Mail Order Commandments

SOME good friends of ours, presumably a business man of Heppner, mailed us the following clipping, headed Ten Commandments of the Mail Order House...

Reckless Drivers Cause Death Toll

THAT the negligent and careless driver, and not the automobile, is responsible for the toll of death at railroad crossings...

STRICTER TRAFFIC CONTROL URGED

DIPHThERIA

From State Board of Health. What symptoms should lead you to suspect that a child has diphtheria? Diphtheria may be like a severe sore throat with small or large gray or white patches.

Roads as Americanizers

THE American automobilist is seeing the country. There is no doubt about that. He is enjoying life in the great outdoors where the air and the sunshine are healthful.

in the West recently, Secretary Hoover said: "I found them camping out in their automobiles in the hills and valleys west of the Mississippi. It is estimated that 5,000 are so camped."

What is true of the West is true of the East and the South from Florida to New England and even into Canada. The people are learning something about their beauties of their country first hand, and better than this, they are learning something about their fellow countrymen.

Secretary of Agriculture Jardine recently stated: "Communication is a great equalizer." As the people in the East go West and the people from the West drive East, as the southerners whiz north and the northerners glide south over the perfect system of roads that is rapidly being completed over the country, they are learning that most Americans are pretty much the same; that a New Englander and a southerner, a Hoosier and an Oregonian are a great deal alike under the surface, that all have the same emotions, the same good points, and the same (let us hope) very few weaknesses.

In short, we are rapidly leaving the localized stage and becoming actually Americanized. Hard surfaced roads are bringing this condition about and if they break down sectional prejudices and cement us into one American community they will be worth all that they may cost, and ten times over.

That the railroads are spending immense sums to protect life and property is shown by the fact that nearly 1,000 railway highway crossings were removed in 1923, although at the same time 2500 were installed, largely in obedience to public authority.

Railroad crossings having the greatest traffic density are protected by crossing signs, bells, gates, flagmen and by the ringing of locomotive bell and sounding of whistles.

"A railroad track and a railroad crossing are danger signals," says the statement. "One New England railroad having only 230 crossing gates had 390 such gates demolished by automobiles crashing through them in front of approaching trains, in 1923. One Ohio railroad had twenty collisions between its trains and autos in one year, where the crossings were protected by bells that in each case were ringing."

and muscles generally. The glands of the neck may be quite large and feel painful when touched. The patient may be feverish and delirious, though the fever may not be high.

What causes diphtheria? The Klebs-Loeffler or diphtheria bacillus. How is it spread? By contact with the infected person or with articles which may have been contaminated by discharges from his nose and throat or by contact with a diphtheria carrier.

Can susceptible persons be rendered immune? Yes, by three injections of toxin-antitoxin. When a person contracts diphtheria, what should be done? Antitoxin should be given immediately even before the diagnosis is certain.

Why are cultures taken from the throats of children at the opening of school and during epidemics? Because this locates the diphtheria carriers. One percent of school children are carriers.

Why wait before the curve-passing driver kills or maims some one before he is fined? It is only because the gun is not loaded that nobody gets hurt. Speed cops should watch the curves. The speed maniac on the straight stretch of highway is not apt to hurt any one but himself.

In traveling on the Columbia highway a distance of forty miles, in a car making twenty-five miles per hour I was passed by cars three times when serious accidents would have occurred had another car been coming on the other side of the curve. Are we to continue to be heavily taxed to maintain highways that are little less than public death traps to ourselves and little ones. Civilization cannot progress over the dead and mangled bodies of its citizens or by the highway of grief and sorrow.
