

Local Happenings

David Hynd and sister Miss Anna Hynd returned to Morrow county the last of the week from a vacation spent at Portland and the coast. David and Will Hynd were Heppner visitors on Monday. Dave says the feed situation for live stock this coming winter is not critical in spite of the shortage of the hay crop this year, as there is an abundance of feed left from last year. A heavy crop last season and light feeding during the winter months due to the mild weather are responsible for the supply.

Due to the peach shortage, people will be glad to know of any opportunity to obtain them. A. E. Anderson, former Morrow county resident, now a fruit grower near The Dalles, announces that he has some choice peaches for sale. See his local ad in these columns.

CAMP GROUND SANITATION

From State Board of Health.

On account of the rapid increase in the number of automobiles and the constant improvement in methods of transportation, the problems of camp ground sanitation are becoming increasingly more important. This is especially true in regard to the Pacific Coast states, owing to the many attractions offered by this section to tourists and summer campers. No vacation is considered complete these days that does not include a visit to the Pacific Coast. In order to meet this situation, without endangering the public health, it is necessary to pay more attention to the sanitation of our camping grounds.

What is meant by the sanitation of camp grounds? Obviously, the problems of camp ground sanitation are not materially different from those of the sanitation of homes and small communities. In general they include the questions of site or location, water supplies, insect pests, the disposal of garbage and of human waste, and the proper policing of the grounds. In addition to this, there are certain sanitary appliances and equipment, which must be provided for every camp ground, before it can be approved by the State Board of Health.

In choosing a camp ground site, a great deal of attention is generally paid to the wonderful scenery, the picturesque surroundings, the proximity of fishing, hunting and bathing resorts, but little attention is generally paid to the safety of the water supply and the proper disposal of garbage and waste.

The rules and regulations of the Oregon State Board of Health make the management responsible for the sanitary conditions of camp grounds, and also for the equipment and sanitary appliances on the same. A caretaker must be employed to visit the grounds daily and see that they are kept clean and sanitary, and free from litter. An adequate and safe water supply must be provided for the campers. If a water supply is unsafe or doubtful, it must be eliminated or placarded, warning against its use. Water flush toilets or sanitary privies, both for men and women, must be provided within a reasonable distance. Fly-tight vessels must be provided for garbage and waste and these must be emptied daily. Copies of the rules and regulations are required to be printed and posted on the grounds in conspicuous places. Copies of these rules and regulations may be obtained from the State Board of Health.

PIONEER PICNIC SUCCESS.

A large gathering of pioneers of Gilliam and Wheeler counties enjoyed a four-day picnic at the Julia A. Henderson camp grounds on Service creek on the John Day highway Thursday, Friday, Saturday and Sunday of last week. Singing, speaking and talking over old times in the camp fire's glare constituted part of each day's program. Speeches were made by Messrs. Simmons, Wheeler and others and Mrs. Emmet Cochran of Heppner sang several solos as part of the musical program. Mrs. Cochran also led the community singing. The picnic is an annual event and those in charge extend a cordial invitation to everyone to attend next year's session.

FIRE AT WELLS HOME.

A small blaze at the home of J. J. Wells, county assessor, in the lower end of town Friday afternoon was the cause of considerable excitement. The fire started on the exterior of the house and had a good start when the chemical truck arrived. Application of chemicals soon had it under control, and a volunteer brigade removed the contents a safe distance from the house out of danger of harm by fire or water. The roof and two rear rooms were quite badly damaged, but sufficient insurance is carried to cover all repairs.
