Why The Senate May Pick Our Next President

WHY SENATE MAY CHOOSE PRESIDENT

tatives in that state. This point grasped it to be remembered that the "bloes" in several delegations held the balance of power. Thus the La Follette-Wheeler candidacy becomes something to be reckoned with.

Anyone familiar with the line up in the House last year can see how likely it is that neither Davis nor Coolidge would be able to obtain a majority vote in the House in February.

A deadlock is quite on the cards—a repetition of the Democratic National Convention, perhaps, until March 4, 1925. At that time the new House comes into being, but THE NEW HOUSE HAS NOTHING TO DO WITH THE CHOICE OF A PRESIDENT.

In the event of a deadlock until the disintegration of the present House the duty would pass to the Senate, and here it must be remembered that THE SENATE VOTES ONLY FOR THE VICE-PRESIDENT AND NOT FOR THE PRESIDENT. If the country stands without a President, that office, being vacant, must be filled by the man chosen as Vice-President by the Senate.

At this point we read another elimination. The Senate is limited to vote for the two highest candidates. So the likelihood is the choice would lie between General Dawes and Governor Egan.

Different in Senate. Now we come to the Senate vote. The Senate does not vote by states like the House. The Senators vote as individuals, and a majority vote decides. The Senate membership being 96, 48 votes would elect a Vice-President, who would immediately succeed to the Presidency, just as Coolidge succeeded Harding as soon as the vacancy occurred.

In the present Senate there are 41 Democrats, 51 Republicans and 2 Farmer-Laborites. These figures would appear to ensure the election of Dawes, providing there is no change in the character of the Senate as a result of the November elections, and providing always that La Follette would not switch a number of Republican Senators from the Coolidge-Dawes ticket and procure votes for Bryan. The margin is narrow, and La Follette might easily be the deciding factor.

One need only go back to 1916 to see how delicate is the present situation. In that year the electoral college stood 237 for Wilson and 234 for Hughes. A third party candidate, running on a platform of "16 to 16," would have won.

thrown the election into the House. How many electoral votes La Follette will control as a result of the coming election is something for political writers to figure on. It may be something for the two dominant parties to consider seriously.

La Follette supporters are claiming he will carry between eight and sixteen states. If he carries only Wisconsin, Minnesota, North Dakota, South Dakota and Montana, such result would likely prevent either Coolidge or Davis from winning the necessary majority of 266 votes to elect the President. Even the electoral vote of any one state might prevent a majority.
