth and Harvard colleges. "Molasses catches more flies than water," he said, referring to his 80 per month tips.

After two to five or even ten days the characteristic eruption develops in the mouth, on the skin, hands, and feet, with swelling, burning, and numbness. The secretion of saliva is increased and the little blisters break down and form ulcers. The disease is self-limited and the ulcers heal, leaving no scar. Fortunately the disease is rare in man, and there are no permanent untoward effects. Health authorities are advised to use every precaution to prevent the entrance of the infection into their state. All shipments from the infected area should be passed on by the state veterinarian and the local health official. This precaution should be especially observed by those living in ports of entry. Report all suspicious conditions to the State Veterinarian, Salem, Oregon, or the State Health Officer, Portland, Oregon.

W. L. Morgan and wife of Pendleton are visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. L. McCaleb, and with other relatives in this vicinity this week. He is a brother of Mrs. McCaleb and Mrs. J. P. Conder, a former Heppner boy and ex-service man. He and Mrs. Morgan are expecting to leave for France the end of this month, sailing from New York on the 29th and returning to the former home of Mrs. Morgan for an extended visit, if not to locate permanently.

A big motor freight line settles THE OIL QUESTION—

The Consolidated Motor Freight Lines, Inc., of Oakland, Calif., has solved its lubrication problem — by standardizing on Zerolene.

Independent Tests Verify Claims

Subjecting the anti-western oil superstition to the test of actual comparison in service, this Company verified independently our claims that Zerolene will lubricate the modern automobile engine as well or better than any oil on the market, irrespective of price, and whether of eastern or western origin. A part of their letter follows:

"During the past three or four years we have experimented with various brands of eastern and western lubricating oils, including Zerolene oil. The results of these tests have proved to our satisfaction that Zerolene lubricates our equipment with the greatest efficiency.

"Our recent decision to lubricate our trucks exclusively with Zerolene oils has resulted in the reduction to a minimum of mechanical difficulties which were due to faulty lubrication."

Less Carbon—Better Gasoline Mileage

ZEROLENE F for FORDS

—the Standard Oil Company's new improved oil for Ford cars. "Feeds Those Oil-Starved Fords."

Why pay tribute to a superstition? The use of Zerolene, of the proper body, will not only cut down your oil bill, but give you better continuous lubrication, and better lubrication means greater gasoline mileage, less carbon, lower upkeep costs, and a longer life for your car.

Insist on Zerolene, even if it does cost less.

STANDARD OIL COMPANY (CALIFORNIA)

This booklet reports independent service tests of Zerolene made by a number of large users. Ask any Standard Oil Sales representative or Zerolene dealer for a copy.
