

Local Happenings

W. E. Brown was here the end of the week from his home at Redlands, California. He came to arrange for the removal of the body of his mother from the family lot in the Masonic cemetery to the cemetery at Redlands where it will be reinterred beside the grave of her husband, the late John C. Brown. It was the request of Mr. Brown before his death that this be done. Shipment of the body was made to Redlands from Heppner the first of the week. Mr. Brown returned to Walla Walla, where he will join Mr. and Mrs. Frank Evans on the return trip to Southern California where Mr. and Mrs. Evans will spend the winter.

Al Henriksen came over from the Pendleton ranch the first of the week remaining until after election. He brought to this office a sample of the fine potatoes he raised in the garden there this season, and we can testify that they are A No. 1. He did not know what the variety is, but a few carloads of them would have been fine to place on the Heppner market. The garden on the Pendleton place, Al states, needs but little irrigation, and these potatoes were raised entirely without it.

Dr. A. D. McMurdo and Postmaster Smead returned from the mountains on Friday. They put in several days hunting deer. Dr. Mark Leach of Pendleton and Maurice Smead of Portland were also in the party. Mr. Smead killed two bucks and the doctors got one each. Mr. Smead has the thanks of the G.T. force for a fine sample of his big buck, one of the largest that has been captured this season by any of the Heppner hunters. It was excellent meat.

E. A. Kelly was down from Helix for a few days the first of the week, coming in time to cast his vote at the county election and also to attend to some other business affairs. Mr. and Mrs. Kelly are living at Helix for the winter, and Mrs. Kelly has a school near there. He expects to get into business in the Umatilla county town.

Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Matlock of Alderdale, Wash., visited with friends here for a day or so the first of the week. They will go to Victor, Montana, for the winter. Mr. Matlock had his sheep there for the summer range and decided not to move them back to Alderdale, the range and feed conditions being very poor there.

Dan Stalter arrived home from the mines of Heppner Mining company in the Greenhorns on Friday, getting here in time to cast his vote. Mr. Stalter is more enthusiastic than ever over the outlook at the mines where he has been working so long and faithfully, and feels that success has at last been attained. Samples of ore from the mine are on display at First National Bank.

Lester Doolittle spent several days in the vicinity of Ukiah the last week. While he hoped to get a deer, he was successful in killing a small brown bear instead, and bear meat has been the luxury at the Doolittle home since. He returned home on Saturday.

The ladies of the Episcopal church will hold their annual bazaar and sale of Christmas articles of fancy work at the store of Gilliam & Bisbee on Tuesday, December 2, 1924. There will be many nice things for Christmas gifts.

James Holden, printer and ex-newspaper man, who resides at Boise, Idaho, was a visitor in Heppner over Saturday night. He was a pleasant caller at this office while in the city.
