Somebody Was Asleep.

JUST now Morrow county sheep and cattle men are digging up taxes to different counties where they have been grazing stock during the past season. When they received their statements from the assessors of these counties, they were reminded that a new law had been passed by the last legislature affecting all livestock grazing away from the home county, and they were face to face with the fact that someone in some of the counties, among which is listed Morrow county, had gone to sleep, while the others had been on the job and put across a law that is destined to work to their disadvantage, more or less. Not that the stockman objects to paying some taxes on his possessions to the county that furnishes them their summer's feed, but under the present system of making levies on this stock there is room for injustice to both the stockman and the State.

Manufacturers in a Farm Situation.

FARMING and manufacturing are in more nearly the same situation than they ever have been within the last fifty years, if not within the entire previous history of the United States. American farming always has been pestered by the ability to produce costly surpluses. American manufacturing so extended and expanded its plants and facilities during the war and the post-war inflation that it is very much in the situation of farming. It can easily produce more than it can sell at a profit. The investor can keep his mind on that fact to good advantage. It doesn't require an unusual man to obtain enough capital to start an automobile factory, a gasoline refinery, a radio factory, a motion picture company, a textile mill, a packing house or any other business. Thousands of men can do it. But most of those who could do it cannot operate those enterprises at a profit, just as many men can farm but can make little or no money at it. The problem of business today is not to produce automobiles, oil or anything else. The problem is to sell it at a profit after it is produced, not alone this year, but next year and for many years thereafter. The business that can produce and distribute at a profit consistently year after year is the business in which to invest.

Same Assessed in Both Home and Grazing County.

Home County and Grazing County of Transient Livestock: The county in which transient livestock may be at the hour of 1 o'clock a. m. of March 1 shall be known as the home county, and any other county in which said transient livestock are permitted to range or graze during such year shall be known as the grazing county. By the word "year" as used in this act, is meant the year commencing at the hour of 1 o'clock a. m. on March 1.

Assessment and Taxes on Transient Livestock, How Divided Among Counties.

All such assessments so made and taxes levied hereunder shall be apportioned between the home county and the grazing county as follows: The home county shall collect taxes on 60 per cent of the assessed valuation thereof and the grazing counties shall collect and retain taxes on 40 per cent of the assessed valuation thereof for the particular year. In the event that such transient livestock shall graze in two or more grazing counties in any year the said 40 per cent assessment for the then current year shall be pro rated equally between such grazing counties and the taxes thereon shall be levied and collected in the same manner that other taxes against personal property are collected, and the assessor or the sheriff, as the case might be, shall be entitled to all the remedies provided by law for the enforcement and collection of any and all taxes against personal property.

Statements to be Filed When Stock Enter County.

To aid in making such assessment, whenever such transient livestock is removed from such home county, or kept, driven or pastured, or permitted to range or graze in any county other than its home county, the owner thereof, or his agent, shall, within fifteen days from the time any such stock enters such other county, notify the assessor of such county that he has entered, or intends to enter, such county with transient livestock, stating the date of said entry, the number of each kind of livestock, the proper description thereof and different kinds, with the marks and brands of such livestock in his possession, or under his control or charge, coming into said county, and he shall make and deliver, and it shall be the duty of said assessor to demand a written statement under oath, showing the full length of time during the year that such livestock, and every part, portion and kind thereof has been, and will be within said county.

county other than its home county, the owner thereof, or his agent, shall, within fifteen days from the time any such stock enters such other county, notify the assessor of such county that he has entered, or intends to enter, such county with transient livestock, stating the date of said entry, the number of each kind of livestock, the proper description thereof and different kinds, with the marks and brands of such livestock in his possession, or under his control or charge, coming into said county, and he shall make and deliver, and it shall be the duty of said assessor to demand a written statement under oath, showing the full length of time during the year that such livestock, and every part, portion and kind thereof has been, and will be within said county.

