Los Angeles Times Issues Fine Mid-Winter Number

The Midwinter Number of the Los Angeles Times, out New Year's Day, is the most imposing and comprehensive yet issued by The Times. It is colorful and attractive, being illustrated in rotogravure, colors and half tones, but its strongest feature is an enormous amount of information contained in authoritative articles, many of these written by men of high prominence in Southern California.

Labor's Head

Wm. Green, of Ohio Mine Workers, is now president of the American Federation of Labor to succeed the late Samuel Gompers. Green's election, at a special called session of the Executive Committee, deposed Acting Pres. James Duncan, First Vice-President.

Figures and statistics presented concerning the activities of the year 1924 comprise a striking commentary on the splendid strides made by Southern California in the past 12 months. Among the contributors are bank officials, railroad executives, and other men prominent in commercial life. The articles are profusely illustrated with photographs and pictorial drawings by Charles H. Owens, pictorial map maker of national prominence.

Pleasing indeed are the contributions by Rupert Hughes, Zane Grey and Edgar Rice Burroughs, all of whom are residents of Southern California. Mr. Hughes writes charmingly of "The Home of the Angels" as it impresses him. Mr. Grey tells of the desert and the seashore, while Mr. Burroughs writes authoritatively on horseback riding, a subject close to his heart.

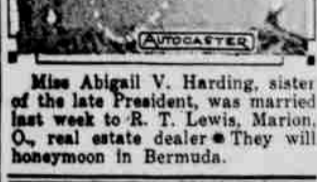

This Midwinter Number is the fortieth published by The Times, of the progress of the Southwest. In its progress, it contains more facts and information, because 1924 was the most eventful year in the community which it represents. Doubling of export trade, increase in population and valuation, a building record of $150,000,000, new highways, great flood control and water conservation projects, new public facilities and utilities, harbor improvements, increase in factory output to more than $1,000,000,000 and many other accomplishments of 1924 are told attractively and concisely together with announcements that portend an even busier and more eventful year for 1925.

Southern Californians will be particularly delighted with the issue because its vast array of facts constitute a record of achievement seldom if ever equaled by any community. The issue is, in fact, an overwhelming refutation of the unwarranted slurs circulated so extensively throughout the East and Middle West during the year 1924.

Time always tells

From mother to daughter to granddaughter has been the proud decendency of Golden West Coffee in thousands of families since its first appearance as the standard of good-coffees 42 years ago.

In all that time it has held these friends—and made countless more—by improving with age—getting richer, mellow, rarer in flavor—as experience and science and special processes have combined in the selective choice of only high-grown berries, in blending, roasting, steel cutting and vacuum packing.

You, too, will say—"no other coffee will do".

Star Theater THURSDAY and FRIDAY, JAN. 8 and 9. THOMAS MEIGHAN 'Woman-Proof' by GEORGE ADE. A PARAMOUNT PICTURE. ALL the children had to marry before their father's millions could be distributed. But bachelor Tom was "woman-proof"! Until—? Oh boy, what a corking story! Written especially for Meighan by America's foremost humorist. SOME picture! Also OUR GANG in "HIGH SOCIETY" "Our Gang" furnish comedy for young and old. We have shown 28 of their pictures and never had a bad one. SATURDAY, JANUARY 10 MONTE BLUE, IRENE RICH, TULLY MARSHALL in "DEFYING DESTINY" BY GRACE SANDERSON MICHIE. Did you ever feel you had not had a square deal? Did you ever long to get even with those who had injured you? If so, you will sympathize with Jack Fenton. Meet Jack Fenton in "Defying Destiny," the story of a real American boy and girl in a typically American town. Also BEN TURPIN in "LOVE AND DOUGHNUTS" SUNDAY and MONDAY, JAN. 11 and 12 MARION DAVIS in LITTLE Old NEW YORK Those were the days— —when people traveled by stage-coach, —when John Jacob Astor was a fur dealer, —when Cornelius Vanderbilt ran a ferry-boat, —when Robert Fulton, amid jeers, launched the first steam boat, —when Lorenzo Delmonico ran a lunch wagon. The brave old days live gloriously again on the screen in this utterly charming, delightfully thrilling story of America's youth. We can be proud of these handsome gentlemen and fair ladies who laid the foundations of this great nation. Their story, their loves, their trials, have been told in one of the most remarkable motion pictures of photoplay history. Marion Davies by her quaint and whimsical performance will win your heart completely. You probably remember her work in "When Knighthood Was in Flower." See LITTLE OLD NEW YORK and watch for her in "YOLANDA" (starting Saturday in Portland, and will be here Sunday and Monday, February 1 and 2.)
