Nitrogen Wall Makes Sky Blue, Says Professor
London.—The long-accepted explanation of the blueness of the sky as being due to the well understood action of the sun's rays upon particles in the atmosphere is challenged, according to the Daily Mail's Copenhagen correspondent, by Professor Vignard, of Christiania University.
Professor Vignard claims a discovery suggesting that the atmosphere of the earth outside the air-stream is shot

Shepherd's Harvest Time
At lambing time is the shepherd's harvest and no trouble should be spared at this season in getting the biggest percentage of living lambs, thrifty growing, and the mother's condition such as to keep the young families doing well from the jump. It may be a matter of deepest mystery to the beginner with sheep to go to his sheep lot some morning and find half a dozen new lambs, some large and others smaller, with apparently no mother to claim the most of them.

The SANDMAN STORY

A GIRL AND A PRINCE
ONCE upon a time there was a peasant girl who was so beautiful that a prince fell in love with her. Every day he rode by the place where she was tending her father's goats and at last he told her who he was and asked her to become his wife.

"Oh, but I could never marry a prince," said the pretty girl, whose name was Nita. "And, besides, your family would never let you marry me."

"Then I will leave my father's palace and give up the kingdom and live with you," said the prince. "I shall marry no one but you."

"No, that would never do," said Nita. "You could not become the husband of a peasant girl any more than I could marry a prince. No, you are not good enough for me," she said, with a toss of her pretty head.

"You cannot plough a field or make a harness or take care of the goats and she won't marry me," replied the prince. "I am not good enough for her. She said so."

"Peasant girl indeed!" said the queen. "She would marry you soon enough if we should permit such a thing." Then, because she was a woman, the queen wanted to know what was lacking in her son that this girl did not think him good enough for her husband.

"She said that even though I had servants to do the work I ought to know how it should be done, that a good master must know how to rule his servants, and that I did not know anything at all," the prince replied.

"She has some sense," said the king. "That sounds sensible, and I should like to know why it is that you don't know how to do something! A son of mine ought to be able to do anything. You don't take after my family or you would be able to plow a field."

"Indeed!" answered the queen, growing angry. "If he took after my family he would be able to do everything. It is yours, sire, he resembles, and not mine. Can you make a harness, son, or not?"

"Of course I can't," replied the prince. "I don't know how to do anything. No one has ever taught me. I am not good enough to be the husband of the peasant girl."

"A son of mine should be fitted to become the husband of any one," cried the king. "Go to work and learn how to do all these things."

It did not take the prince long to learn, and one day he proudly showed to the king and queen a harness he had made, and then one day he asked them to look at a field he had plowed.

"We will find the peasant girl now," said the queen, who had not forgotten she had spurned her son for a husband.

"We will show her our son can do anything her people can do."

So they found Nita and showed her the harness and the field the prince had plowed, and the praise which Nita gave the prince for his work quite won the hearts of the king and queen.

When they found that their son was ready to give up the kingdom to marry Nita, the king said that the kingdom needed people with good sense to rule it, and now that his son had become such a good and sensible man, all that was needed was a princess quite as sensible, and he for one gave his consent to the marriage.

The queen, not to be outdone, gave hers, and that night the merry-making in honor of the wedding of the prince and the peasant girl made the welkin ring.

What's in a Name?
By MILDRED MARSHALL

Facts about your name; its history; meaning; whence it was derived; significance; your lucky day, lucky jewel.

LULU
RECENT discussion of Loretta suggests Lulu as an interesting parallel study. Lulu is also the result of modern spelling. Its correct form is Loulou, a version which originated, and is still a favorite in France.

Its popularity is attributed to the Provencal Lora de Sades, beloved of Petrarch, whose story is considered one of the world's greatest romances. She is the lady whose praises are sung by the great Italian poet in his "Rime" or sonnets. She is identified with Lora de Noves, an Avignonese lady who died of the plague in 1348, and who was already married to Hughes de Sades in 1327 when Petrarch is said to have first seen her.

The romantic nature of the French caused the name of the lovely heroine to find extraordinary vogue in that country. However, Lora or Laura is scarcely euphonious to French ears, and she became Laura, and finally Loulou.

It is Lulu's talismanic stone. It is the symbol of sorrow, but according to an old superstition, it will protect its wearer from sorrow, since it has an almost unique power among gems of becoming a part of the very body and soul if guarded with jealous care. Friday is Lulu's lucky day and 4 her lucky number.

FALLING OUT OF BED
THAT if a child does not fall out of bed before it is six months old it will never be a bright and successful person, but "will be a fool"—is a common and widespread superstition. Apparently the superstition is a survival from the curious custom of simulated rebirth practiced by the ancients and found today among some savage tribes. Also it lingers today in some remote parts of Europe. Among the Greeks the ceremony was practiced as a means of adoption and any Greek who was supposed to be dead and who turned up alive had to undergo it before he could again be reckoned as among living men. As a ceremony of adoption it prevailed among the barbarians as well as among the Greeks and such is the use made of it today, in certain European regions.

But there are indications that the ceremony was also in a nature of an initiatory rite and as such it survives today among certain African tribes where, until a young child has undergone this simulated rebirth he—or she—is not considered as being really capable of taking part as a member of the tribe, or of being initiated into certain tribal mysteries. A study of the ritual of these various ceremonies of simulated rebirth shows parts which may be considered analogous to a child falling out of bed. With regard to the supposed dead Greek and with regard to adoption the reason for the simulated rebirth is easy to see. But just why the African child should be incapable of full development as a member of the tribe until he has undergone the rebirth ceremony, or the New England child should not be expected to amount to much unless he falls out of bed early in the game—assuming that we are right in regarding the latter superstition as a rebirth survival—it is more difficult to say. Possibly the rebirth ceremony—or accident—is supposed, through sympathetic magic, to add by a second birth to the physical and mental powers given the child at its first birth.

Solarian to be Shipped.

Vancouver, Wash.—G. W. Minkler, inventor of the solarian, an instrument that he believes will revolutionize the study of the earth's movements, received a letter from Oberlin college, Ohio, asking him to ship his model as soon as possible and enclosing a check to cover costs of getting out a pamphlet describing the solarian.

Mr. Minkler studied the earth movement for years and worked out his invention in less than a month. After several attempts to form a company to manufacture the instrument he decided to turn his patent rights over to Oberlin college with the understanding that the solarian is to be manufactured in sufficient quantities to supply the demand. The instrument will be moderately priced and should be in every high school and college where an earth globe is used. Mr. Minkler stated.

Mr. Minkler was a student at Oberlin college from 1860 to 1865 and was a member of the Lincoln Wideawakes, who worked to elect Lincoln president. He is 78 years old and has lived in Vancouver for 25 years. The solarian model will be shipped next week, he said.

It was especially beneficial to me during the trying months of expectancy, relieving me of nausea and quieting to my nerves, and I do believe that I would not have come thru the critical time of life so easily and comfortably as I did had it not been for Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. I have given the 'Prescription' to my daughters also when they had need of a special tonic and nerve and they have always been benefited and strengthened by its use.
