

TICKET WINS HIGH OFFICES

DAVIS WINS ONLY IN THE SOUTH

Wisconsin Is Apparently the Only State Carried by La Follette.

The early returns showed Coolidge well in the lead in Ohio, Pennsylvania gave the president an old-time republican plurality, as did Michigan, while the indications were that the Coolidge margin in New Jersey was a generous one.

All the returns from Chicago and other parts of Illinois gave token that the vote in that state was an avalanche for Coolidge. As the figures flowed in the president was seen to be maintaining a two-to-one lead over Davis in Chicago and an even larger one downstate, while La Follette brought up the rear with little more than half the vote of the democratic candidate in some sections of the city and not more than two-thirds of the Davis total in others.

Landslide Helps Senate Nominees.

The Coolidge landslide in the east swept into office republican senatorial nominees in such doubtful states as Rhode Island, Massachusetts, Delaware and New Jersey. There were indications that the republicans had elected senators also in West Virginia, Oklahoma and South Dakota.

Indications were that the democrats had won in the border states of Tennessee and Kentucky. Without these two states the republicans were certain to fall short of actual control of the senate without the help of republicans.

Republicans apparently gained senate seats in Massachusetts and Oklahoma and possibly in Colorado and Montana. They suffered no losses.

The Klan fight in Oklahoma seemed on the basis of the returns to have enabled W. B. Pine, republican nominee, to win over ex-Governor J. C. Walton, democrat, for the seat now held by Senator Owen, democrat.

The republicans held the Rhode Island seat, which had been vacant since the death of Senator Colt, republican. Jesse H. Metcalf won easily over Governor William S. Flynn, democratic nominee.

There was a possibility of a republican loss in Delaware, where Senator

Ball, republican, failed to receive re-nomination, but ex-Senator Dupont, republican, appeared to have defeated James M. Tunnell, democratic nominee.

Gillett Elected Senator.

In President Coolidge's home state of Massachusetts, Speaker Gillett, republican senatorial nominee, won by a handsome majority over Senator Walsh, democrat.

Senator Edge, republican, New Jersey, won in a hard fight over Frederick W. Donnelly, democratic contender.

The outcome was uncertain in West Virginia, but Guy D. Goff, republican nominee, was ahead of ex-Senator William E. Chilton, democratic candidate, on the face of the returns.

In South Dakota Governor McMaster, republican senatorial nominee, appeared to be far enough in the lead over U. S. G. Cherry, democratic nominee, to insure his election.

John W. Davis succeeded in capturing certainly only states generally reckoned democratic. Even at that he lost Kentucky on the face of incomplete returns, although Cox had carried it against Harding in 1920. The same returns indicated that he had brought back into the democratic fold two of the states taken away by Harding—Oklahoma and Tennessee.

It was estimated that Coolidge polled 15,000,000 popular votes—two million more than were given to Harding. Davis, it was estimated, had 8,000,000 as against 9,000,000 for Cox.

STATES CONSIDERED DOUBTFUL CARRIED

All But One State North of Mason and Dixon Line For Coolidge.

New York.—Calvin Coolidge of Massachusetts will be continued as president of the United States and Charles G. Dawes of Illinois will be the next vice president. That is the verdict of a large majority of the voters of the country.

Coolidge and Dawes rolled up overwhelming majorities in the east and middle west as the returns came in. In all of New England, New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Ohio, and Illinois, the lead of the republican nominees mounted steadily and both the New York Times and the New York World, supporters of John W. Davis, early conceded his defeat by Mr. Coolidge.

Davis and Bryan are shown by the returns to be running second in the popular as well as in the electoral vote. That the democratic ticket was decisively beaten was shown on the face of the figures from the start. At democratic headquarters, however, party leaders clung to a hope that the west would turn the trick as it did for Wilson in 1916.

La Follette Poor Third.

La Follette came off an extremely poor third. With a scant handful of electoral votes, the Wisconsin senator failed to realize more than a pitiful fraction of the popular vote he had expected.

New England loosed a tidal wave of votes for Coolidge and Dawes. The democratic candidates didn't have a look-in there and La Follette was lost in the shuffle.

The Coolidge and Dawes ticket made a clean sweep of the north from Maine to the Mississippi with the exception of Wisconsin, which was the only state which, it could be said with certainty, was carried by La Follette.

Even the border states of Delaware, Maryland and West Virginia, the last Davis' home state, went into the Coolidge column. President Coolidge carried New York state by a plurality of avalanche proportions, almost reaching President Harding's margin of 1,000,000 votes in 1920.

Al Smith Re-elected.

The heavy undertow of this roaring tide of Coolidge strength pulled down to defeat a number of democratic state tickets and democratic members of congress who had been confident of election, but in New York Governor Alfred E. Smith withstood the handicap of a sweep for the republican national ticket and bested his republican opponent for re-election, Theodore Roosevelt, by an estimated 100,000 plurality. Roosevelt came down from the upstate districts with a lead that seemed for a time to make his election certain, but the metropolis rose to the occasion and repelled the invasion at its doorsteps.

It was estimated the state's vote would reach 3,750,000, the greatest in history, with women voting in larger numbers than ever.

Iowa Favors Coolidge.

Iowa, upon which the La Follette managers were relying for enough votes to throw the election into congress, went to Coolidge to the tune of 225,000 plurality and 140,000 majority over both competitors.

Indiana, the one northern state which the Davis managers thought they had a chance of capturing, went to Coolidge by a margin probably exceeding 150,000. Coolidge's momentum in Hoosierdom was so great that he seemed to have pulled through with him Ed Jackson, the republican candidate for governor, who had been marked for slaughter by the anti-klan forces.
