BIGGER AND BETTER THAN EVER

Rebuilding the Home of the Pacific International Livestock Exposition

Above are pictured the new buildings, August 23rd, just one month after the fire. When people heard that the Pacific International Livestock Exposition at Portland had been destroyed, it was like a blow in the face. But the indomitable spirits who formed it first, who labored for its establishment and continuance were not daunted.

Within a few days, work had been begun on a new home, "bigger and better than ever," and now it is nearing completion. The contractors have promised to have it done and ready for occupancy by October 25th, and the great Exposition will open its doors to the public on the morning of November 1st with a larger and more beautiful show than ever in its history.

The new structure is modeled in general after the old one, for the arrangement and plan of the former one was hard to beat. The stadium has been enlarged, however, and forty feet have been added to its length, and the seating capacity has been increased to 7000.

The horse department has been enlarged and improved, as has the poultry department, while the boys' and girls' clubs will have a department exclusively for their exhibits.

Magnificent animals from all over the United States will show what breeding and scientific care can do with the race of dairy cows. World record animals of various breeds are promised and the dairy department will be a union of beauty and utility no to be surpassed anywhere in the world. The breeders of cattle vie with each other for numbers and excellence, and there is always a sportsmanlike struggle in the show ring between breeders for the coveted blue ribbon.

Collected within the walls of the immense Exposition building are not only the finest dairy cattle to be found anywhere in the world, but hundreds of other animals, representing the time, labor and thought and work of centuries to bring them to as near perfection as the ingenuity of man can compass. Nor is this all. The products of the soil in their glory of color and fragrance, the accomplishments of the boys and girls in useful endeavor and other things worthy of study and enjoyment will be found at the Pacific International, November 1 to 8 inclusive.

Such mixtures we do not favor, because they are not real economy and because they constitute an unfair and injurious competition. They deprive people of something far more important than their alleged cheap spread.

This law will not prevent the importation of coconut oil or corn. There is a place for coconut oil and other vegetable oils. If we open the Bible we will find frequent references to milk, butter and cheese as products of merit. We also read something of vegetable oils, not as foods, but as cleansing agents.

It is freely admitted that vegetable oils are valuable as soap ingredients. Nor is it denied that they may have some food value. But if they are to appear as foods let them come out in the open for just exactly what they are. If they are of value why do they have to masquerade? Why must they be forever hiding behind milk?

The intent and purpose of this law is simple and plain. We want to stop counterfeiting butter with a substitute which takes the valuable ingredient out of butter and puts in something less valuable. We want it stopped in Oregon.

If this law is defeated a number of things will follow:

First, it will be a great victory for the oleo industry over the dairy industry. Cheap oleo may be mixed with skim milk and turn out what is said to be a substitute for butter. It is but a step from this to using mineral oils, oils refined from petroleum.

Second, the dairy industry will begin to decline. It cannot help it. There will be fewer cows, poorer soils, heavier taxes, and these will not be paid by the eastern oleo factories.

Third, the health of the coming generation will not be as good, for the children will have less dairy food.

Fourth, labor will find that the so-called cheap spread on bread is making cheap wages and a cheap scale of living. They will be put in competition with cheap labor of foreign lands, Asiatic labor. If cheapness is what they get on the table, they will get it in their pay envelopes, too.

These things will not come in a day or a week, but they have begun already. Just as surely as night follows day, the failure to protect our own interests will be followed by further encroachments of greedy institutions which care for nothing but making more money.

Let us realize right now that these great corporations are not spending thousands of dollars in advertising cheap spreads for butter because they love the poor people so much. If that were the case they might pay the poor coopers in the Philippines a wage that will enable them to live as civilized people should. They are not exercised over our financial condition nor the health of our babies. There is just one thing which inspires their extensive advertising campaigns, their hired speakers and paid propaganda, and that is more profit for them.

Let us vote for the law which will protect us. Let us vote 306 X Yes.

Kay Works in the Open.

Thomas B. Kay is a frank and upright man who takes the public into his confidence on all public matters. When he was state treasurer there was no mystery in his office. As a member of the state board of control he was outspoken in his discussion of the various problems that came before the board. He worked in the open. He was no back door whisperer.

As state senator and as state representative, he did not pussy-foot. His outspoken frankness and positive firmness made many an enemy for Kay, but it was his practice to speak right out on anything affecting the public interest. He always had facts, and he did not suppress or distort or manipulate them. He did not have to play the sneak.

Such a man is an asset to the state. We will be fortunate if he again is elected state treasurer. The people will know more about what is going on if he is elected. They will know it from him and from the open records of his office.

And he will not be a stool pigeon for any governor or anyone else to use as an instrument for political power.—Oregon Voter.

Confidence.

National Chairman Butler, predicting the re-election of President Coolidge, says:

"The president appeals to the common sense of the people. His character, his demonstrated fitness for his great office, have won the confidence of all."

There is an important factor of the campaign. Mr. Coolidge has impressed his ability, his good sense, his integrity and his courage on the people—not by persuasion or "gestures," but by quiet and competent performance of his duties, with the result that an abiding confidence in him has been created.

Mr. Coolidge's re-election will maintain public confidence, which is at the bottom of national prosperity.

A change at this time, when the country needs above all else a period of calm, intelligent and orderly readjustment, will disturb that confidence and retard the onward march of the nation.

