Governor Pierce is in a Salem hospital following an operation for relief from gall stones, and it is expected that he will be unable to resume office duties for about two weeks. President Jay Upton of the senate will perform such gubernatorial duties as may be pressing in the meantime.

Yamhill county is in a volcanic state, socially speaking, on account of a small scandal in which Walter Tooze, Jr. is involved. He has been indicted for furnishing whiskey to a girl of 16 years, but Walter denies the charge and says it is a frame up in order to take reprisals on him for his political and other activities.

A dispatch from Washington on the 25th, brings news of deep interest in matters which have been widely discussed in Oregon of late. The message reads:

"The United States supreme court today upheld the ancient principle that 'a man's home is his castle,' by restoring to Fred P. Viome of Montana, a small ranch which prohibition agents had seized and offered for sale because of charges that Viome was operating a still and making liquor. The lower courts had upheld the seizures.

Viome denied the charges and had claimed invasion of his constitutional rights by the dry officers."

Heppner papers through dope furnished them by smooth, unscrupulous propagandists, are publishing articles on the school unit system. Heppner would like only too well to shoulder their high school indebtedness upon outlying districts, and in this our illustrious county superintendent is helping the deal along; helping to further burden our poor farmers by shoving onto them their quack, huzaboo, unit school system. Ye gods!

Theodore T. Geer

Theodore T. Geer, the first native son of Oregon to have been elected Governor of the state, was buried in Portland last Saturday. Mr. Geer was near to 73 years of age and had been in good health until a few weeks ago when he was stricken with paralysis. He served in the legislature of 1880, 1889, 1891 and 1893 and was Speaker in 1891. He was elected Governor in 1898, but was defeated for renomination in 1902, when W. J. Furnist was nominated. Under the senatorial preference law passed by the legislature in 1901, Mr. Geer in 1902 became a candidate for U. S. senator before the people and received a majority of the popular vote, but in the legislative session following, the members ignored the vote of preference and elected Chas. H. Fulton senator.

After a year or two in editorial work on the Salem Statesman, Governor Geer went to Pendleton and took over the Tribune, which proved to be a disastrous financial venture and a few years later he went to Portland, where he resided until his death.

Mr. Geer was a man of wonderful ability as a political debater, but he was a failure in business and in holding strong political friends.

The ringing of Joseph Henry's bell, the inventor of the device which is the basis of all modern electrical communications, the telegraph, telephone and radio, was broadcasted by microphone from the New York Museum on Monday night of last week, and was heard at Ione by W. Osborne over his radio. This is the smallest electro-magnetic bell ever invented and it may be found from bow to stern and truck to keels on all of our men-of-war.

Baker and Kubli Lack Sincerity

L. H. McMahan of Salem, who has a sneaking idea of running for United States Senator as an independent, writes editor C. C. Chapman of the Oregon Voter, as follows:

"We might forgive Baker and Kubli their lack of refinement in person and character, but not their lack of sincerity in the cause of reform. They are unable to see, as you evidently do, that this country is on the eve of a great economic adjustments and that to make these adjustments gradually, being neither ultra radical or ultra conservative, requires the steady efforts of men whose ability and sincerity of purpose is superior to theirs. The greatest evidence of danger is that men of their kind can be seriously considered for that office. It would be far more dangerous to stable government for them to be elected than for a Zimmerman to win. I should think business men would see this."

Wasco 20, Ione 19

Those who missed the basketball game last Friday night probably missed the best game of the season. The game was closely and cleanly played at all times, neither team could get a commanding point, there being but two or three points difference in the score at any time. Wasco however, managed to keep the lead most of the time and nosed the local boys out by the smallest possible margin by a score of 20 to 19. The score was tied 19 to 19 at the end of the game and the winning point was made on a put throw after time was called.
