This money comes principally from the pockets of the business men and citizens. times as much parcel post charges if the bill new being considered by a special committee of Congress becomes a law. Not only does it propose to increase the rates on parcel post packages, but it would greatly increase the charge on fourth class matter. This is of greater import to farmers than any other class although the parcel post, of course, is universally used. It estens the farmer both going and coming, for he has to pay postage on what he said pay postage on what he receives and as a producer he has to pay postage on what he ships, and his prices are not set by himself but by the quotations on his market whether it be close by or at a distance. The parcel post charges in this respect are no different than the transporta-with the purchasing power of agriculture reduced to its lowest ebb, that any increase in the parcel post rate and the purchasing the service of the parcel post rates now, considering the service that is rendered, are so close to the express rates that any increase in the parcel post rates now, considering the service that is rendered, are so close to the express rates that any increase in the parcel post rates now. Considering the service that is rendered, are so close to the express rates that any increase in the parcel post rates now. Considering the service that is rendered, are so close to the express rates that any increase in the former will mean that shipments by parcel post will be greatly curtailed to the benefit of the express companies. Further the Post Office Department is a service department. Nobady expects it to make money. All branches of any business are not equally preditable and cannot be expected to be made so. If an extra burden of increased rates is placed on the parcel post system it will only make it less produable than at present. There is a grave question as to whether the parcel post part in the ballet, a ballot not aimed to the made so. If an extra burden of increased rates is placed on the parcel post system it will only make it less produable than at present. There is a grave question as to whether the parcel post is not practically self-supering at the present image. At any rate, Congress appropriated one-half million dollars, for the purpose of making a detail study of the cost of carrying all mail, including parcel post and fourth class mail. Takes are high enough now mail right, 1924, and the date of the first parcel post and fourth class mail. Takes are high enough now mail right to control of the summons and notice, which date is the post and fourth class amail. Takes are high enough now mail to the description of the isoth that the fact and the propose of making a detail study of the cost of carrying all mail including parcel post and fourth class and including parcel post a upon parcel post and fourth class mail. Taxes are high enough now without throwing one-half million dollars aside and making an unscien-tific readjustment of postal rates. Following the usual custom, the city will dispose of any rubbish or trash that may be gathered up on this The Post Office Department has compiled all of the data at immense expense, yet for some reason Congress has gotten into a feverish haste in day, free of charge to the property owners and renters and residents which it wishes to revise the rates this session before the Post Office De-partment can advise it intelligently regarding the proper distribution of costs. It will take the Department three or four months or more to anal yze the vast volume of records which they have secured through the expen-diture of this one-half million dollars and therefore any action which Conthe Department's studies. Any Con-expended so as to guide him in his This proposal to increase the postal rates on the things the farmer buys and sells undoubtedly has its origin in the determination on the part of somebody to increase the sal-aries of postal employees. It is gen-erally admitted, however, that the postal employees, taking them by and large, receive sa high wages or sallarge, receive so high wages or sal-aries as is paid in industry for simaries as is paid in industry for similar positions. Of course, there are inequalities as in any large institution and these undoubtedly will be adjusted. The point which the farmers make, however, is: Why make them carry the entire burden by increasing the rates on parcel post and fourth class matter? Certainly it is