HE is sincere and genuine, and not a mere pretender. What a magnificent tribute to be earned by any man! If Judge Harris is correct in his estimate of Frederick Steiwer's character, and not merely the victim of his own enthusiasm for a charming friend, it looks as though Oregon at last has a chance to get a United States senator of whom its citizens may be truly proud and to whom they may be devotedly loyal through the years. If Steiwer really merits the opinion Judge Harris has expressed, and the people of Oregon believe he merits it, he will be nominated and elected. Nothing counts like character.—Oregon Voter.

HE has done it by sticking to his one line and advertising it. He spends over a million dollars a year in buying newspaper space to tell the world about 5-cent chewing gum. He has educated people to chew gum and to chew Wrigley's. He did not stop shouting as soon as he attracted attention. He says you must keep it up or the buyers will forget you. Whether yours is a 5-cent or a $50,000 business, keep telling about it.

Curious Beliefs Held by Trinidad Natives

Port of Spain is the principal city of the island of Trinidad in the West Indies and is the most colorful and cosmopolitan city in the world, says an American citizen, who has returned to his native land for a visit after an absence of two years, according to the Detroit News. "The streets of Port of Spain," he says, "present the appearance of a strange pagentry, so varied are the people. Strangest of all are the native black people, who you will see nose rings and all sorts of weird styles in hairdressing. They are so fond of bracelets that their forearms, from wrist to elbow, are completely covered with all sorts of metal circles. Nor is it unusual to see their forearms adorned in the same fashion.

North Pole Receives Full Share of Heat

The North pole, it is said, receives more heat than the equator. Of course, each hour of sunlight brings more heat to the equator, but the hours of sunlight each day increase in number the farther one goes north. Therefore, while the sun is shining the arctic receives more hours of sunlight a day than does the equator, and so together it gets more heat, says the Detroit News.

Storks in Great Britain

A Welsh lad was recently attacked by a large stork which was believed to have been blown from Holland by storm. It is a somewhat strange fact that storks have refused to breed in the British isles except in Kew gardens. There a pair started housekeeping in the year of King Edward's coronation, and clearly copied the design for their brood nest between the two elm trees from a coronation bonfire. They met with a multitude of misfortunes. One year a storklet fell from the nest and broke its neck; in another year a nestling was slain by a barnacle goose. A climatic disaster was the drowning of an entire family by a thunderstorm. When the "storks' mound" becomes a congested district, superstitious storklets are exported to populate other districts.

Oysters Sold on Boughs

The traveler in the West Indies has the opportunity of viewing the novel sight of gathering oysters from trees. Around the harbors and lagoons the mangrove trees grow down to the water's edge. Their branches droop until a part of them is submerged. Oysters will cling to any surface in the water to which they can fasten themselves, and as there are few shelves or stones along the shores the bivalves attach themselves to the branches. When the natives go oyster gathering they lean over the side of the boat, find a branch to which oysters are clinging, and cut it off, and the bivalves are sold on the tree.

Remembered by His Deeds

The little fishing town of Looe in the north of Scotland has for its patron saint, St. Gerardo. This little known saint, according to legendary history, is said to have sojourned at that coast in 924. His home was a cave, and it was his custom to perambulate the sands of a stormy night holding up a lantern to warn mariners away from the Skerries, Geraldine's effigy, with the initials of the legend, is engraved on the burgh seal, together with a ship and the motto "Per Noctem Lux," "Light by Night."

On the narrow front porch of his father's Vermont farmhouse, President Coolidge met one of the world's richest men—his Secretary of Treasury, Andrew Mellon (right) for a conference and decision regarding the Belgian debt fund to the U. S. With them was Senator Smoot, of Utah—representing the Senate. This conference resulted in a firm stand which sent Belgium's large committee back across the seas—for further instructions.

Bank Credit and Bank Balances. THE average balance you carry in this bank has a great deal to do with the amount of credit extended to you. When one man wonders why he can't borrow as readily as his neighbor, granting all other factors equal, the reason is probably found in a steady, substantial average balance as against a small, fluctuating account. It's good business from every standpoint to build up your bank balance, as a builder of credit, a bulwark against emergency, a ready capital for business opportunities.
