GOING ARE OUR FOREIGN GRAIN MARKETS.

AMERICAN farmers who have reaped their planted acreage of wheat of 76,683,000 acres in 1919 to 27,111,000 in 1924 is both justifiable and wise in the opinion of Theodore D. Hammett, investigator for the Department of Commerce, who sees in the move the possibility of the passing of the United States as a wheat exporting country.

In the opinion of Mr. Hammett was dislocated the whole system of international trade in breadstuffs. Russia, India, Argentina and Australia, all large growers of wheat, fell more or less into the background during the war, while the United States and Canada entered more importantly into the competitive field.

Many elements enter into the developing of a great world trade in breadstuffs just as they enter into world trade in manufactured goods. Labor plays a part, but basically the shipping problem is the key to the situation.

It means that America no longer can govern routes. It means we cannot designate shipping ports nearest the points of greatest production, or ports of arrival at points of nearest distribution.

GET THE FACTS STRAIGHT. IN BOTH Missouri and Oregon electors will be asked to vote on the question of monopolistic state compensation insurance at coming elections.

Pamphlets, booklets, newspaper articles and other material are being spread broadcast in these two states telling the people how they are being robbed by private insurance companies.

In the voter's pamphlet which has now been distributed in Oregon, the inconsistent part of the argument for monopolistic state insurance is that private companies, by writing insurance at low rates, have caused the state fund to lose 1300 accounts, therefore, the law should be made monopolistic and exclude private companies from the field.

It would be well for the public to remember that: That an argument against monopolistic state compensation insurance is not an argument against the workmen's compensation act, not an argument against the right and power of the state to define and specify how much, when, and where and how a workman should be paid by an employer for injury received by an employee in the course of his work.

The argument against monopolistic state compensation insurance is that there is no more cause for excluding private insurance companies from writing workmen's compensation insurance in accordance with existing state laws, than there is for excluding banks from doing a banking business under existing state laws in order that the state might set up monopolistic state banking.

Workmen can secure every protection under a properly drawn state workmen's compensation law which permits an employer to carry his insurance with a private company, that they can secure under a law requiring the employer to carry his insurance with the state. This is the real point at issue and not any fight between employers and their employees or insurance companies and an insured workman.

State insurance is state socialism. If it can be established in one line of business, it can be established in another.—The Manufacturers.

JUSTICE CONFOUNDED BY YOUTH.

JUDGE CAVERLY'S decision in the Leonard and Loeb case stands out as a milestone in the march of criminal procedure in this country. Indeed criminologists of note believe the decision has dealt a death blow to capital punishment from which it will not long be able to survive.

It seems obvious in view of the court's refusal to sentence to death these two assassins on account of their youth that Illinois cannot well hang young Bernard Grant, only nineteen, who refused to plead guilty on promise of a twenty-one year sentence, professed his innocence went to trial and now stands in the shadow of the gallows as a result.

Grant is poor. Loeb and Leopold had command of millions. This difference of course meant nothing except that it enabled the more aristocratic murderers to engage illustrious counsel, to pit the matchless reasoning power and confounding logic of a Darwin against the mentality of a Caverly, whereas in all likelihood Grant had to defend him only an attorney of average attainment, certainly one far less able to analyze complex, reflex, mental reactions and other psychological factors that enter into further education and higher assassination. In the one case the mentality of the bar seemed to rise superior to the mentality of the bench. In the other the reverse was the fact.

The Grant case is now to be forced before the Illinois Board of Pardons. Consequently that body is face to face with a perplexing problem. Not to

Out in front and nothing can stop 'em! WHEN the favorite really hits his stride, it's all over but the shouting. And in a race for sales it's the same story. Some months ago, Chesterfields hit their stride. And they have kept up a record-breaking pace ever since—gaining over 1000 more smokers every day. A cigarette of such high quality, such untiring good taste, certainly deserves to win. And Chesterfields are winning—nothing can stop 'em!
