Close This Gap.

Pendleton East Oregonian.

NEXT month the county court of Morrow county will suggest to the state highway commission a plan for building the unfinished bit of road between Vinson and Lena on the Oregon-Washington highway.

The Oregon-Washington highway is a primary road and a very necessary part of the highway system. That route through Heppner would now be carrying the Oregon trail traffic while the other highway is being oiled.

However, the importance of the Heppner route is not merely for this season. That route will always be important. When completed that highway will carry a considerable part of the through travel.

The regional needs of Umatilla and Morrow counties also call for closing the Vinson-Lena gap and that consideration should count for something.

It will be a blunder not to close that gap as quickly as possible. We cannot afford to have 90 miles of good macadam road going unused.

THE boost given by the East Oregonian editor for the completion of the Lena-Vinson gap in the Oregon-Washington highway is appreciated by Heppner folks.

expressed by their paper is encouraging and will help a lot in getting what is desired by both Heppner and Pendleton. Having traveled over the road to Pendleton the past week, and being directed to take the Stage Gulch road from Echo to Reith, because the work of closing the highway between those two points is now going on, called more forcibly to our minds the fact that it would be to the advantage of the highway commission to have the Lena-Vinson gap closed so that travel might go that way from Heppner Junction when it was necessary to do extensive maintenance work on the Columbia highway.

We thought spring was here Friday and Saturday; changed our mind on Sunday; was sure it had arrived Monday and then were compelled to think differently on Wednesday, not having remembered that this is March.

IT IS hoped by the time the Senate reconvenes it may have recovered control of its official goat and get down to attending to business of the United States. Justification for the attack on the sacred institution of the Senate's sanctified prerogatives at the hands of General Dawes, so far as its political wisdom is concerned, may be a debatable question.

ONE cannot observe the press of America without keen realization of the clear line of demarcation that exists between the press of the cities and the press of the country. While both are functioning with the objective of public improvement, the metropolitan press, due perhaps to the sophistication of its patronage, seems to devote its energies to the detecting and exposing of evil, operating along negative lines, while the press in the rural districts follows the positive virtue of discerning and praising the good.

Those who have been raised in the atmosphere of a metropolis fail to sense the all-embracing power of the rural newspapers. They seem to think of the country press in terms of the individual small publication of six or eight pages, dealing in nonessentials that mark the life of the dreary and unimportant Main Street.

One week spent in the busy hive of an institution such as the American Press association, representative of approximately 7,500 newspapers, would open up such a vision of the strength and power of the country that the magnitude of the city, so far as the influence of its press is concerned, would shrink. The country press is an artery through which the life blood of the nation's trade must either flow or stagnate. Politically the country newspapers are the one dominating factor. There are approximately one hundred and ten million people in the United States. Of these, about sixty millions live and have their being on the farms and in villages and towns up to five thousand population. Here we find an easy working majority whose power is reflected very largely in the legislation enacted in our national capital.

It is admitted to be next to impossible to pass legislation inimical to the interest of the farmer once the country press presents a united front in opposition. Wall Street, with all its reputed power and influence, is helpless in the face of the opposition of the American weekly newspaper.

The support of the country newspaper is enlisted for the building of the school, the church, the town hall and on through the various stages of the town's life and growth to the voting of bonds for the lighting and paving of the streets. Every denomination, every class, every citizen, looks to the local newspaper for support, help and advice.

HEPPNER and Ione will unite in forming a baseball team this season. We are glad of this, as from the two towns can be secured a strong team and one for which we can all boast with the expectation that a fair share of the games will be won by the Morrow county club. And better still, it will do away with the necessity of importing outside players and spending a lot of money in this way as has been done heretofore.

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 24.—The senate rejection of Charles B. Warren, the President's nominee for attorney general, was un-American in thought and deed. It violated the American sense of fair play and decency. A man who has served the United States with distinction in Tokyo and in Mexico, and who in his earlier years was one of the legal representatives of the United States in the great international fisheries dispute was rejected out of hand without even an opportunity to present his case.

Our Washington Letter

N. P. S.

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 24.—The senate rejection of Charles B. Warren, the President's nominee for attorney general, was un-American in thought and deed. It violated the American sense of fair play and decency.

The American business man who with his banker friend has been buying large issues of foreign loans for the past few years, began to wonder just how advantageous this business is. It cheered a lot of people with the thought that New York rather than London was to become the money center of the world.

against Warren because a quarter of a century ago he served as the legal representative of sugar concerns in Michigan, is the same Walsh who only a few short months ago aided in the selection of John W. Davis, an attorney of Morgan interests, as the democratic standard-bearer, and personally journeyed to West Virginia to advise Mr. Davis of the distinction.

There is another and more unfortunate explanation of the opposition, namely, that they felt Mr. Warren was too able, too active, for this office. Senator Butler hinted at this when in his speech he said, "Some people do not want a militant attorney general. They prefer a complacent individual in that office."

The President has not been defeated. It is the senate that has been defeated. Once again the attempts of the President to secure for the public service men of ability and understanding has been frustrated.

Even the busy world of today felt a little gasp of fine feeling when it learned from the newspapers that the President, reaching out from the mass of labor with which he is always surrounded, made permanent appointments to the Bureau of Engraving and Printing of two simple women, one a widow with three children, the other the sole support of an injured husband and two minor children.

One of the women, Mrs. May B. Bowman, served for 11 years in the bureau. Her husband is David J. Bowman, a former plate printer, who was compelled to resign on account of an injury received in an accident.
