HERE IS THE WAY TO REDUCE WEIGHT
Don't stay fat when you can gradually reduce your weight to what it should be without the slightest injury or inconvenience. Get rid of the burden that may shorten your life ten years or more, and feel younger, enjoy better health.
You don't have to go on a diet, take weakening baths or indulge in tiresome exercises. Abnormal fat is generally due to the sluggish action of a small gland which permits too much food to be converted into fatty tissue. Restore this gland to proper working order and your weight should gradually reduce to the normal for your height.
The Vitas Combination Obesity treatment followed carefully, will, in time, reduce your weight to the proper amount. The complete treatment, which is enough to last about six weeks, costs you five dollars—about twelve cents per day. Sold only direct from the laboratories of the A. Schmidt Co., P. O. Box 1287, San Francisco, Calif.
Circular sent on request. Address Dept. A.

Indigestion Sometimes Sign of Serious Trouble

Warning Given That Attacks of Allment Should Not Be Treated Lightly: Diet Essential.

(From State Board of Health.)
Any refusal of the stomach to care for the food put into it, together with nausea, belching of gas, and pain in the pit of the stomach is usually called indigestion. If you are subject to these symptoms you should see a competent physician. You will very likely answer, "Why! A little bit of indigestion is nothing." In a number of times you may be right but the time when you are wrong means trouble. Indigestion may mean the beginning of serious trouble.
The most frequent cause of indigestion is improper diet. Either the amount of food is too large or the character of the food eaten is improper, or it is eaten too rapidly. It is a wonder that the human stomach does its work at all considering the way it is abused. You overload your stomach with all manner of improper foods and then it balks and you call it indigestion. The prevention of this condition is the application of common sense—regular meals, proper food, but not too much, and thorough mastication.

There are many causes of indigestion other than improper diet and it is these possible causes that demand serious consideration. Not infrequently it is the only manifestation, to yourself at least, of chronic appendicitis, ulcer and cancer of the stomach, gall-stones, kidney diseases and certain nervous disorders.
Since the first indication of many serious diseases may be indigestion, it is important that you discover the cause of your indigestion at a time when treatment may be effective. If the only thing you need is correction of diet, and you follow the advice of your physician, you will be well repaid. If it is found that your indigestion is the beginning of some serious disease, it may be that this early knowledge will make it possible to establish a cure. If, however, you elect to guess what the trouble causes

RESOLUTIONS OF CONDOLENCE.
Once again, death has visited our order and summoned our beloved sister Francis J. Gordon, from our midst; and
Whereas, the all wise and merciful Ruler of the Universe has called our beloved and respected sister home, and she having been a true and faithful member of our order, therefore be it
Resolved, that San Souci Rebekah Lodge No. 33 I. O. O. F., in testimony of her loss, drape its charter in mourning for thirty days, and that we tender to the family of our deceased sister our sincere condolence in their deep affliction and that a copy of these resolutions be sent to the bereaved family, entered upon the records of the lodge, and published in the Gazette-Times.

Scared! She Talks

Gwendolyn Caswell, twenty-two, of Chicago, was dumb since infancy. As an experiment she was taken up in an airplane and dropped straight toward earth in a nose-dive. The fright gave her speech. With tears streaming she thanked the pilot for his great risk, that she might talk again.

FARM POINTERS

In planting strawberries in Oregon the main thing is to see that the plants are set early enough for the roots to be well established before moisture runs low in the spring. Late winter or early spring is recommended by the experiment station for unknown irrigated districts. Late spring planting is to be avoided at all times as the plants do not have a chance to establish a new root system before the dry season comes on, stunting the poorly rooted plants.
A 100-pound-of-sulphur application to an acre of several types of Oregon land every three or four years should give a ten or more increase in yield of legume hay on most of the alfalfa lands, says the state experiment station. Subsequent applications are lighter particularly on humid soils. Apply early and harrow in when the meadows are renovated.
Hens for winter laying in Oregon do not do well on a whole grain ration. The continued use of straight grain does not supply all the food elements necessary to produce eggs. Steady rations of straight grain result in digestive disorders as well as poor egg production. The grain should be supplemented by ground feeds—commonly referred to as mash in distinction to whole or cracked grains used as scratch foods.
Loganberry vines in nearly all districts where the fruit is grown are trained to a wire trellis made by setting posts about 30 feet apart in the rows. These posts are not less than 7 feet in length, with 2 to 2½ feet in the ground. Either two or three No. 12 or 14 size wires may be used. When three wires are used they are strung in levels of about 2 feet, 39 inches and 5 feet from the ground. The lower wire is too low for holding fruit wood, but aids in keeping the bases of the canes in place. When two wires are used they are strung about 2½ and 4½ feet from the ground.

Jackson Family Gives 88 Acres to U. of O.

Donation to Be Used by Medical School in Portland; Tract Valued at $109,000.

University of Oregon, Eugene, Dec. 30.—(Special.)—With the gift of an 88-acre tract of land valued at $109,000, as an addition to its campus, the University of Oregon school of medicine enters 1925 prepared for the most useful year of service in its history. The gift was made to the people of Oregon by the late C. S. Jackson, Mrs. Jackson, and Philip L. Jackson of Portland.

The tract adjoins the present campus of the medical school of Marquam Hill, Portland. Under the terms of the gift, the land is to be used for medical school purposes, and is dedicated for all time to the healing of the sick and crippled, to the restoration of the public and the play of children.

The Jackson gift brings the total donations to the University of Oregon school of medicine to $463,259 in the last three years. Of this amount, $206,000 represents the gift of Edward Doernbecher and Mrs. E. W. Morse of Portland, in honor of their deceased father, Frank B. Doernbecher, for a hospital for children. Construction of this building is soon to begin on the medical school campus. When completed it will have 60 beds for the accommodation of juvenile cases.

The tract of 88 acres given by the Jacksons, added to the 20 acres presented to the medical school in 1917 by the Oregon-Washington Railroad and Navigation company, gives the institution a campus of 108 acres within a mile and a half of the Multnomah county courthouse.

"The gift assures—and it was much needed—adequate room for expansion of the medical school," said Dean Richard B. Dillehunt, "and will do much to encourage health advancement and medical research in the state."

It was Mr. Jackson's original plan several years ago to establish on the property an orthopedic hospital for children. Before he could carry out this design he was taken ill and in the meantime the children's hospital had been established through the donation of the Doernbecher family. The University of Oregon medical