And a change which would result in throwing the election into Congress, with an ensuing deadlock and the possibilities of a long down-out wrangle, would put the nation into a period of depression that is not pleasant to contemplate.

The calm, sane, American voter, confronting the situation squarely in the voting booth will believe that reliance on tried and proved men and policies is the wise and intelligent thing at this time when a steady hand and clear head are more greatly required than earnest declamation, untried theories and dangerous experiments. And that is why every American voter who understands and appreciates these things should cast his vote on November 4.—Milwaukee Sentinel.

Coolidge's War on High Taxes.

All taxes laid against productive enterprises are paid by the ultimate purchaser. Taxes are a legitimate cost item, and the selling price of any finished article is based on the total of all cost items, plus a profit on each one. The consumer pays this profit on all the taxes that figure in the cost, in addition to the taxes.

In striking at high taxes, President Coolidge is laying the axe at the root of one of the chief causes of high prices. He is reducing the cost of living. He is shortening the spread between producer and consumer. He is enabling the farmer to get a bigger share of the consumer's dollar.

It is true that measured by the figures on the tax receipt, national taxes are now much less than State and local taxes, and that the President is powerless to reduce the latter. But national taxes are grievous in themselves. Moreover, the Federal taxes are to a great extent levied against industrial, financial, transportation and utility enterprises, and individuals engaged therein, thus directly entering into costs that are pyramided and passed on. The poor man who thinks he pays no income tax is mistaken. He helps pay some of the biggest income taxes, if he buys anything at all. The farmer helps pay them when he buys a piece of machinery or any manufactured article. The working man helps them when he buys food or clothing for his family. Everybody pays.

The national debt and the cost of operating the Government are the causes of the Federal taxes. The only way to get rid of the national debt is to pay it. The only way to reduce the cost of government is to economize. President Coolidge is doing both. Strengthen his arm!

The Law on Which We Vote.

The Oleo Margarine and Condensed Milk measure is intended to protect not only the dairymen and the dairy interests alone, but everybody in the state—every merchant, every banker, every business and professional man, every institution which depends on Oregon prosperity for its own.

It is intended to protect the health of babies and children, youth and grown people, and to build a future generation worthy of our care.

It does not injure any poor people, nor does depriving them of their so-called cheap spread on bread work them any harm. There are a great many cheap things. Axe grease is quite cheap, but it should not take the place of butter. No doubt, a good chemist could doctor it up and mix it with milk and make it taste all right.

World Peace Greatly Aided By Two Moves Made By The Administration

HARDING CONFERENCE FOR THE LIMITATION OF ARMAMENTS AND DAWES PLAN REGARDED AS OF THE HIGHEST IMPORTANCE

This is the fourth of a series of five articles by Mrs. Alvin T. Hirt, vice-chairman of the Republican National Committee, and chairman of the Women's Division of that committee. Mrs. Hirt discusses about the considers vital campaign issues from the woman's standpoint.

BY MRS. ALVIN T. HIRT

There is no doubt as to the fact that the world is in a state of peace. Every nation is at peace with every other nation. The world is at peace.

The United States has, I believe, led the way in bringing peace. The Arms Conference at Washington and the Dawes Plan are the two most important steps taken in the last four years. They represent the practical accomplishments of the present Republican administration in Washington bringing about a settlement of international differences, while at the same time protecting the rights of the United States and her citizens.

The women of this country know that General Charles G. Dawes, who has been nominated by the Republican party for Vice-president, headed the commission which presented the Dawes Reparation Plan. This man had the vision and the ability to get at the economic facts underlying the situation and to present a plan for clean-cut co-operation and good will which has won the approval of sound economists everywhere.

The Republican party believes in common sense in the conduct of America's international relations. Its sincere efforts to insure peace were cited by President Coolidge in his speech accepting the Republican nomination for the Presidency, when he said: "It is so easy to forget, but the impression which the condition of our country in March, 1921 made upon the people was so deep, so vivid, so alarming that it will not soon pass away. Over two years after the armistice we were still technically in a state of war. We had no diplomatic relations with Turkey, Greece, Russia, Colombia, or Mexico and the Far East was causing grave apprehensions."

How the Republican party straightened out this chaotic condition of affairs was further noted by the President: "Perhaps in no peace time period have there been more remarkable and constructive accomplishments than since March, 1921. We have ratified separate treaties of world wide importance with Germany, Austria, Hungary, Colombia and Mexico. Forty-two other treaties have been approved by the Senate and six treaties are now awaiting its action.

"We have established our rights and insured peace in the Far East and the Pacific Ocean. Our foreign relations have been handled with a technical skill and a broad statesmanship which have seldom, if ever, been surpassed."

These steps toward world peace are actual accomplishments. The promises of the Republican party to continue its efforts in this direction were clearly stated in the platform adopted at Cleveland. The platform reaffirmed the party's stand for agreement among the nations to prevent war and preserve peace. It declared:

"As an important step in this direction we endorse the permanent Court of International Justice and favor the adherence of the United States to this tribunal as recommended by President Coolidge. This government has definitely refused membership in the League of Nations and to assume any obligations under the government of the League. On this we stand."

Women know and understand the efforts that are being made to prolong the peace of this country and the practical means that are employed for that purpose. They know that President Coolidge and General Dawes will see to it that America's honor is preserved and that America's influence is thrown on the side of peace and good will to men."
