MORROW COUNTY OFFICIAL PAPER... Foreign Advertising Representative THE AMERICAN PRESS ASSOCIATION

The Sins of the Fathers.

AN EXCHANGE of our lamentations as follows, anent the habit many folks have of trading away from home:

The wicked process of self-annihilation goes merrily on in the country. All that has been said on the subject seems to have no effect. Some of the best economists in the country have devoted time and thought to this problem and all are agreed that the fatal habit of trading away from home is one of the most wickedly wasteful things indulged in by the American people.

Market Agent Seems Doomed.

FROM the suddenness of the attack upon the office of the State Market Agent and its letter-writing occupant, C. E. Spence, it appears that there is determined sentiment to abolish that office, entirely and completely.

tury experience but his appointment did not affect the overhead of the office an expense to which the grain growers object, believing that they are bearing an unjust proportion of the cost of a single state office.

The determination of some members of both houses to force the issue with the governor almost before the echoes of his message had died away, bespeaks their determination, an attitude that may bring woe to His Excellency before the session is over.

Should Be Better Paid.

IN DISCUSSING the message of Governor Pierce, wherein the governor dwelt upon the "injustices" of the Oregon system of property assessment, C. C. Chapman of the Oregon Voter makes the following comment:

The "injustices" in Oregon system of property assessments are not "wrenches" in the sense that they are premeditated or that they are the result of deliberate mal-adjustment of values. They should be corrected, and property of like character and a like adjusted value should be uniformly assessed.

We would concur in what is said above touching the pay of assessors. In far too many instances in this state the man filling this position is too poorly paid—the office does not appeal to the man of ability because of this, hence the state suffers.

Dogs In Motorcars.

LIKE the horse, the dogs find themselves living in a new world to which they are not fully adapted. Many dog owners take their pets aboard the family car when going for a drive or even a transcontinental motor trip and find them useful and congenial company.

A Creed.

A COLLEGE professor, called on to answer the question, "What is the American creed?" gives seven specifications, mentioning cleanliness, abiding by the rules of the game, domination of the interests of public welfare, belief in the laws of nature, belief in the future, belief in service and belief in the spiritual nature of man.

Perhaps he is right in putting cleanliness first, in view of all its connotations, of which modern plumbing is but a small part. But all seven are involved in one another and particularly in the idea of building for the future, since none would be much worth while if they were not to endure.

Belief in the laws of nature is manifested increasingly not only by science but by religion, and the tremendous growth of the schools is sufficient evidence that Americans think they are building for more than the day. It may not be a perfect creed, but it has numerous good points.

There is still much diversion of opinion among wheat growers of the county as to the damage to crops suffered by the cold spell of three weeks ago. We were shown samples of wheat that were gathered from different farms over the north end of the county the first of the week. It was any life in the grain it could not be discovered, and there can be no doubt whatever but that many fields have suffered heavily and reseeding will have to be done.

Our Washington Letter

Washington, D. C. Jan. 20.—The resignation of Secretary of State Charles Hughes has caused unusual regret. It is also regretted that our laws do not provide proper compensation to public servants who can only serve their country at a great personal financial sacrifice.

Ambassador Frank B. Kellogg, now at the Court of St. James, as the British post is known, a diplomatic paragon, has achieved fame as a lawyer. Kellogg is thoroughly versed in diplomatic matters and his standing as a jurist is of the highest.

There will be no extra session of Congress unless some urgent and now unforeseen demand arises. The administration and party leaders feel that the general business of the country is such that emergency legislation is not needed nor practical at the moment.

At the present time the commissions appointed by President Coolidge are carefully considering such legislation as will be of material benefit to the agricultural and cattle interests of the country, also legislation that will benefit other branches of industry that have not as yet entirely recovered from the post-war slump.

Law enforcement rests with the people and not the legislative or even the administrative office of the government. The will for law-enforcement must originate with the people and without their support the statutes of cities and of the nation and the ordinances of cities and towns become mere printed words and phrases.

"Boar's Nest" Again

Congressman F. D. Scott of Michigan sued his wife, Edna (above) for divorce, charging extravagance and affairs with other men. His secretary, Jane Kennedy (below), told him of the "other men."

ed. It is not to be ignored, of course, that this demonstration on the part of the people has developed, in part, at least because of the knowledge that at the White House there was a president who from the first has been pledged to the observance of all laws.
