From out the throb and stress of lies,
From out the painful noise of sighs,
One voice of comfort seems to rise:
"It is the meager part that dies."

—Morris.

Dust thou art, to dust thou returnest,
Was not spoken of the soul,
—Longfellow.

Good Rules on Which to Base Conversation

Every one desires to be well liked by his friends and associates. Almost a hundred years ago the Youth's Companion printed some advice to its young readers on that subject, which is just as much to the point today as it was then.

Be not always speaking of yourself. Be not forward. Listen when spoken to. Avoid old sayings and vulgarisms. Be choice in your compliments. Command your temper and your countenance. Never acknowledge an enemy or see an affront if you can help it. Doubt him who swears to the truth of a thing. Dare be singular in a right cause; be not ashamed to refuse. Never appear to be in a hurry. Neglect not an old acquaintance. Make no one in company feel his inferiority. Talk not long at a time. Tell no long or doubtful stories. Hold no one by the button when speaking. Foretell not a slow speaker. Say not all you think. Give not your advice unasked. Remember few jokes will bear repeating. Learn the character of the company before you say much.

Notes of Interest to All Local Denominations.

The annual visitation and association meeting of Congregational churches in the Columbia River Association is scheduled for the 20th, 21st and 22nd of October. It is planned to visit Condon on Wednesday, the 20th, Ione the following day and close with the Association meeting on Friday at The Dalles.

Rev. E. L. Wood, of Eugene has been called, we understand, to the joint pastorate of the Christian churches of Ione, Lexington and Alpine. Mr. Wood is expected to arrive about the first of October.

Rev. Wallace Jones, formerly of Lexington but now of Helix, is conducting revival meetings at Boardman.

Friendship's Progress

Let friendship creep gently to a height; if it rush to it, it may soon run itself out of breath.—Fuller.

ALONG LIFE'S TRAIL

By THOMAS ARKLE CLARK
Dean of Men, University of Illinois.

CHOOSING A LIFE WORK

MY OLD teacher of German who knew as much of human nature as any one whom I have ever known, used to say that it did not so much matter what one studied or did as how one studied or did it. The average normal person, if he has persistence and determination and is willing to work, can do one thing about as well as he can another.

Desire plays a great part in any man's choice of a life work. If Butler had submitted himself to any one of the mental tests which a number of educational institutions are now requiring of their students, he would not have rated very highly as a candidate for honors in engineering. He was rather a slow thinker; thinking for him was, in fact, a difficult process, but he was aware of this deficiency through the regular reiteration of the fact by his parents and teachers. He was determined, however, to study engineering and would not be dissuaded by any of the crepe hangers who predicted failure for him. He knew he would have to work and he was willing to do so. He got on; he succeeded.

Mental equipment should be taken into consideration in choosing one's life work. It is not easy for most of us fairly to estimate our own ability, and we cannot always depend upon the judgment of those who are nearest to us, who too frequently urge us to do the things they would have liked to do, rather than attempt to form an unprejudiced judgment as to what we are best fitted to do. What one does most easily, he is likely to do best, just as what one likes to do he is pretty sure to go farthest in. Any business or work of life has in it difficulties enough, and whatever helps to lessen the number of these or to make them seem less disagreeable should not be overlooked.

Opportunity should very often decide one's choice of a profession or a life work. Hart really wanted to be an engineer, but there was the farm calling to him, and he was the only son. The land had been in the family for generations; his father and his grandfather and he himself, had been born on it. It was clearly his duty to stick to it, and it was his great opportunity.

One should not forget that in choosing a life work he should consider where he can best serve the world. Service counts quite as much as any other sort of success.

Bible Thoughts for the Week

Sunday.

A Great Command.—Have not I commanded thee? Be strong and of a good courage; be not afraid, neither be thou dismayed; for the Lord thy God is with thee whithersoever thou goest.—Josh. 1:9.

Monday.

God's Love and Ours.—God doth execute the judgment of the fatherless and the widow, and loveth the stranger. Love ye therefore the stranger.—Deut. 10:18, 19.

Tuesday.

Follow Righteousness.—That which is altogether just shalt thou follow, that thou mayest live, and inherit the land which the Lord thy God giveth thee.—Deut. 16:20.

Wednesday.

Fear Not; Serve God.—Fear not; turn not aside from following the Lord; but serve the Lord with all your heart.—I Sam. 12:20.

Thursday.

Voluntary Obedience.—They answered, . . . All that Thou commandest us we will do, and whithersoever Thou sendest us, we will go.—Josh. 1:16.

Friday.

The Greatest Victory.—He that is slow to anger is better than the mighty; and he that ruleth his own spirit than he that taketh a city.—Prov. 16:32.

Saturday.

God Our Savior.—He said the Lord is my rock, and my fortress, and my deliverer.—I Sam. 22:2.

Thy Word is a lamp unto my feet and a light unto my pathway.

ROCKED IN THE CRADLE OF THE DEEP.

Rocked in the cradle of the deep,
I lay me down in peace to sleep;
Secure, I rest upon the wave,
For thou, O Lord, hast power to save.
I know thou wilt not slight my call,
For thou dost note the sparrow's fall,
And calm and peaceful is my sleep,
Rocked in the cradle of the deep.

And such the trust that still were mine,
Tho' stormy winds swept o'er the brine;
Or though the tempest's fiery breath
Roused me from sleep to wreck and death!
In ocean cave still safe in Thee,
The germ of immortality;
And calm and peaceful is my sleep,
Rock'd in the Cradle of the deep.

—Mrs. Willard

REAR ADMIRAL ROCK

Capt. George Henry Rock, United States Navy, assistant chief, bureau of construction, United States Navy, has been promoted to rear admiral to fill the vacancy caused by the retirement of Rear Admiral Elliott Snow, construction corps.

Of Course

"Then what did Rip Van Winkle do, William?"
"Picked up his tools and went back to work."

IN BIBLE TIMES

"How old is your boy?"
"Fifty-seven."
"Just the right age for our cradle roll."

Not Yet

By household cares and bills
They are not harried—
The sign on the car says
They've just been married.

We Hope He Profited

Gray—How did you list the money that fortune teller got from you?
Green—I entered it under the head of "Prophet and Lost."

Nonsense

"What's the use of saving $60?"
"None whatever. It's too little for a car and too much to give the wife."

Reasonable

"I don't believe in a woman's going to a restaurant by herself."
"Because of convention?"
"No, because she has to pay her check."

THE STORMING OF THE GATES

This picture is typical of many such scenes enacted daily at the main gates of the Sesqui-Centennial International Exposition in Philadelphia where the 150th anniversary of the signing of the Declaration of Independence is being celebrated. The "shot" was made from outside the gates and shows the long sweep of historic Broad street, the main artery of the exposition. To the left can be seen one of the capitol of the Palace of Liberal Arts and Manufactures which covers nearly eight acres of grounds and which houses some of the finest exhibits ever seen. The Exposition will continue until December 1.
